Contradicting Foe, Reds Say Battle Is Still Raging Around Smolensk

By the Associated Press

Russian troops were reported holding their own on four fronts early today and the Soviet high command branded German claims of four million Russians killed or captured as "fantastic . . . Arabian fairy tales."

A Soviet communique said the Germans had lost more than 1,500,000 men killed, wounded and captured during the first six weeks of the war, compared with Russian losses of about 600,000 killed, wounded and missing.

The communique reported bitter fighting at Kakisalmi, 75 miles above Leningrad; Smolensk at the center; Kholm, midway between Smolensk and Leningrad, and Bel Tserkov, 45 miles south of Kiev. These are the areas where the Russians had reported fighting in previous communiques.

Say Foes' Morale Needs Lift

The Russians said German claims of great victories were issued to bolster the morale of a German nation plunged into "despondency and confusion" by protracted Eastern Front warfare.

The communique also declared that the Germans had invented the "legend of the existence of a powerful fortified Stalin Line" to explain the stiff Russian resistance. There never was such a line, it asserted.

The Nazi high command repeated its stories of past victories, but made no mention of any current operation of consequence and no prediction as to when and how the invasion would end.

A report of a propaganda officer broadcast by the German radio claimed, however, that Kiev in the Ukraine had been encircled.

How tight this supposed noose had been drawn was not stated, although it was claimed that some days ago advanced mechanized troops were within 12 miles of the city.

The most specific information available came from the Russians, and to the effect that the Red forces still were holding their positions in the north below Leningrad, in the south below Kiev and about Smolensk at the center before Moscow.

Flatly Contradicts Nazis

This, and particularly the report of bitter fighting about Smolensk, was wholly at variance with the German version, which made much of what was declared to have been a conclusive victory at Smolensk and dismissed the Ukrainian theater with the declaration that "the remainder of surrounded Soviet troops are facing destruction."

The Germans also stuck by their amazing previous estimates that on the whole of the eastern front 4,000,000 Russians had been killed or captured.

A Berlin military spokesman said Nazi casualties had "proportionally averaged what they were in the western and southern campaign"—that is in France and in the Balkans.

Russians accounts as to the position about Smolensk not only pictured the Red troops as a strongly effective defense force, but declared that in counter-attacks during yesterday the heaviest of Soviet tanks had overrun and crushed smaller German machines.

A published letter from a Russian soldier, written five days ago, said the Germans had vainly tried every spectacular method, including the landing of tanks by air, to take Smolensk.

Bruno Mussolini Is Killed With 2 Others in Plane Crash

Duce's Second Son Was Testing Out New Bombing Ship

By the Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 7.—Bruno Mussolini, second son of the Duce, perished today in the wreck of a new four-motored bomber he was testing in his third war. It was death at the age of 23 for one who, in the creed of his father, had "lived dangerously" since he was a little boy.

With Capt. Bruno at the controls as squadron commander, the new plane, which possibly was to be used by the squadron against Russia, crashed near the airport of San Jiusto, at Pisa. Two others of the crew were killed and five were injured.

A communique said the reason for the crash was not yet known. The plane was coming in for a landing when it crashed.

The crash occurred at 10 a. m. Il Duce took off in a plane for Pisa immediately with Gen. Pricolo, chief of the air force general staff.

Crews at the field were drawn up in mournful review as Il Duce hurried past to the Santa Chiara Hospital where, with Lieut. Vittorio Mussolini, his eldest son, he viewed Bruno's body.

Then he went to the scene of the crash.

Later Bruno's mother flew to Pisa from the Mussolini summer home at Rimini.

The funeral will be held tomorrow.

Look to U. S.

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 7.—The extent of British military aid to Thailand in case that little country is attacked by Japanese forces massed in neighboring Indo-China will be governed by the willingness of the United States to cooperate with action stronger than economic blockades, it was stated authoritatively today.

Moreover, it was added that this policy for a collaboration beyond both diplomatic and economic measures applies not only to Thailand but to the whole of the Far East.

[British and Chinese forces are ready to smash any Japanese attempt to cut the Burma Road or move westward, it was officially announced in Singapore as the Tokyo radio broadcast a prediction that "war may come at any moment," an International News Service dispatch said.

[Additional thousands of Japanese troops were reported to have landed at Saigon and to have headed westward toward the Thailand frontier.

[Authoritative British sources in Singapore spoke of the whole Far Eastern situation as increasingly active and expressed the conviction that Thailand was undoubtedly in danger.

["In Burma and South China," the ministry of information announced in a formal communique, "all preparations have been completed to smash any Japanese attempt to cut the Burma Road or to move westward."

[As though in response to this warning, the government controlled Tokyo radio declared:

["War may come at any moment . . . Britain is to blame . . . Thailand can protect herself."]

Thailand Expected to Resist

Thailand itself is expected by the British to fight if invaded, but British informants are not able to see such resistance in an optimistic light. The Thai air force, it is felt here, would worry the Japanese and the Thai army could offer only brief, though spirited, resistance.

Japan's probable alternative to military invasion, which would put Japanese troops on the frontiers of British Burma and the Malay States above Singapore, was said here to be infiltration by "tourists" and economic domination on the German pattern.

Reserve here concerning Thailand also is in marked contrast with the statements of Australian leaders, who view that dominion as concerned as deeply by Japanese moves

Senate Votes 30-Month Draft, Bonus After First Year; U. S. May Seize Shipyard in Strike

Occupation Likely Unless Company Accepts Mediation Board's Formula

The Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. strike, paralyzing work on 493 million dollars worth of Navy and Maritime Commission construction, appeared last night to be headed for a showdown at the White House, with possible orders for Government occupation of the Kearny, N. J., yards unless the company quickly agrees to a settlement.

That the dispute will be referred to the President was intimated following a conference of L. H. Korndorff, company president, and John Green, head of the striking C. I. O. Shipworkers Union, with OPM Co-chief Sidney Hillman and Navy and Maritime Commission heads.

At the conference, it was indicated, Korndorff again refused to accept a National Defense Mediation Board recommendation that it grant the 16,000 employees a guarantee of maintenance of union membership, the sole issue in dispute. Korndorff had previously rejected the proposal, after it had been submitted to and was approved by the full Mediation Board.

Other Strikes

In a flaring up of activity in labor disputes and strikes in other defense areas yesterday, there were these major developments:

1. A one-day strike of C. I. O. shipbuilding workers at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Brooklyn, N. Y., yards, affecting 6,000 workers, was ended by midafternoon on order of union officials. They said the stoppage had been called to protest alleged "stalling" by the company on contract negotiations.

2. The settlement of a six-day A. F. of L. carpenters' strike which threatened a complete stoppage of construction work on the 40-million-dollar Plum Brook Ordnance plant, near Sandusky, Ohio, was announced following union agreement to place wage demands in the hands of the Defense Mediation Board.

3. The Mediation Board announced settlement had been reached by direct negotiation of a dispute involving the 1,750 workers in the Los Angeles plant of the Aluminum Co. of America. The C. I. O. United Auto Workers had asked for a union shop, vacations with pay and wage increases. Terms of the settlement were not immediately made public.

Two Strikes Certified

At the same time, work stoppage of a few C. I. O. diecasters in the company's Cleveland plant held up operations of 1,785 workers. C. I. O. spokesmen said the diecasters were protesting the presence of an A. F. of L. organizer in the plant.

4. Two more strikes were certified to the Mediation Board. The first involved 8,000 A. F. of L. electricians, and the Consolidated Edison Co., public utility supplying New York City. The dispute was over employment of nonunion men on a construction job. Following the certification to the board, Hillman asked the union business agent to arrange immediate resumption of work.

The second strike, which began July 15, involves 1,850 workers at the Todd Shipyard Corporation,

OPM Expects:

Priorities to Close 5,000 Plants And Displace Million Workers

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

OPM officials believe that the swiftly mounting impact of priorities in diverting strategic materials away from nondefense factories "will assume perfectly appalling proportions before many weeks," resulting, according to some estimates, in the shutdown of from 5,000 to 6,000 factories and the displacement of well over one million workers before the end of the year.

Defense experts, freely admitting deep concern with what they describe as an "enormous" problem, quoted OPM cochief, Sidney Hillman, as believing that the effect of priority orders will be noted within a very few weeks, and speedily increase in intensity.

Although they declare that it is impossible to measure accurately the number of factories and workers to be affected by the diversion of critical materials to armament purposes, they cited "distressing" results of a survey of New Jersey factories, an estimate of a private industrial economist that between 5,000 and 6,000 plants will be shut down and recent A. F. of L. calculations that more than one million workers will be affected.

Consensus of OPM officials who have studied the problem is that "one million plus" employes will be forced to seek other employment before the end of 1941.

Three industries—aluminum ware, boiler and radiator and washing machine manufacturing—have already conferred with the OPM Defense Contract Service and are submitting detailed engineering estimates of the industries' supply of material, machine tools and labor, with the objective of working out plans for placing defense orders in the plants.

Four more industrial groups are waiting to begin such conferences, it was learned. They are vacuum cleaner, refrigerator, commercial jewelry and radio tube manufacturing. The last named, it was pointed out, requires at least 18 critical materials needed in defense manufacture.

One official, who declined to be quoted by name, expressed grave fear that the "terrible social impact" of factories shutting down, particularly in "one-industry" towns, may have serious repercussions on the national morale, and that the irony of a depression resulting from, and in the midst of,

Bill Covers Selects, Guard and Regulars; Extra Pay Would Be $10 Monthly

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The Senate late yesterday passed and sent to the House legislation extending by 18 months the maximum service of every man in the United States Army. The vote was 40 to 35.

Before giving final approval to the bitterly disputed bill, the Senate voted 39 to 34 to add $10 a month to the salary of trainees and enlisted personnel of the National Guard, Reserves and Regular Army for every month served in excess of one year.

Under the bill, all selectees, Guardsmen and reserves could be retained for 30 months, instead of the 12 months provided by present law. The three-year term of enlisted men could be extended to 4½ years.

Not All May Be Kept

War Department plans, as explained to the Senate by Administration spokesmen, do not necessarily call for retention of all men for an additional 18 months of service. The bill specifies that the authority to extend the military service period can be terminated at any time by a concurrent resolution of Congress, which is not subject to veto.

At the same time, however, the bill provides for an extension of service beyond 18 months if Congress declares such action "in the interests of national defense."

Adoption of the $10-a-month "bonus" amendment, offered by Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, came after four hours of sharp debate on various proposals for increasing Army pay.

$30 Plan Defeated

An amendment introduced by Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, calling for a $30-a-month bonus for all soldiers, sailors and noncommissioned officers for every month of service beyond one year, to be paid out monthly after their discharge, was defeated by a standing vote, with supporters of the proposal unable to muster enough strength to force a rollcall vote.

The Senate then turned down by a vote of 37 to 36 an amendment sponsored by Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, which would have increased the monthly pay of all enlisted men and trainees by 25 per cent, as of August 1, 1941.

Most Administration supporters opposed all the pay increase amendments, which were attacked on the floor as a "hasty" effort to revise Army salary scales, but a dozen Democrats broke away to join the bipartisan isolationist bloc in putting over the Mead amendment.

The Mead amendment would not affect officers' salaries. If 1,500,000 non-commissioned officers and men were to be held in service for a full 18 months beyond one year, the increase in the Army payroll would be about 240 million dollars.

The vote on passage of the service extension bill showed 38 Democrats and 7 Republicans supporting the bill, with 16 Democrats, 13 Republicans and 1 Progressive (La Follette, of Wisconsin) against the measure.

Army Asked No Limit

Earlier in the day approval of the bill had been assured when the Senate voted 44 to 28 to write into it the Military Affairs Committee amendment limiting the service of selectees, guardsmen and reserves to 30 months.

The War Department had origi-

Shadow of Doubt

Washington's latest criminal assault victim, a 15-year-old girl, looked at five Negroes in a special police line-up yesterday but was unable to identify either of two suspects definitely as the man who attacked her in Rock Creek Park Wednesday.

Asked by Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, if she recognized any of the men, the girl replied in a calm voice:

"I can't say—yet. I'd like to see the middle man and the one on the right again."

The "middle man" was arrested by Twelfth Precinct police soon after the attack and there is considerable circumstantial evidence against him. The man on the end was taken into custody in downtown Washington. They were the only two suspects, the others in the line-up being employes of the Municipal Building.

The pair was returned to the line-up stage, but again the girl was not sure.

A hurried call was made for the white sun helmet worn by the assailant and found near the scene

Traffic accidents brought death yesterday to three Washingtonians—including a 61-year-old doctor of philosophy who was the District's fiftieth traffic fatality of the year.

The dead:

Dr. Benjamin Erlie Talbott, 61, of 3512 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, who died in Emergency Hospital shortly after being struck by an automobile at Massachusetts Avenue and Edmunds Street Northwest.

Dr. John T. Fitzgerald, a Westgate, Md., dentist, was arrested as driver of the car that struck Dr. Talbott and was later released in custody of his attorney pending action of a coroner's jury.

Miller, on leave from the War Department, was taking a motor trip to the West with his mother, Mrs. Nina Bellenger, 51, of Alma, Kans., who was also killed, the Associated Press reported.

Anderson was brought to Gallinger Hospital, August 2, after two days' treatment at the Fredericksburg Hospital. He died of a fractured skull.

Dr. Talbott was struck while crossing the street at the intersection. The automobile was going west on Massachusetts Avenue.

House Sustains Road Bill Veto By Two Votes

Sponsor Denies President's Implied 'Pork Barrel' Charge

The $320,000,000 national defense highway bill died yesterday in the House, where a two-vote margin sustained the President's veto.

A recapitulation of an earlier closer vote failed to change the result. The President's "No," overridden 3 to 1 in the Senate on Wednesday, stopped the bill short in the House.

Chairman Wilburn Cartwright, of the House Roads Committee, called a meeting of the House Roads Committee for this morning but indicated no new legislation will be immediately introduced.

"I think we will just let things simmer along for a while," said the disappointed Cartwright.

It was one of the few times a roads appropriation has been defeated in Congress and the vote recapitulation provided a dramatic climax.

The first vote, unannounced, indicated the veto had been sustained by a one-vote margin. Speaker Rayburn decided the vote was so close a recount was in order. In the recount, three members switched to sustain the veto and only two changed their votes to override.

The final count was 251 for the motion to override to 128 to sustain, falling shy of the needed two-thirds majority.

President Roosevelt had asked only 125 million dollars for defense road building, including 25 million dollars to be spent on strategic highways at his discretion, with the balance allotted for access roads to military and naval bases and defense industries.

Instead, Congress raised the 25-million-dollar item by 100 million

Ickes Fears U. S. Shortage Of Plane Fuel

Says Public's Failure To Save Has Brought Auto Rationing 'Near'

Defense Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes yesterday warned that mandatory rationing of gasoline "isn't very far ahead," and that unless new refining equipment is quickly installed an even more serious defense crisis—acute shortage of aviation gasoline—will develop.

Increased military requirements, demands of the British, and, more recently, the Russians, for 100 octane gasoline are responsible for the impending aviation fuel scarcity, Ickes implied. He also disclosed that one shipment, in drums, had already been sent to Russia on a Soviet merchantman, and that four American tankers are about to be turned over to haul the vital airplane supply to Vladivostok or Archangel.

Ickes' forecast on compulsory measures to conserve gas on the East Coast, made at a press conference, indicated clearly that he was badly disappointed in results of the voluntary conservation program and the night time "blackout" of gasoline vending, and that he had little hope of avoiding more drastic steps.

Hasn't Studied Powers

Freely admitting he had not investigated his legal authority to enforce a rationing plan, he quickly reminded reporters that he would have an effective compliance weapon through the industry's cooperation.

The oil coordinator said he had "two or three" rationing plans in mind, but declined to enlarge on their details or procedure.

In sharp criticism of Dr. R. E. Wilson, former OPM consultant on gasoline supply, Ickes declared that Legislation intended by its sponsor to block a threatened price rise by increasing supplies of fluid cream in Washington was offered the House yesterday by Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana.

House Gets Bill To Block Increase In Price of Cream

The bill would amend existing law to authorize the District health officer to issue certificates for importation of cream from sources not approved by Washington inspectors. It would permit producers in areas outside the Washington milkshed in Maryland and Virginia to ship cream into the District if its quality and purity have been certified in accordance with United States Public Health Service standards.

"Milk prices in Washington are the highest in the country," declared Shulte, "and these people who are making $1,220 or $1,440 here can't afford it. A shortage has been created here by the monopolies as a guise to hold up prices."

Senators Hear MorgenthauToday On Tax Bill

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will go before the Senate Finance Committee today to present the Treasury's attitude toward the $3,229,200,000 tax bill passed by the House.

Morgenthau was expected to renew the President's request for substitution of the Treasury's invested capital method of excess-profits taxation for the House optional plan.

He will be closely questioned on White House recommendations that personal exemptions be lowered to $750 for single persons and $1,500 for married, and on possible upward revision of House individual surtax rates. The Senate committee leans mainly toward this method of recouping the 300 million dollars lost by House defeat of joint income tax returns.

The Treasury also is known to be working on other variations in its original recommendations, including tightening of exemptions on insurance companies.

Stimson Avoids Press, Adding To Rumor of Churchill Meeting

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

For the fourth successive day Washington buzzed yesterday with rumors of a council of war in mid-Atlantic between Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister, and President Roosevelt and four of the highest ranking naval and military officials of the United States. No official denial or confirmation was issued, but Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson tacitly added another shred of circumstantial evidence to the story.

Reporters who expected to attend Secretary Stimson's regular Thursday morning press conference arrived at his office to find the conference had suddenly been called off. No reason was given, but most of Washington concluded the Secretary did not want to be asked any embarrassing questions.

In yesterday's official message from the U. S. S. Potomac nothing was said to discredit the rumors, although the wording indicated that the President knew about them. The message, sent by radio, read:

"All members of party showing effects of sunning. Fishing luck good, no destination announced. President being kept in close touch international situation by navy radio. All on board well and weather excellent."

Observers noted that the rumor of a midAtlantic international con-

Board of Trade, Hotel Men Will Discourage Conventions

The Washington Board of Trade and the Hotel Association of Washington yesterday assured Price Administrator Henderson of their cooperation with his request that the Nation's Capital be temporarily eliminated as a convention city to conserve hotel space for persons visiting the Capital for defense purposes.

Sympathy with the proposal was expressed by L. Gardner Moore, president of the hotel association, and Fred A. Smith, head of the Board of Trade, and they added that steps had already been taken to cooperate in discouraging conventions coming here.

The recommendation for curtailing the convention business here was made by Henderson in a letter to the hotel association. Taking issue with the recently published report that ample hotel facilities were available in the city, he pointed out that he had received "clear evidence" that rooms were practically unavailable at certain times, particularly when large conventions were in progress.

"It is therefore requested," he said, "not only that the steps already taken to minimize the encouragement of conventions during the next 12 months be continued but that this be extended to include the cancellation of conventions which have already been

Nazis' Claims Are 'Fairy Tales,' Reds Reply

Soviets Say Reich's Morale Needed Lift; Report Lines Holding

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Friday, Aug. 8.—The German army that overran most of Europe before tackling huge Soviet forces now has lost more than 1,500,000 men to Russia's 600,000 and the Red army still is savagely holding its own on all battlefronts, the Soviets announced today.

German official claims that the Russians had lost 895,000 prisoners and many times that figure in dead and wounded were termed "Arabian fairy tales" designed to bolster falling morale within the Reich.

The communique said it was significant that the German people thus far had not been told how many Nazi troops were slain on the plains of Russia.

It set forth this table of materiel losses for both sides:

	German	Russian
Tanks destroyed or captured	6,000	5,000
Artillery destroyed or captured	8,000	7,000
Planes destroyed or captured	6,000	4,000

In Berlin Wednesday the Germans announced that Soviet losses totaled 13,145 tanks, 10,388 guns, and 9,082 planes. The Soviets said these figures were "fantastic."

The Moscow communique said:

"Concocting these 'data,' the Fascists obviously included first of all their own losses, adding our losses and adding to these extravagant figures whatever came to their head. By this procedure one may count not only 13,000 Soviet tanks, 10,000 guns and 9,000 aircraft allegedly destroyed by the Germans during the war but considerably more."

Hold Part of Smolensk

The early morning communique reported continued fierce fighting at Kakisalmi, Kholm, Smolensk, Bel Tserkov—all regions which had been mentioned in previous communiques as centers of fighting. Russian troops were pictured as having counter-attacked the Germans on the Smolensk front before Moscow with super-heavy tanks which crushed smaller German machines.

Last reports said Red troops still held at least part of strategic Smolensk despite attempts of airborne light tanks and German parachute troops to take it.

Increasing numbers of 45-year-old German reservists and 17-year-old Nazi cadets have been thrown into the battles, sapping the manpower of Germany, the Soviets said.

As for German claims that the Red air force no longer is a menace the communique said their planes continued to bomb German airdromes and mechanized units, and that 30 German planes were shot down Wednesday to a loss of 19 Red aircraft.

The German people were pictured in Moscow today as plunged into "despondency and confusion" from reports penetrating Germany about tremendous losses at the front, from the food situation and from dislocation of German industry.

"Fascist propaganda endeavors by false reports of military operations on the Eastern Front to raise the spirit of German soldiers and population," the Soviet information bureau said.

"Concealing from the German population the real losses suffered by the German army in the war against the U. S. S. R., Hitlerite propaganda is treating the population to ridiculous nonsense."

Stalin Line a "Legend"

It is said that the German command attempted to account for heavy losses and failure to advance quickly by creating a "legend of the existence of a powerful fortified Stalin Line" wherever Germans met stiff resistance.

"However, no special 'Stalin Line' ever existed or exists," the communique continued. "It was invented by the Germans to justify their tremendous losses."

The Red Army garrison at Smolensk, which the Russians declare has been withstanding siege for three weeks in the greatest battle to date in the Russo-German war, was reported today to have been still holding the fort as recently as August 2, in direct contradiction to the German high command's declaration that the city fell July 16.

A letter from a Russian soldier to his father is Moscow, written five days ago, said that the Germans had dropped a large number of parachutists and landed some light tanks by air in Smolensk, but never gained a foothold in the city.

Tokyo Denies Warlike Plans Against Siam

By Otto D. Tolischus

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Aug. 7.—Disclaiming any aggressive intentions against Thailand or any desire for a joint defense agreement similar to that with Indo-China, Japanese official quarters today declared the statements of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Secretary of State Cordell Hull regarding a dangerous situation in east Asia were "based on no warrantable facts."

These quarters insisted the Anglo-American attitude was "difficult to understand" and blamed the British for creating a new crisis in the Far East analogous to that in February, "when all allegations against Japan likewise proved untrue."

[Koh Ishii, cabinet information bureau spokesman, said the Japanese government officially recognized "the military, political and economic" encirclement of Japan by the United States, Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies, according to the Associated Press.

[The spokesman's statement added weight to an editorial in the foreign office-controlled Japan Times Advertiser along the same lines.]

Official quarters pointed to Japan's peaceful record in southeastern Asia and emphasized anew that the joint defense of French Indo-China was arranged by mutual agreement with Vichy, though it had become unavoidable for the security of the greater east Asia coprosperity sphere "in view of British maneuvers."

But these quarters made a distinction between Japan's relations with French Indo-China, which colony was affected by the European war and the division among the French themselves, and Japanese relations with Thailand—an independent country with which Japan is maintaining peaceful and friendly relations, as evidenced by the Thai credit extended to Japan.

Policy Subject to Change

These quarters added if the present situation in southeastern Asia should be changed by further maneuvers of outside powers Japan may be forced to review her present stand.

There is no doubt the statements by Eden and Hull, especially their alleged joint advice to Thailand to resist aggression, coupled with an offer of aid, have created a profound impression in Japan. With them the issue is clarified. In fact, in the eyes of some observers here, Thailand has become to the Far East what Poland was to Europe before the outbreak of war—the touchstone of war or peace. The attitude of the moderates in the Japanese government has never been in doubt, but whether the diehard activists can also be persuaded by argument remains to be seen.

The Japan Times Advertiser takes up an Associated Press dispatch from Manila which created alarm here yesterday and says: "Either by pressure on the Thailand government or by outright independent occupation the British propose an aggressive encircling move, according to Japanese opinion. This is but one of many which began without necessity.

"First, there was the creation of a superbase at Singapore, heavily reinforced by British and empire troops. From this hub a great wheel was built up and linked with American bases to form a great ring sweeping in a great area southward and westward from the Philippines through Malaya to Burma, with the link broken only in the Thailand Peninsula. Now it is proposed to include the narrows in the encirclement which proceeds to Rangoon.

Encirclement Is Charged

"The ABCD (America, Britain, Chungking, Dutch East Indies) scheme for alleged defense against hypothetical Japanese southward aggressive expansion is in reality an offensive encirclement in Japanese eyes. There is no justification for it or for the Roosevelt wall of Pacific bases. Japan has a clear-cut policy of peaceful coprosperity, as outlined by former Foreign Minister Matsuoka.

"By raising the bogey of Japan, Britain really camouflages its plan to take aggressive action for strengthening Singapore through the creation of advance bases at the expense of Thailand's independence."

Hull Rejects Vichy's Reply On Base Deals

By George Bookman

Post Staff Writer

An "inside story" of how Japan bloodlessly conquered French Indo-China has been sent to the United States by the French Vichy government, it was learned last night.

The explanation of the fall of Indo-China, accompanied by assurances that France would defend her empire in her own way, were contained in a note handed to United States Ambassador William Leahy in Vichy Wednesday.

Secretary of State Hull, nevertheless, informed his press conference yesterday that he was not impressed by the Vichy assurances and wants more opportunity to observe the actions of the regime in unoccupied France before accepting at face value its pledges regarding defense of North Africa and Dakar.

Diplomatically sources said that the French note was mainly a "technical explanation" of the events in Indo-China, detailing from the French point of view the workings of the Japanese "squeeze play" that gave Nippon control of all strategic points in the rich French colony.

The note from Vichy, in answer to a declaration Saturday by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, followed substantially the lines indicated unofficially in Vichy, Hull said.

Expect Fight in Africa

Responsible quarters said that the full extent of German demands on France for concessions in Africa will be known when Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan, who is now conferring with German officials in Paris, returns to Vichy. Leahy is expected to obtain the facts after Petain's return and report them immediately to the State Department. It is reported that Germany seeks military concessions in North Africa and Dakar.

The future of American relations with the Vichy government are understood to depend on the reaction Vichy displays to the new German demands.

Welles, in his statement last week, declared that American friendship for Vichy would be determined by the effectiveness with which the government of Marshal Petain defended its territories from "those powers which are seeking to extend their rule by force and conquest."

Welles took Vichy to task for granting German and Italian forces concessions in Syria and for granting military rights to Japan in Indo-China.

One report current in Washington yesterday was that Germany is planning a surprise seizure of French bases in North Africa, including Dakar, with or without the consent of the Vichy government. The information was said to have come from foreign advices to the State Department.

Don't Meddle, Vichy Envoy To Nazis Tells U. S.

Paris, Aug. 5 (delayed via Berlin).—The Vichy government's envoy to Paris, Count Fernand de Brinon, today warned the United States to "cease meddling" in France's affairs because the nation's welfare demands that it collaborate in the Axis new European order.

De Brinon made his statement to American newspaper correspondents on his return to Paris from Vichy, where he conferred with officials of Marshal Petain's government.

Tokyo Demand On Moscow Is Reported

By International News Service

London, Aug. 7.—A report that Japan served a virtual ultimatum on Soviet Russia, demanding among other things that the Soviet Union demilitarize the Vladivostok area and a zone along the Manchukuoan-Siberian frontier, was published in the London Daily Express tonight in a dispatch from Shanghai.

The dispatch asserted Nippon's demands were:

1. Demilitarization of the Vladivostok area containing Soviet air bases within about 700 miles of Tokyo, Kobe, Yokohama and other Japanese cities highly vulnerable to aerial attack.

2. Creation of a demilitarized zone along the Siberian frontier with Manchukuo.

3. Soviet grant to Japan of economic concessions in Siberia paving the way for Japanese economic penetration of the huge Soviet Asiatic territory.

4. Assurance by the Soviet Union that no strategic military, air or naval bases on the Asiatic mainland will be granted to the United States.

London military circles stated it was understood the Soviet Union had three crack field armies totaling about 1,000,000 men in the area Tokyo seeks to clear.

The first of these well-led and adequately equipped armies is the Red Banner army of Vladivostok Province; the second is the Red army corps of the Lake Baikal area, and the third the Red Banner army of the Amur River, along the Manchukuoan frontier.

All are reputed to have strong aerial support.

Increasing Tension Indicated in Tokyo

Tokyo, Aug. 7 (AP).—Increasing concern over Japanese-Russian relations was indicated today by the fact that Soviet Ambassador Constantin Smetanin held his third conference in as many days with a member of the Japanese government.

This time he talked for half an hour with Vice Admiral Seizo Sakonji, the minister of commerce and industry, and a former president of the Northern Sakhalin Oil Co.

(Sahkalin, an island off Siberia, is half Japanese and half Russian, and the two countries almost fought in July, 1939, over Moscow's alleged intention to confiscate Japanese oil and coal properties there.)

Soviet Using Tanks Of 3 Decks, 130 Tons

New three-decker tanks weighing 130 tons have rolled out of the Soviet armaments factories in the Ural Mountains and have been sent to the front, it was learned here from military sources yesterday. The first deck of these mobile fortresses is equipped with flame throwers, the second with two anti-tank 75-millimeter guns and the third deck with antiaircraft guns. The tanks are manned by 15 men each.

Kiev Is Encircled, Berlin Says, but Adds Defenses Are Strong

By C. Brooks Peters.

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Aug. 7.—All information available in the German capital tonight indicates that the Reich legions have begun to move with an accelerated tempo on several sectors of the huge eastern front and that it has become possible for them again to employ the blitzkrieg tactics of a war of movement.

Kiev is now encircled. The encirclement, it would appear, has just been completed. But the front correspondents' reports on the radio this evening declare that the capital of the Ukraine is strongly fortified. It is thus estimated that considerable effort may still have to be exerted before the city is taken.

In the same Ukrainian sector, the Germans suggest, remnants of all the Russian forces which have been fighting west of the Dnepr are about to be trapped in a huge pocket having as its triangular boundaries the wide bend of the Dnepr River in its lowermost reaches, the Black Sea and the Dniester River.

Fair Weather Favors Tanks

The weather in the Ukraine is said to have remained fair for several days. German tanks are credited with having pushed deep behind the lines of the retreating Russians and to have cut off to a large extent their avenues of retreat across the Dnepr about what would appear to be the Dniepropetrovsk area.

Other German forces advancing southward between the Dnepr and the Dniester Rivers are at the same time forcing the Red units in that sector back toward the Black Sea. Included in this tremendous pocket are apparently the two Russian Black Sea ports of Odessa and Nikolaiev.

No specific details have been released regarding the progress of the new offensive in the Smolensk area. Having defeated the Soviets in a four-week battle of annihilation in this sector, the Germans say, their units are again in motion and report that the resistance which their drives are encountering is much less than had previously been experienced in this area.

Claim Success in North

On the left wing of this extensive front the Germans report new and important advances. The Gulf of Finland has been reached between Lake Peipus and Reval, apparently by those German motorized forces which took Tapa. Therewith the sizable enemy forces which are operating in the Reval area have been cut off from land communication with the main body of their forces in the Leningrad area.

According to reports here, the Russian casualties are steadily increasing. This alleged fact is interpreted in German quarters as an indication that the seasoned German troops are now opposing Soviet units composed for the most part of relatively untrained soldiers. In the German view, this means that the front line Red forces have already been defeated and the less experienced enemy units will be able to offer less resistance.

Dwell on Minor Actions

Again today the German report numerous details of individual actions along the extensive fronts. These details, however, are unimportant for forming an opinion of how the operations stand, because they are expressed in general terms and without any indication of the exact geographical locations in which the actions have occurred.

Before the conclusion of the double battle of Bialystok and Minsk, the Germans sent quickly moving motorized units against the Stalin Line, which enjoys strongly fortified positions behind the Dnieper and the upper Dvina Rivers, Mogilev, Orsha, Vitebsk and Polotsk.

The speed of the German advance is said to have prevented retreating Russian units from the Minsk-Bialystok area from becoming firmly entrenched in the positions of their Stalin Line—which, it is added, here, would have made the piercing of the enemy line very difficult.

Sidelights of the War

Serb and Belgian Saboteurs Keep Germans in Hot Water

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, Aug. 7.—Saboteurs in Yugoslavia and Belgium continue to disturb the German occupying forces, according to official reports here.

Serbian guerrillas in the Valjevo district wounded a Nazi general and killed his adjutant and other bands burned German gasoline stores and aviation hangars and destroyed five aircraft.

It also stated two bridges and one viaduct in Yugoslavia were destroyed by saboteurs and in Belgium patriots damaged several railroad locomotives in a station near Ghent and cut an important cable line.

British Tell Losses

London, Aug. 7 (AP).—War Secretary H. D. R. Margesson told the House of Commons today that British imperial forces left behind a total of 25,680 prisoners and dead in the evacuations of Greece and Crete.

This included Australian and New Zealand forces.

The war secretary said the latest information showed that, of the total British strength in Greece at the beginning of the German attack, 57,757 officers and men, 44,865 were evacuated. When the Germans attacked Crete the British strength was 27,550 and of these 14,580 were taken safely away.

U. S. Pilots Bag 6 Nazis

London, Aug. 7 (INS).—The American Eagle Squadron of the R. A. F. destroyed five German fighting planes and one Dornier bomber during its first month as a first-line unit of the air force, the air ministry announced tonight.

High scorer among the Eagles is Pilot Officer G. A. Daymond, 20, of Los Angeles, who accounted for two fighter planes and the bomber. Pilot Officer R. Dunn, former airline pilot, shot down two fighters.

Those Fearsome Finns

Copyright by New York Times

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 7.—A correspondent of the Stockholm Tidningen tells of an episode typical of warfare in the deep Finnish forests, where even the Germans admit that the Finns, trained as they are in the technique of fighting in the woods, are superior to German soldiers.

A German regiment had, after fierce fighting, succeeded in encircling the remnants of an elite Russian force. They gave them a 24-hour ultimatum, which the Russians allowed to expire. The Germans thereupon gave the Russians another ultimatum, which they apparently considered would frighten even a Russian: "You can have another 24 hours to give up. If you don't surrender then we'll let the Finns get you."

Spirit of the Dutch

London, Aug. 7 (AP).—Vrij Nederland, free Dutch newspaper published in London, today related the story of a Dutch pilot, mortally wounded after shooting down five German planes in a dogfight over northern France, who whispered this farewell into his radio:

"Please accept my apologies. I cannot go on."

Vrij Nederland quoted an Australian pilot as saying he saw the Dutch flier's plane crash a few seconds later.

Shipping Losses Drop

Newcastle, England, Aug. 7 (INS).—First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander tonight announced that Britain was successfully overcoming Germany's U-boat and bomber blockade and declared that British losses in July were the lowest since he had entered the admiralty.

In a speech at Newcastle, Alexander said:

"We are taking a heavy toll of enemy U-boats. The Battle of the Atlantic is going on incessantly and will continue as long as the enemy has U-boats, surface raiders and raiding bombers.

"July has been the best month since I have been in the admiralty."

Nine Are Executed As Saboteurs in Italy

Rome (Friday), Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Nine persons have been executed in Trieste for sabotage or the possession of arms or bombs, the newspaper Popolo di Roma said today. Damage was said to have been done to telegraph and telephone lines by the saboteurs.

25,000,000 Refugees Flee Nazis in Soviet

By Eleanor Packard

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Rome, Aug. 7.—Almost 25 million persons are today making the greatest known mass migration in history as a result of the Russo-German war, according to dispatches in the Italian press.

Telegrams from the Russian front and from Ankara and Istanbul, Turkey—many of them containing eyewitness stories from travelers leaving Russia—appear to confirm reports that the entire civilian population is being evacuted from the whole of the Ukraine, from most of northern Russia and from central Russia to several hundred kilometers east of Moscow.

In the evacuation areas only harvesters, workers in war industries and expert saboteurs are being left behind. Everyone not directly contributing to one of these vital services must go. In parts where crops already have been harvested not a single civilian can be found for miles.

Henderson Opposed To Wage Ceilings

But Warns of Price Inflation if Pay, Other Costs Allowed to Keep Rising

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday recommended omission of wage ceilings from price control legislation but warned that price inflation "cannot be curbed if wages or any other costs are allowed constantly to rise."

He urged special treatment of wage standards by Government agencies assigned to that task and by restraint on the part of organized labor itself.

It was Henderson's third day of price control testimony before the House Banking Committee. The Administration's price bill made no mentio of wages, and the OPACS administrator opposed any move to include them.

Other points in his testimony:

That prices cannot successfully be held in line unless there is a much heavier taxation program and a compulsory savings program.

That control of installment buying and other forms of credit are "of such critical importance that if the law does not cover it there should be a law."

While Henderson opposed a wage amendment to his bill, he said no group in any community should be allowed to take advantage of the situation brought about by defense spending to get unwarranted increases in the charges it makes to the community.

When the President assigned him the job of regulating prices, he did not include wages, the witness said. That was left to Sidney Hillman, chief of OPM's labor division.

No country, either democratic or totalitarian, has combined wage control with price control, he said.

"I do not regard it as necessary to include in the price bill all of the elements that go to make up costs, such as utility rates, interest charges, transportation and personal services.

"But I am not unmindful of the fact that unless such costs are kept in bounds, we cannot successfully prevent price inflation."

He said there should be "close working arrangements" between the agencies charged with keeping in bounds these various elements, contending that determination of wages rests largely on bargaining and there are many agencies holding indirect controls.

Henderson mentioned the Bacon-Davis Act, the Walsh-Healey Act, the wage-hour law, the Railway Mediation Board, the Defense Mediation Board among the instruments now treating the problem. He pointed out that Hillman is now working toward establishment of wage ceilings in large areas and in particular industries, such as the airplane and shipbuilding industry.

But he told that committee that as the defense program advances and the demand for skilled workers increases, it will call for more and more special treatment and more area agreements that "take labor out of the field of collective bargaining."

If called on to administer the price program, Henderson said he would not try to build rigid ceilings, but would set prices under which agriculture and industry could "go forward with this great task."

U. S. Decision On Aid Lauded By Moscow

By Henry Shapiro
United Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Aug. 7.—Russia and the United States have formed the basis for cooperation in mutual defense and destruction of "bloodthirsty Hitlerism," although an actual mutual assistance pact has not been signed, Solomon A. Lozovsky, the official Soviet spokesman, said today.

Lozovsky's praise of the new Soviet-American rapprochement was of the same tone as laudatory editorials in the Communist Party organ, Pravda, and the government newspaper, Izvestia.

"Even though a mutual assistance pact has not been signed, the United States has decided to render economic assistance against aggression and destruction of bloodthirsty Hitlerism," Lozovsky said.

"Puts Both in Same Camp"

Izvestia said the agreement "puts both great countries in the same camp of democratic nations devoted to the noble ideal of the destruction of German Fascism, the most perfidious and evil foe of humanity, culture and civilization."

The newspaper emphasized that the agreement is a two-way proposition in which the United States has promised immediate fulfillment of Soviet war orders and prepared the way for their speedy delivery, while Russia "possesses immense resources of raw materials and can aid further development of various branches of American industry."

Pravda warned that Germany "will spare no effort to subjugate the American continent."

It cited evidences of Nazi intrigue in the United States and South America and efforts of Germany to obtain from the French government "bases in the Atlantic for preparation of an attack on America."

Confident of Victory

The newspaper expressed full confidence in a Soviet victory over Germany.

Russian cooperation with another new ally, Poland, has begun with the arrival of a Polish military mission in Moscow. A Polish army is being formed among Polish prisoners captured in the Russian invasion of Poland, to fight Germany.

The mission headed by Gen. Sigismond Szyszko-Boshuz arrived from London yesterday and was greeted by representatives of the defense commissariat, the navy commissariat, the foreign commissariat, the British embassy and the British military mission.

Mediation Board May Suggest U. S. Seize Shipyard in Strike

Galveston, Tex., where A. F of L. boilermakers are seeking a written agreement and union security. The board asked the disputants for an immediate resumption of work pending board conferences.

5. The board began hearings on a threatened strike of 14,000 C. I. O. packing house workers at the Chicago plant of Armour & Co., suppliers of about one-third of the Army's meat, eggs and butter. It also set a hearing date of August 13 for the 42-day-old strike at 17 plants of the United States Gypsum Co.

The strike at the Kearny shipyard began Wednesday midnight, after the company had sent a letter to the Mediation Board which was interpreted as a flat rejection of the board's recommendations. The union had also rejected the proposal, but later accepted it.

Yesterday, company and union representatives were summoned hastily to Washington for a conference with Hillman at 4 p. m.

Earlier, the full Mediation Board reconsidered the recommendation of the board's panel on the case. At a press conference, Acting Board Chairman Frank Graham said the board decided to take no further action and that a previous consideration of the panel recommendations, two weeks ago, and implicit approval at that time, spoke for itself.

Asked what the next step would be, Graham declared he would await the outcome of the conference with Hillman. He admitted, however, that it was in the board's power to refer the case to President Roosevelt with recommendations that the Government seize the yards.

The Hillman conference, attended by Acting Secretary of the Navy Bard and Maritime Commission Chairman Land, lasted only an hour. Union representatives left for New York, declaring that the next step was up to the company.

Korndorff described the conference as "exploratory" and as reviewing the situation. He admitted, however, that no further conferences, either with the unoin, Hillman, or the Mediation Board, were scheduled.

He said no mention was made of Federal occupation of the plant, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Co.

However, it was learned reliably that OPM and Mediation Board officials will not hesitate to force White House showdown on the dispute if the company persists in refusing to grant a maintenance of union membership clause. It also was indicated that defense agencies were putting "pressure" on the company to accede.

The shutdown of the plant, second largest on the East Coast, has delayed the scheduled launching tomorrow of the 6,000-ton cruiser Atlanta, as well as work on 6 other cruisers, 27 destroyers and several merchantmen.

Two local draft boards in Hudson County, N. J., immediately began to reclassifying strikers as available for military service, canceling deferments previously given because of their employment in the yards.

British Pound Nazi Airdrome

By William W. White
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 8.—While Britain remained comparatively raid-free, the R. A. F. continued its round-the-clock offensive warfare against the Luftwaffe over occupied France, harassed enemy shipping and repeated its usual night attack on the industrial areas in southwest Germany last night and today.

Following the night of widespread activity large numbers of R. A. F. planes swept over the Channel about midday today flying so high they could not be seen from the ground.

Despite storms of snow and sleet and heavy banks of cloud, R. A. F. bombers drove again into the upper Rhine to drop a "considerable weight of bombs" and set large fires burning in Mannheim, Karlsruhe and Frankfurt last night. While ice formed on the wings of some of the bombers others were forced to fly through thunderstorms, and at least one plane lost its trailing aerial when struck by lightning.

The bomber command craft also pounded the docks at Calais and bombed a small convoy escorted by a destroyer off the coast of Holland. One of the ships was reported down at the stern, with smoke pouring from it. Eight bombers are missing.

Meanwhile aircraft of the coastal command torpedoed an enemy vessel off the Norwegian coast during the night and also bombed an airdrome in Norway—at the cost of one plane.

Night fighter aircraft concentrated on a number of airdromes in northern France and also lost one plane.

Both British and American-made night fighters took part in the patrols over northern France, bombing the runways of several airdromes, setting fires to hangars and silencing gun posts which tried to stop the attack.

During the afternoon one squadron of Spitfires staged an aerial dogfight with 12 Messerschmitts, definitely shooting down 2 and certainly damaging several others.

House G. O. P. Reported Split On Holdover

A split in House Republican ranks on the Selective Service Bill, with a majority of the House G. O. P. opposing the 18-month selective service extension voted yesterday by the Senate, was indicated last night.

An intra-party fight on the issue stemmed from a House Republican conference on Selective Service Wednesday, which reaffirmed the G. O. P. platform's antiwar statement but took no vote on the extension question.

A bloc within the party was reported at odds with the minority leadership for lack of aggressiveness in opposing the Administration's foreign policy and resentful of the activities of Wendell L. Willkie, their 1940 Presidential nominee.

The internal party conflict came to a head in Wednesday's Republican House conference, when a group of Republicans who had earlier conferred in the office of Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, presented the antiwar resolution.

The resolution, offered by Representative Crowther, of New York, and moved by Representative Keefe, of Wisconsin, was similar to the statement issued at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., on August 5 by a group of prominent Republicans.

Approved by a voice vote, the resolution repeated platform statements against involvement in war, condemned executive acts "which might lead to war," but approved a strong national defense.

No vote was taken on the selectee extension, but speeches against outnumbered those for. Minority Leader Martin said a majority of his members appeared against continuance of selectees in service, but were willing to continue the National Guard and reserves in service.

The Alexandria Bay statement, whose sponsors included former President Herbert Hoover and Alf M. Landon, meanwhile was under fire from House Democratic leaders.

Senate Votes to Extend Draft to 30 Months, With $10 Monthly Bonus After First Year

nally requested a bill granting authority for an indefinite extension of service. The Taft amendment, limiting service to 18 months, was defeated Tuesday, and the Burton amendment, a "compromise" proposal for a 24-month limit, was voted down Wednesday.

As passed by the Senate, the bill not only provides a 30-month limit, but also removes the present limitation of 900,000 on the number of selectees who can be kept in service at one time and authorizes the Secretary of War to release men who "would suffer undue hardship" if held in the Army.

The bill asserts that "the national interest is imperiled," but does not contain the declaration of a national emergency originally sought by the War Department.

House May Cut Period

The service extension fight now shifts to the House, where the bill is expected to meet stiffer opposition than in the Senate. Administration leaders during the Senate debate made it plain they would not be surprised if the House cut the service limit to 24 or 18 months.

House leaders expect today to call up the rule on the bill, which provides for six hours of general debate and consideration of amendments under the five-minute rule. House action before Wednesday or Thursday appeared unlikely, and disagreement between the two chambers on the service time limit could delay final Congressional approval of the measure for several more days.

The Senate found time twice in yesterday's protracted session to rebuff its second newest member, W. Lee O'Daniel, of Texas. The former Texas Governor, who made his maiden speech Tuesday, only a day after being sworn in, offered an amendment to the service extension bill, aimed at combating violence in defense labor disputes. It was defeated on a voice vote, with only two or three Senators supporting the proposal.

O'Daniel rose late in the session, with a dozen Senators clamoring for a vote on the bill, to demand a rollcall on his defeated amendment. "It seems the soldier boys have very few friends around here," he said, "and I rise to speak in their behalf."

Fewer than a fifth of the Senators present—the number necessary to force a record vote—supported O'Daniel's request and his amendment was again overwhelmed on a voice vote.

Yesterday's debate was opened by Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, who insisted that any extension of draftees' service beyond a year would be "a breach of faith." In a bitter attack on the Administration's pledges of aid for Soviet Russia, the veteran isolationist cried:

"Good God, did we ever sink so low before as to select one cutthroat out of two and provide him with weapons by which he might eventually cut our throat?"

Life Insurance Taxes Studied In Congress

By Nicholas P. Gregory
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Members of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee are studying proposals to tax the 30 billion dollar life insurance industry in order to replenish the 323 million dollars of revenue lost when the House rejected the provision of joint income tax returns included in the Revenue Act of 1941.

A definitive program for life insurance taxation will be drawn up and included in the Senate Finance Committee's version of the tax bill. The proposals are expected next week, and it is believed, that the Treasury will support the measure. The life insurance industry itself came to the Treasury with tax suggestions before the House bill was introduced, but the suggestions would have given the Treasury only about six million dollars of new revenues.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will testify before the Senate Finance Committee today on the 1941 Revenue Act, but is not expected to touch on the subject of taxation for life insurance. Instead, he will discuss the entire fiscal picture and touch upon the subject of replacing the revenue lost by the House defeat of the joint tax return provision

Under present tax laws, life insurance companies pay very small taxes. For example, in 1937 total Federal taxes paid by the industry aggregated about $392,000, and in 1938 the sum did not exceed $600,000.

Under the Revenue Act of 1921 the treatment of life insurance companies under the income tax was radically changed. Prior to that life companeis were taxed on their entire net income from all sources, including premium income. Attention to the relatively small sums which life companies pour into the Treasury coffers was highlighted during the temporary National Economic Committee hearings.

If the Senate committee adopts a tax plan for life insurance companies it might be passed on to the 60 million policy holders who are insured, in the form of smaller dividends. However, the mutual life companies have about five billoin dollars of assets over and above their legal reserves, according to current estimates, and these might be used to avert an immediate reduction in policyholders dividends.

U. S. Building Site Debate Up Today

Hearing Set on Location of Proposed $35,000,000 War Department Structure

The question of whteher a 35 million dollar War Department building is to be erected in Arlington County, Va., or on some site in the District, or whether the project is to be drastically altered, will be threshed out today in a Senate Appropriations Committee room.

Officials of the War Department, where the proposal to house 42,000 employes in one building originated, and of other Federal agencies known to be opposed to the undertaking, will appear at 10 a. m. before an appropriations subcommittee headed by Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado.

Spokesmen for the War Department will include Brig. Gen. Brehon E. Somervell, construction quartermaster, and Brig. Gen. Eugene Reybold, acting assistant chief of staff.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission, each of which has publicly denounced plans for the structure, will send representatives before the subcommittee with data in support of their opposition.

The middle ground will be represented by the Public Buildings Administration. W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings, will appear for the Administration.

"The location of Government buildings is not the primary function of the Administration," Reynolds observed last night. Reynolds appeared before the Appropriations and Buildings and Grounds Committee before the project was approved by the House, but merely to present data on Federal office-space needs.

Trade Body Joins Battle

The Arlington Chamber of Commerce yesterday joined the building controversy with a statement contending that if the county is to be regarded as a part of the Washington metropolitan area, it should not be precluded from consideration when the Federal Government seeks living room.

A building and site of the size proposed would cost, in the District of Columbia, approximately 100 million dollars, according to E. L. Usilton, chamber president.

"Why not use land that already owned by the Government?" he asked.

Location of the building in Arlington would help stabilize the real estate market on the other side of the Potomac after the emergency has passed, he added.

The Army's viewpoint was given the House buildings committee yesterday during hearings on legislation proposing decentralization of Federal agencies.

Col. E. R. Householder of the Adjutant General's Office, told the committee that traffic congestion—one of the main difficulties foreseen by opponents of the building—would be less severe if the structure were erected in Arlington County than if it were built in Washington. He called attention to plans for provision of parking space for 10,000 automobiles at the Arlington site.

The War Department, he stated, now occupies 17 buildings in Washington and its efficiency would be increased 40 per cent if all offices could be placed under one roof.

"The Arlington site would not impair the view of the city?" asked Chairman Lanham (Democrat), of Texas.

"No."

"Did you know of the opposition at the time the site was selected?"

"Not definitely. We anticipated we would meet with some objection from the Park and Planning Commission."

A special act of Congress, Col. Householder declared, would be required to authorize location of the building on the grounds of the Soldiers Home. Deeds of conveyance provide that the land may be used only as an "asylum for aged and disabled soldiers."

Basis for the planning commission's opposition was reiterated yesterday by Henry V. Hubbard, of Brookline, Mass., a commission member.

"It should be remembered that 40,000 workers means a town of more than 100,000 people," Hubbard declared in summarizing five reasons for opposing the project. "That is a town of the size, for instance, of Wilmington. To build such a town within a short time, and to build it well, is practically impossible, and to build it badly is to place a long-lasting curse, financial and esthetic, on Arlington County and the State of Virginia."

Conferees Meet On Silk Problem

The problem of shifting the silk hosiery industry to rayon and other fibers was explored yesterday by manufacturers, labor leaders and Government officials, but no answers were obtained to many of the puzzling technical questions involved. The discussions will be resumed today.

A representative of the Dupont Co., which manufactures nylon, a synthetic fiber, said that the company had removed limitations on the use of nylon in combination with other fibers. Officials said that this would help relieve shortages.

Air Crash Kills U. S. Observer In England

LIEUT. HENDRICKS

The death in England of a United States Army Air Force flier, First Lieut. Laird W. Hendricks, 25, of Jacksonville, Fla., was disclosed yesterday by the War Department.

Lieut. Hendricks, a military observer, died July 28 in the crash of an American plane which was not engaged in combat, the War Department said. Further details were withheld from the initial announcement.

A native of Ocala, Fla., Lieut. Hendricks was a 1939 graduate of the Military Academy and won a pilot's rating in the Air Corps last year.

a defense-stimulated production boom may shift interest from "the Battle of the Atlantic" to "the Battle of the Stomach."

In an effort to meet the problem, defense agencies will:

1. Seek through the civilian allocation program of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply to piece out available scarce materials as far as they will go among nondefense plants; and

2. Attempt to arange the conversion of civilian industry to defense work.

The problems of the second course are admitted to be extremely difficult, but to offer more hope than the former, in view of the fact that the supply of certain materials, principally metals, is inadequate by anywhere from 33 to 90 per cent.

Recent OPM estimates show that after military demands have been met, the ratio of civilian demand to residual supply is 15 to 1 for aluminum, 5 to 2 for copper, 2 to 1 for nickel, alloy steels and tungsten, and 3 to 2 for zinc and tin.

Experts point out that the curtailment of aluminum, being a relatively new metal in industrial use, affects proportionately few employes. Copper, zinc, nickel, tin and alloy steels, on the other hand, are widely used throughout the entire metal working industry, and their diversion has consequently widespread and devastating results.

One ranking OPM official declared that he expects tremendous social and political repercussions within 30 days. The beginnings have already been marked in many OPM offices, which have received frantic demands from Congressmen that materials or military contracts be routed to various factories in their districts threatened with closing through lack of supplies.

The problem is already acute in the aluminum ware industry, with several thousand workers now employed; in the silk industry, where 175,000 are scheduled to be without work, and in the Chevrolet plant in North Tonawanda, N. Y., where 3,600 were displaced when the plant, faced with curtailment of supplies, shut down this week for a six months retooling period to prepare it for defense production.

Hundreds of other plants, where shutdowns are imminent, have reported their plight to the OPM, it was said.

D. C. Still at Sea About President

ference could be considered part of the "international situation" and that there was nothing in the message to show that the President had not left the Potomac to board a warship.

Speculation concerning the President's cruise, officially described as a ten-day vacation trip, began when the President left on Sunday and asked that no attempt be made to find out where he was going. Mr. Churchill and Harry L. Hopkins, lend-lease administrator, disappeared at about the same time from London, and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff; Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Force; Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, left Washington.

The War and Navy Departments stuck to their unenlightening explanations today: Gen. Marshall and Gen. Arnold are on inspection trips, and Admiral Stark is on leave, they said. Mrs. Arnold, who yesterday wished she knew where her husband had gone, was still wishing today.

A well informed Government official gave the rumor a new push forward today with the statement that the President and the Prime Minister have wanted to meet face to face for several months.

booked where this can be done without grave inconvenience."

Moore stated yesterday that some efforts have already been made to cut down on the number and size of Washington conventions. He said that hotel solicitation of conventions had been reduced and in some cases eliminated altogether.

The Board of Trade added that it had sought previously to discourage organizations who wished to convene here, when the gathering bode fair to be too large a strain on existing facilities.

Henderson's letter continued: "I further recommend that absolutely no additional conventions be scheduled for the ensuing year.

"While this office has no desire to interfere with the long run plans for making Washington a convention center, it is my belief that all public spirited organizations will understand the necessity of turning Washington into the nerve center of the defense program which it must be for the period of the emergency. If it becomes necessary for this purpose, this office will lend the weight of its public influence to the move for complete discontinuance of conventions in the city for the duration of the emergency."

Henderson pointed out that the conventions tended to strain restaurant and taxicab facilities in the city, as well as the hotels, and to increase "the general congestion."

Hotel Offers Plan

Osgood Roberts, director of public relations of the Mayflower Hotel, said that every effort would be made to cooperate with defense officials.

He said a partial solution would be to postpone conventions from the first part of the week to the latter part, when hotels here are not crowded.

Arthur Harnett, executive secretary of the Hotel Association, could not be reached for comment last night. Previously, however, he had issued a statement that Washington's hotel facilities are adequate to meet the present need.

A report from his organization read in part: "It is the considered judgment of those who have given attention to and are expert in this subject that any discouragement of the convention program during the period of the emergency by blanket cancellations would have an adverse effect for a long time after the emergency ends and that it would be a most undesirable course which should be adopted only upon showing of a most urgent need which can be met in no other manner."

The grand total of room vacancies in 25 leading hotels during the year ending June 30 was 506,588, according to the association's figures.

In the last year hundreds of hotel rooms and—two entire hotels—the Dupont Circle and the Grafton—have been taken over by Federal or British agencies.

Hotelmen suggested that the Daughters of the American Revolution and the General Federation of Women's Clubs would be among the first to be inconvenienced by the recommendation. Both organizations, it was said, had planned large gatherings here for the first part of next year.

The D. A. R. constitution requires that a meeting be held in Washington every year during the week of April 19.

row morning at the Fascist headquarters in Pisa, where the body, together with those of Bruno's two comrades, was taken tonight. The body then will be taken to Forli and buried Saturday in the Cemetery San Casiano at Pendino Predappio, near Il Duce's birthplace.

As blackshirted aviators carried the three caskets to the party headquarters, silent crowds threw flowers before them.

Il Duce, Vittorio and Bruno's mother and widow remained some time in the funeral chamber. Gen. Pricolo and other high party and government officers stood the first watch of a nightlong guard of honor.

Soon after Rome's radio had announced Bruno's "glorious death at his post of combat," condolence poured in upon the father: From King Vittorio Emmanuele, from Queen Elena, from Pope Pius XII.

Bruno was thrice decorated by his country for war and peacetime flying; he had driven racing automobiles, and he was hurt once in a skiing accident. One of his hobbies was boxing.

Bruno had flown under fire in the wars in Ethiopia, in Spain and in the present great conflict.

Was a Pilot at 17

Born in Milan April 22, 1918, while his father, as head of the Fascist movement, was editing the newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia, Bruno took his first airplane flight when he was 9. At 17 he obtained a military pilot's license and, in 1935, went to Ethiopia as the pilot of a bombing plane.

When Italy sent aid to the Spanish Nationalists in their war on the Republic, Bruno went along as a bombardier.

In January of 1938 he flew with the "Green Mice" from Italy to Brazil and when he came home he was a captain, as well as as general manager of an airline between Italy and Latin America.

As soon as Italy declared war against France Bruno "asked and obtained" his transfer to active service.

His most recent command—in the executive of which he was killed—was over a new detachment of long-range bombers.

Bruno was married in 1938 to Gina Ruberti, and they had one daughter, Marina, now 17 months old.

Besides Vittoria, who is 24, he leaves another brother, Romano, 13, and two sisters, the present Countess Ciano, 30, and Anna Maria, 11.

dollars and specified it should be distributed among the States according to the Federal Aid Act formula.

Party Lines Crossed

Vetoing the measure, the President told Congress pro rata apportionments would disregard defense needs and did not insure correction of critical road deficiencies.

Party lines were crossed on the House sustaining vote, but, as in the Senate, where the Republican Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, led the fight for the veto, it was a Republican who most vigorously supported it in the House of Representative Taber, of New York, seldom on the Administration side, said the measure asked more funds than were needed.

Chairman Cartwright, an Administration supporter on nonroad matters, denied the President's implication that the bill was a "pork barrel" measure and said Mr. Roosevelt wanted "power to spend the money where he wants."

Speaker Fails to Vote

When Republicans questioned the recapiulation move, Speaker Rayburn read the House rules provision for a recount on close votes, rarely resorted to. The Speaker did not cast a vote, though entitled to.

Victory of the veto was attributed in part to an eleventh-hour shift by the Florida delegation. President Roosevelt is expected to renew his request for a lump-sum appropriation that can be distributed according to military need.

as are Singapore and the Malay States themselves.

Many Australians here believe that unless a stronger policy is formed in London, Australia will begin to look to Pearl Harbor (the American Pacific base) rather than to Singapore for aid.

Bangkok dispatches stressed that Thailand would welcome assurance of the Anglo-American attitude as it counterbalances the Japanese policy and aspirations.

The statement of United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull of increasing American concern over Japan's intentions toward Thailand was interpreted in Bangkok as stabilizing Thailand's position.

Thailand Declines Outside Protection

Bangkok, Thailand, Aug. 7 (AP).—"Thailand is extremely grateful to those offering her protection, but begs to decline same with thanks," the official Thai radio commentator declared tonight, in apparent reference to Japanese allegations of British-American machinations aimed at Thailand.

The commentator, without using names, said as for reports of possible occupation of strategic bases in Thailand "on the part of those offering protection," Thailand possesses adequate officers and men to look out for her own bases, but would appreciate the assistance of friendly powers in the form of war materials, which she needs.

(This cryptic comment apparently was both a bid for United States and British material aid and a slap at Japan, which has been reported seeking bases in Thailand.)

the aviation fuel situation was "not nearly as good as we've been led to believe."

"The country was assured up to the very end by Dr. Wilson that while a slight increase might be necessary, there was ample refining capacity, with one million barrels in reserve.

Finds Facts Otherwise

"The actual facts show an entirely different situation that causes us very much—a good deal—of concern. Apparently he didn't take into account possible foreign requirements. I'm not sure he even took into account domestic requirements. . . . Even aside from the Russian needs, the figures were more optimistic than realistic" the oil coordinator declared.

Ickes said he would urge immediate expansion of refining capacity for aviation gasoline, and that he expected it would take about seven or eight months to install it.

Diversion of the four tankers for Russian service, and other shipments of oil from the West Coast on Russian merchantmen and tankers, may cause a gasoline shortage in the Pacific area in addition to that already marked on the East Coast, Ickes stated. The pinch in the West will not be severe, however, he said.

Use in East Increases

The oil coordinator did not hide his obvious discouragement over failure of the voluntary rationing conservation program in the Atlantic Coast States.

Asked about mandatory rationing plans, he replied:

"At the rate we're going, it isn't far ahead. I had hoped it wouldn't be necessary . . . but I'm not as hopeful now as I was a week ago.

"We've been getting a lot of cooperation from the industry and filling stations, but we could do with a lot more of it from the driving public."

Later, Ickes declared that the public's reply to "insistent and repeated appeals" for a voluntary cut of one-third of the usual consumption was a 1,029,886-gallon increase in the weekly use of gasoline.

Truman Charges Mobilization Plan Costly, Outdated

Chairman Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, of the Senate Defense Investigating Committee, charged yesterday that the Army's mobilization plan had been over-costly and also had turned out to be "an Indian war plan and not a modern war plan."

Lack of plans, Truman said, had cost the Government 100 million dollars.

Brig. Gen. George G. Tyler, retired, who was formerly in charge of camp plans, was on the stand when the Senator made the assertion. Tyler said, "I think we had very good plans."

He told the committee that plans were based on use of existing Army and National Guard camp facilities on the theory that mobilization would be in war time and troops would depart immediately for the theater of operations, leaving space for replacements in rotation.

Polish Engineer Offers Plan To Save Gas by Sharing Rides

A 28-year-old Polish engineer, in Washington to get War Department permission to work in a defense industry, yesterday volunteered his plan to help conserve gasoline because he believes that "everybody ought to do what they can" to help the Nation in its present-day crisis.

JAMPOLER

With the experience of five months in this country, Herbert O. M. Jampoler outlined the following plan to Maj. Beverly Snow, chairman of the local petroleum conservation committee, based on Secretary Ickes recent admonition to give your neighbor a lift to work:

An organization called the National Traffic Cooperation Plan, shortened to NATCOP, would be set up throughout the country. In each factory, office or business section, secretaries would register groups of five or six persons residing in the same neighborhood, and each registrant would be sold an identification folder containing books of mileage tickets. When he set out for work in the morning, he would stand at the curb, wave his card as a sign that he wanted a ride in, and exchange tickets for the lift.

Jampoler, who was born in Lwow, Poland, and served as a Polish representative on the French defense industry commission before the fall of France, came to the city on a bus in order to observe how bus drivers were obeying the appeal to save gas. He was shocked, he said, to note how the driver ignored the appeal and let his motor idle throughout a 15 minute rest stop.

A science graduate of a Polish university, the young Pole decided to leave France the day that Petain asked for an armistice because he "didn't want to work for Hitler." He escaped to Portugal, and is now going to work for a machine tool concern in Rhode Island.

An expert in the machine tool field, he is the inventor of a multiple drilling device which he has offered to the Government. He plans to become an American citizen as soon as he is eligible.

Unconscious Pilot Lands Plane—Dies

Bonham, Tex., Aug. 7 (AP).—An Army plane landed at Bonham Airport yesterday, taxied to a hangar and came to a halt.

When no one emerged airport attendants found Second Lieut. Norris W. Gibson unconscious.

Taken to a hospital, Gibson died today of cerebral hemorrhage.

Maj. B. S. Graham theorized the pilot was stricken in fight and landed his ship by instinct.

Col. Wood To Be Meade Commander

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Aug. 7.—Col. Oliver S. Wood, director of the Twenty-ninth Division's schools, has been appointed post commander at Fort Meade, to succeed Col. Gilbert M. Allen, who will reach retirement age in October, it was learned here today.

Col. Allen has been post commander five years. The date on which he will leave here has not bn announced.

Col. Wood was on duty in Washington as instructor to the Twenty-ninth Division before the division's induction into Federal service last February.

Born September 1, 1882, in Arkansas, he is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and attended the United States Military Academy. He became a second lieutenant in the Army in 1908 and has been in the service since. He is unmarried.

Col. Allen was commanding officer at Fort Moultrie, S. C., before coming to Fort Meade.

Visit to Meade Pleases Gen. Drum

Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First Army, said today there is "every evidence" that officers and men of the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division thoroughly appreciate "the seriousness of the type of training they are getting."

Gen. Drum spent last night and part of the day on the field observing a division command post exercise which took place under supervision of the Second Army Corps. It was the first official test of the division's commanding officers by a headquarters since induction of the Twenty-ninth into Federal service last February.

"We have just had a fine exercise," Gen. Drum said after attending a critique in which Maj. Gen. Henry C. Pratt, commanding officer of the Second Army Corps, and other corps officers assigned as umpires had analyzed all phases of the handling of the problem.

The exercise, in which all of the division's commanding officers from Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord down through regimental and battalion officers took part, involved an attack against a simulated enemy force advancing into Maryland from the north. It began at 10 a. m. yesterday and ended this morning.

Fever Fails to Delay Officer's Wedding

Lieut. George Grant, of Fort Meade's Ninety-third Antitank Battalion, is in Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, with his bride nearby after a bedside marriage ceremony performed while he was suffering a 105-degree temperature from typhoid fever.

The ceremony took place last Saturday in Lieut. Grant's home at Stafford, Pa., where he was married to Miss Sarah Harned, of Allentown, Pa. It was performed by a Catholic priest, with Lieut. Edward L. Davis, of the Ninety-third, as best man.

At Lieut. Grant's insistence, the bride attended a reception at an Allentown country club. She then joined her husband at the hospital, where she took a room so that she could be near.

The lieutenant was suffering from a slight fever when he left Fort Meade last week, it was said, but had not been able to determine the cause.

By the time he reached his home the fever had risen to 103 degrees and by Friday it was 104. On the day of the wedding it was still up another degree, but both the lieutenant and his fiancee insisted on going through with the ceremony as scheduled.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt Sued for Divorce in New York

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

IN MARITAL STRIFE—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 7.—The wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, 28-year-old heir to 20 million dollars, has sued him for divorce on grounds of misconduct with two prominent young women of cafe society, it became known today.

The suit was revealed by Sol Rosenblatt, counsel forthe sportsman, who said it would be defended. That a divorce suit impended had been known for some time, since the couple, married in 1933, have been separated more than eight months, but that it had been filed in New York State, where only adultery is recognized as grounds for divorce, astonished New York society. It had been believed that some other State, with more liberal divorce laws, would be chosen.

Rosenblatt would not confirm reports that Mrs. Vanderbilt, the former Manuela (Molly) Hudson, had rejected a large cash settlement offer to sue elsewhere on other grounds. It was reported that she sought a sum in seven figures.

Neither principal would discuss the case. Vanderbilt was at Saratoga, where his horses are racing. One of the reasons friends gave for the couple's separation was his devotion to racing, in which his daily routine requires a 9 p. m. bedtime and 5 a. m. rising to clock his horses.

The couple met at the races. Mrs. Vanderbilt is the niece of Charles S. Howard, owner of the renowned Seabiscuit. They were married June 8, 1938, at the Sands Point, Long Island, home of Vanderbilt's mother, Mrs. Margaret Emerson, who has been married four times, but retains her maiden name. A daughter, Wendy, was born March 10, 1939, at Los Angeles.

Mrs. Emerson, who inherited 60 million dollars of her father's patent medicine fortune, discussed the case freely. Her son had certainly gone out with other girls, she said.

"I wouldn't give much for him if he didn't," she added. "After all, he's a normal young man and he's been separated from his wife for six months. He wouldn't be a son of mine if he stopped living."

She thought that more than her son's racing interests had come between the couple.

"Those are surface reasons," she said. "It goes far deeper. If Molly had really cared for Al she would have adjusted herself to his life. She knew before she married him that his great interest was racing. The very fact that she couldn't compromise makes it obvious that there was no lasting love. Why warp two lives by trying to patch up something which has no real foundation?"

As to the suit's being brought in New York, Mrs. Emerson observed that "there are certain sporting things one does or doesn't."

"I wish," she added, "that Manuela had kept Wendy in mind and done the thing quickly. It could have been arranged so easily. But then, she doesn't see fit, so that's that."

After her daughter, Gloria, who is Mrs. Bob Topping, has her second baby, Mrs. Emerson said, she will "go up and see Al at Saratoga."

"It worries me when he is unhappy," she said.

The effect of the divorce suit announcement on New York society was synopsized by Cholly Knickerbocker, society reporter, who wrote: "What a pity that we are to be treated to the ugly spectacle of another Vanderbilt divorce in times such as these."

Plots in Americas Believed Axis Plan to Create Diversion

Army Moves to Closer Cooperation With Latin Armed Forces

Timing Reported Pointing to Orders Of High Command

By International News Service

By Harold K. Milks

Associated Press Staff Writer

Bogota, Colombia, Aug. 7.—Diplomatic sources here expressed conviction today that the upsurge of totalitarian manifestations from one end of South America to the other was linked with an Axis effort to create a diversion during a crucial period of the European war.

They said the combined effect of these manifestations, which included alleged plotting against the state in Bolivia and Argentina and at least a propaganda drive in Colombia, was intended to disturb North American assistance to Britain, Russia and China.

Believed Under Orders

The diplomats with whom this writer has discussed discovery of the movements appeared in complete agreement that Axis agents in the Western Hemisphere were under orders to cause the stir.

A veteran of the diplomatic service who, of course, declined to be named, said that "the fact that the governments of Argentine, Bolivia and Colombia, representative of three distince sections of this continent, uncovered pro-Axis movements in their countries almost simultaneously points to one thing—orders of the Axis high command to create trouble in this hemisphere."

The movement apparently backfired and, instead of creating a diversion, focused attention of South American governments on the Axis activities, bringing prompt action to squelch them, this source said.

Another veteran observer noted that the "underground blitzkrieg" coincided with the German offensive against Russia and the Japanese move into French Indo-China.

Might Have Been Serious

Colombian officials, while minimizing the importance of the plot reported uncovered in this country this week, said that it might easily have become serious had there been no interference.

Following the Colombian announcement that "paid propagandists" had been detained and many documents seized, Colombian ministers of foreign affairs and government requested the Bogota Congress to approve cancellation of citizenship of naturalized Colombians when they are found to be working against the state.

The proposal, made as an urgent matter of national defense, provoked hot debate in the Senate with representatives of the opposition party, which is frequently critical of Allied war effort, condemning the plan.

Hopson Signs Over Bulk Of His Assets

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 7.—Howard C. Hopson, one-time master of the giant Associated Gas & Electric system, and now serving five years in Federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., has signed an agreement which turns over the bulk of his five million dollars of personal assets to the companies he was convicted of defrauding and to the Federal and New York State Governments for taxes, it was revealed today.

Trustees for the Associated Gas & Electric Corporation and Associated Gas & Electric Co., filed in Federal District Court here a tentative agreement among Hopson, his family and several corporations which he controlled, on the one hand, and the principal associated gas companies.

It is subject to the approval of Judge Vincent L. Leibell, supervising the reorganization of the associated companies, and to agreement on tax compromises by State authorities. The Federal Government today announced acceptance of payments both from Hopson and the associated companies for back taxes. Under provision of the plan, the "Hopson interests," which include his family and certain of his companies, retain a $6,000 annuity on Hopson himself, bank accounts totaling $319,068 belonging to two sisters, and interest in trust funds for two sisters, Amy H. Starch and Norma H. Jones, and their minor children, worth $471,061.

The Federal Government will receive $1,187,897 from the Hopson interests directly, and the Associated Gas group, in return for assets and cash paid it by Hopson, will clear up a tax claim of $5,700,000, with interest which has been piling up at the rate of $1,000 a day since it reached a tax compromise with the Government in 1939.

Associated does not intend to liquidate the $13,594,545 face value of Associated system securities Hopson agrees to surrender to it and which have depreciated to a present market value of $1,871,203. Instead, its trustees said they would borrow the money to pay the tax claim.

As collateral for the tax debt of Associated, the Government has been holding securities valued at about 20 billion dollars in N. Y.-Pa.-N. J. Utilities Co. and some of its subsidiaries. N. Y.-Pa.-N. J. is an affiliate of the Associated system.

Financial quarters said the release of these securities might make possible spon a complete reorganization and recapitalization of N. Y.-Pa.-N. J. and had brought materially nearer a clearing up of the Associated bankruptcy, one of the most complicated and gigantic jobs of financial reorganization in history.

AluminumPlacque Over Dog's Grave Reported Stolen

Frederick, Md., Aug. 7 (AP).—Local firemen are wondering whether somebody is overconscientious or lacks all conscience. The small aluminum plaque over the grave of Dutch, their erstwhile Boston bull mascot, is missing.

When Dutch died three years ago members of the Independent Hose Company buried him behind the engine house. His epitaph was written on a small aluminum plaque and fastened to his cement grave marker.

The plaque was stolen once and firemen replaced it. Now the epitaph to Dutch for his prowess in riding fire engines is missing again.

U. A. W. Union Votes to Speed Drive for Million Members

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The C. I. O. Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers voted today to intensify the campaign to organize 1,000,000 in the union by 1945 and placed special emphasis on the aircraft industry and plants in Chicago and New York.

Changing its name to embrace aircraft and farm implement employes, but retaining its former initials, the U. A. W.-C. I. O. agreed at its sixth national convention that the drives should include unionization of "70,000 unorganized white collar office workers" falling within its jurisdiction.

"The long-standing menace of open-shop competitive plants, run-away corporations and mushroom growth of alley job shops must be met without further delay," an adopted resolution stated, "by a determined organizing campaign simultaneously on a dozen fronts.

"The Chicago and New York areas must be major objectives of this campaign as they are the last hope of run-away corporations, such as the new Buick plant, as well as the last refuge of the dual union A. F. L.-U. A. W."

(Officials defined "run-away corporations" as those which construct plants in new localities removed from centers where the C. I. O. has established strength.)

The campaign, the resolution added, should also include workers in the Diesel industry, "and any other new industries as they arise in the coming years of the present gigantic surge of industry under the far reaching defense program."

Union Invites Briton to Talk

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Aircraft, independent union at Curtiss-Wright's warplane plant here, cabled an invitation tonight to Herbert Morrison, British minister of home security, to address the union "and all American labor" by radio.

Signed by Leo Kriegbaum, Aircraft president, the cable said "We reject the voice of those who are giving aid and comfort to the enemies of democracy by advising a narrow isolationist policy for America."

Warfields Face Delay in Poland Until War Is Over

The Rev. Gaither P. Warfield, son of Dr. Robert C. Warfield, of Rockville, Md., and the former's wife and their adopted daughter are to be detained in Poland until the end of the war, according to information the father received yesterday.

The Rev. Mr. Warfield, veteran missionary in Poland, had booked reservations twice in the last two months on ships sailing from Lisbon for this country. Both times the family was prevented from leaving Poland, apparently by German authorities.

In the early part of July relatives enlisted the aid of the State Department when no word was heard from the missionary and he could not be located.

Nazi Manpower Heavily Taxed, U. S. Reports

By Sonia Tomara

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The extension of war to the Near East and Russia has heavily taxed German manpower and resources of raw materials during May, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday. According to the Foreign Commerce Weekly, the German war machine has greatly increased the consumption of all war materials and that because so many German men have recently been drafted for war duty, the number of foreign workers employed in Germany has gone into the millions.

This report was confirmed yesterday by a foreign diplomat recently returned from Germany, who said that virtually all German men from the age of 18 to 65 are now in uniform, either fighting on the Russian front, policing the occupied countries or filling various responsible jobs in Germany. The Reich has to rely more and more, as war goes on, on its women and on foreign labor, this diplomat said. Farms and industries are manned by Poles, Frenchmen, Italians, Czechs and Belgians, while German men have to play the role of masterfolk and warriors, willing or unwillingly.

Information obtained by the Department of Commerce said that 1,300,000 war prisoners were employed on German farms, mines and factories by the end of April and that this figure was bound to have increased during May. Most of these were Frenchmen. The Poles have been released and added to the civilian foreign workers employed in Germany, whose number now exceeds that of war prisoners.

The foreign diplomat gave much inside information on life in the Reich and on the effects of British bombings in western Germany. He said that Krupp plants at Essen had not been damaged because the Germans protected them by clouds of artificial fog.

The foreigner explained that Germany's most powerful war industry lies in a hollow of the Ruhr Valley where the fog does not scatter. It gives good cover during the night bombings and does not bother the workers. Artificial fog cannot, however, be used in places like Hamburg, Bremen or the Rhineland, where wind does not let it settle. Germany's big harbors and the industrial towns on the Rhine, have, therefore suffered more from bombings than the Ruhr.

The diplomat said that a part of Germany's war industry had been moved eastward, chiefly into the Warthegau, the now thoroughly Germanized part of Poland. German women cannot refuse work offered them on armament plants, as such is considered an honor. More and more of them are drafted every day, while Belgian and Dutch women are imported to do housework.

A native of Calvert County, Md., he was the son of the late Maryland State Senator J. Frank Talbott and the late Mrs. Etta P. Talbott.

Dr. Talbott was educated at Randolph-Macon Academy, Maryland Agricultural College, and the University of Frieberg, in Germany. He was awarded his Ph.D. degree at the latter institution.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Hamilton Talbott; two sons, Benjamin E. Talbott, jr., and Edward R. Talbott, of this city; three daughters, Mrs. Isabelle T. Hagerty, of Boston; Mrs. Cecilia T. She was taken to Emergency Hospital with a fractured leg, fractured arm, possible skull fracture and back injuries. Henry V. Walton, 30, of Mount Rainier, Md., was listed by police as driver of the car that struck her.

Melvin Wheeler, 25, of Kensington, Md., a member of the Montgomery County police force, suffered minor injuries yesterday when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at Georgia Avenue and Thayer Street, Silver Spring, while he was en route to a fire.

Officer Wheeler was treated at Garfield Hospital for neck lacerations and released. Police said driver of the car was Fred Peterson, of 1729 Lamont Street Northwest, who was charged with reckless driving and failing to give the right of way.

Peru President Refuses to Let Cabinet Resign

By the Associated Press

Lima, Peru, Aug. 7.—Resignation of the Peruvian cabinet was announced today, but President Manuel Prado y Ugarteche refused to accept it, informing the cabinet he was fully satisfied with its work.

The foreign office released the text of a resignation statement, dated August 1, just after cessation of hostilities between Peru and Ecuador. It said the cabinet on several previous occasions since its organization December 8, 1939, at the time of President Prado's inauguration, had "believed the moment had arrive when we should end our functions, but could not carry out this purpose because the President expressed his will that we should continue collaboration with him."

Lately, the statement said, the international situation had caused it to remain, but with ending of the border conflict the resignation was tendered.

The President, however, issued a statement refusing the resignation and reiterating "absolute confidence" in the cabinet.

Headed by Premier-Foreign Minister Dr. Alfredo Solf y Muro, the cabinet has undergone only minor changes since its formation.

Weygand's Stature at Vichy Grows

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Aug. 7.—Gen. Maxime Weygand, proconsul in Africa, may in the future attend with greater frequency meetings of secretaries of state usually held in Vichy on Fridays, as well as the cabinet councils which follow normally on Saturdays.

Gen. Weygand is not a minister, but it is understood his personal authority is considered at present one of the most important elements to be taken into account in governmental decisions.

It is pointed out, at the same time, that cooperation between Gen. Weygand and Admiral Francois Darlan, the vice premier, has been brought closer by the decree issued two days ago which regulates relations between the proconsulate and the vice premiership on matters of general policy "under the high authority of the marshal of France, chief of state." It seems that this decree had been interpreted abroad as "subordinating" Gen. Weygand. Tonight's news clarifies the situation.

It may not be without point to recall that in recent days the Paris press has been discussing the personality of Gen. Weygand and that L'Oeuvre, in particular, while granting him great qualities as a soldier, has regretted that in his public speeches he "goes no further than an oath of loyalty to the person of the marshal."

Admiral Darling is still in Paris. He may return to Vichy tomorrow after conversations with representatives of the occupying authority and with French officials.

Otto Abetz, representative of the Reich in the occupied zone, is understood to be in Berlin, so that the admiral has seen only his immediate assistants; he has also conversed with high ranking officers of the army of occupation. The theme, of course, has been "collaboration" in its varous aspects. There is a tendency here tonight to decry rumors that "collaboration" has reached a turning point.

At any rate, the Paris press—a useful barometer but not invariably accurate—is silent on the subject today. Nevertheless it continued to call for reconstruction of the cabinet.

Fliers, Firemen Fail to Find Plane Reported Crashed

Two Army planes from Bolling Field and four volunteer fire department rescue squads searched an area near Beltsville, Md., last night unsuccessfully for an airplane reported to have crashed.

The search was abandoned about 11 p. m. The report came from a resident of the community, who telephoned Bolling Field that a plane went down 2 miles east of College Park and 1 mile east of Beltsville at 8:07 p. m.

Fred Schromm, who operates an airfield in the vicinity, said he landed a plane there about that time and the landing might have been mistaken for a crash.

A. F. L. Lives Up To Defense Pledge, Green Declares

Chicago, Aug. 7 (INS).—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared in a radio broadcast tonight that the national defense program, through the loyal support of American workers, "is now proceeding full blast, ahead of schedule, and beyond all expectations."

He recalled that last November the A. F. L. in its national convention at New Orleans, voted unanimously to support the Administration in the furtherance of the defense program and that he proclaimed at the time a policy of refraining from strikes which would impede defense production.

He said he had received figures from the War and Navy Departments and the OPM showing "that more than 99 per cent of the more than five million members of the American Federation of Labor have refrained from striking for any cause."

Foreign Legion Prays for Order to Fight Nazis, Veteran, Now in D. C., Declares

Commandant Z. Pechkoff, 26 years in the French Foreign Legion and now with his right sleeve empty, felt in Morocco two months ago that "it is a tragic thing to lay down our arms when our Allies are fighting." So he left. At present he is staying at the Brighton Hotel, California Street Northwest.

The officers knew he was going and there had been much talk for months that the Germans were using "compulsion"—Perchkoff considered the word, then affirmed it with his eyes—"on the French forces."

"Tell the Americans to come on," the Legion officers, and others besides those in the legion, told him to say.

They have wanted to fight, Pechkoff said here yesterday and for the first time in a long interview his eyes seemed to catch on fire. "We were all waiting for him (Gen. Weygand) to act. If he had just said 'I am fighting the Germans' we would have exulted."

Then Pechkoff, whose eyes narrow to slits when talking of some things, grew very calm again because he thinks the situation in France is "pitiful, pathetic," leaving him only the choice of offering his services to De Gaulle, an action already taken. He doesn't know where it will take him from here.

The legion and other French soldiers in Morocco think, Pechkoff said, "that everything must be done to keep Germany from winning because that would be the end of France." And the strength of the legion is dwindling as enlistments expire, with no rebuilding of the battalions. Its affect on morale is obvious, he said.

They put up with a lot they didn't like in Morocco, said the legionnaire. The Germans sent interminable "commissions" among them. What sort? Pechkoff was asked. He smiled.

"Economic commissions," he said. They occupied the best hotels and villas in Casablanca and people returning from vacations and trips had no place to stay. They went into "the marvellous library" and took away such literature as they didn't want read. "You know the way they start in," Pechkoff said. "They look into everything."

Contract Let For $602,106 ADA Houses

The Alley Dwelling Authority yesterday let a $602,106 contract to Victor R. Beauchamp, builder, for construction of 200 houses for defense workers and announced it would receive bids August 19 for 350 other defense dwellings.

The 200 houses contracted for yesterday will be built on a tract of land at Anacostia and Ridge Roads and East Capitol Street. The development will be known as Stoddert Dwellings and are intended for occupancy by civilian employes of the Navy Yard.

Each of the buildings will be of single-family, two-story design, to be in pairs or groups of four. Some will be of brick, while others will have exterior walls of asbestos siding or shingles.

Each dwelling will have a living room, kitchen and bath, but will range in size from one to three bedrooms.

The 350 homes to be contracted for later are to be known as Highland Dwellings and will be located on a tract of land bounded by Atlantic and Eighth Streets and Condon Terrace Southeast. Also to be occupied by Navy Yard workers, these houses will be of the same design as Stoddert Dwellings.

Industrial Index Now Reported At All-Time High

The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production reached an all-time high of 162 by the end of July, or 58 points above the level before the outbreak of war and 47 points above May, 1940, when the present defense program began, according to the monthly bulletin of the reserve board released yesterday.

Reviewing the business situation in its monthly bulletin, the board made these observations:

"The cost of living, which had shown little rise before March, advanced steadily thereafter and by July was about 5 per cent higher than in March and 8 per cent higher than before the war.

"National income payments by June had advanced to a rate of about 88 billion dollars a year, approximately 14 billion dollars, or 19 per cent higher than in May, 1940."

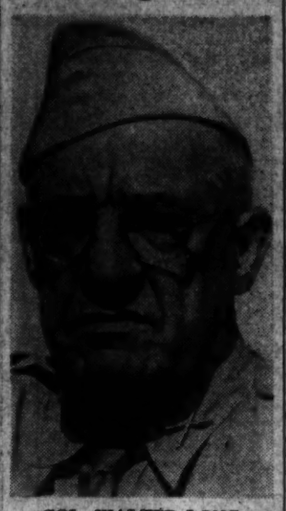
Long, a Villain In Films, 'Swell' As Camp Chief



COL. WALTER LONG
In a New Role

When a felon's not engaged in his employment, "or maturing his felonious little plan," then striking capacities for innocent enjoyment and hard work can, as W. S. Gilbert said to Sullivan, be quite expected.

The great old villain, Walter Long, whom the movies used to bring out whenever the world seemed turning too serenely, who was the terrible "Gus" in the "Birth of a Nation" and a terrific fellow in "Me, Gangster," "Robber Sheik," and "Blood and Sand," now commands the Washington Area Recreation Camp at the south end of Memorial Bridge.

In awe only of Lieut. Col. Long's silver oak leaves, all the soldiers making holiday at the camp weekends think he's swell.

Col. Long, heavy featured, strides about his camp, seeing that every mother's son of them has a comfortable bed, knows how to find the nearest dance, or a car to go to church in, if the visiting soldier chooses. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 200 pounds. He still can use his heavy mouth and malevolent eyes if the movies grow sick of sissies, "but I don't know now what might happen to us, six months or six years from now."

They called him to active duty last April. He had been a first lieutenant during the World War, and kept his commission in the 426th Field Artillery, a West Coast outfit. He had just finished a picture when called up and last week he went to Baltimore to see himself in "I Lived in Devil's Island" of the crime. A few minutes later, the helmet was placed on the head of each suspect. Then the girl walked within touching distance of the suspects. She turned her back to them and instructed that they extend their arms over her shoulder so she could see their hands from that position.

Girl Fails To Identify Attack Suspect

Without any sign of emotion, she looked them in the eyes over her shoulder and then scrutinized their hands. The girl was in that position when grabbed by her assailant and dragged into the woods. Then Keck ordered the men to repeat phrases spoken to the girl by her attacker: "My name's Joe—I work in a drug store."

When the girl walked away from the suspects, she slowly shook her head. Finally she said to Keck:

"I can't be sure." However, police said she strongly suspects the man arrested a few minutes after the assault by Twelfth Precinct police on Eastern Avenue near Monroe Street Northeast.

The girl was unusually composed, taking into account the ordeal she suffered at the hands of the attacker. Bluish-red marks were on her throat where she had been choked and her eyes were bloodshot. She is still under care of a physician.

After line-up, she said to a reporter: "It's so difficult for me to make an identification now. You see, I was so nervous—so baffled when it all happened."

The girl's father and mother were grave. The father, a high Government official, took intense interest in the proceedings and was in whispered consultation with Keck and Police Superintendent Brown several times. He later said:

"I'm sure the police will do everything in their power in this case. My daughter has suffered a most terrible ordeal." His eyes snapped with anger as he said it.

Sitting in front of the line-up stage were the girl, her parents, Maj. Brown and a group of newspapermen and other spectators. As the men were marched out on the stage, the girl, dressed in a blue sailor-designed dress, leaned forward. She seemed composed and looked at the men intently.

The girl, the nineteenth criminal assault case reported to police this year, was attacked while on her way to the riding stables near Rock Creek Ford Drive and Stevens Drive. She had alighted from a bus at Sixteenth Street and Fort Stevens Drive. The assailant, after asking her the location of an address, suddenly grabbed her and dragged her into the woods. He threatened her with a knife, tied her hands with her handkerchief and blindfolded her with a rag. Then he assaulted her twice.

Police late yesterday broadcast a lookout for the dealer who sold the attacker a bottle of wine. He had a bottle of wine

Tax Overhaul

Defeat by the House of the provision for mandatory joint returns by husband and wife means the loss of an estimated $300,000,000 of new revenue. Senator George, new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has therefore taken advantage of the opportunity to suggest a possible broadening of the income tax base in line with the President's last-minute recommendations to the House. It is a sound suggestion. If we are "on the brink of inflation," then in common sense we must seek to recapture in taxation the defense money which is being paid out for military production. Moreover, our income tax system is becoming more and more inequitable as income tax rates rise. We know perfectly well, too, that the defense program is going to call for still greater sacrifices in the years ahead. So we should be laying the foundation now for a much more comprehensive tax coverage. In the interest of fairness, Senator George also suggests consideration of a plan permitting all husbands and wives to split their income on a 50-50 basis and to return separate declarations as they already do in the nine community property States.

What is needed, in other words, is a thorough overhaul of our tax system. This is what Senator George has in mind. He thinks—and rightly—that the country should have a brand-new framework for its tax laws—one that could be adapted to varying revenue requirements by means of rate changes without constant alteration of the basic structure. Undoubtedly, taxpayers, whether individuals or corporations, can accommodate themselves to a much heavier tax load if they know in a general way what to expect from year to year, and if every group or class in the community has to bear its fair share of the whole tax load. Senator George will be performing a very valuable service as head of the Senate Finance Committee if he succeeds in impressing that lesson upon his colleagues.

Look Before Leaping

No satisfactory solution of the War Department's housing problem has yet been found despite the sharp criticism of the proposed 35-million-dollar building approved by the House. Some difficulties could be overcome by changing the location from the Arlington County Experimental Farm to the grounds of the Soldiers' Home in the District. Use of the latter site would not entail the building of a new bridge across the Potomac. Nor would it interfere with future development of Arlington Cemetery. But it would certainly necessitate widespread replanning of highways leading to the Soldiers' Home area. There is already a traffic bottleneck between Soldiers' Home and Piney Branch.

The simple fact is, of course, that any new building to house 40,000 persons will require extensive community planning far beyond the borders of the site it occupies. Downtown Washington underwent something of a revolution when the Triangle buildings were erected a few years ago. Together, these immense structures accommodate only about 22,000 Government employes. A project to house nearly twice that number cannot be properly regarded as a mere construction job. Rather, it amounts to the building of a new city. No such immense undertaking can be started on short notice without grave danger of making costly and regrettable mistakes.

As the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee begins to consider this project, therefore, the first question seems to be whether or not it is desirable to attempt the construction of a single office building for 40,000 persons anywhere. At present the War Department has about 24,000 employes. The total may be raised to 30,000 by the first of the year. Of course, no one knows what its personnel may number two, five or ten years hence. But it is not reasonable to suppose that it will permanently retain a staff of 40,000 persons, even if that figure is reached and passed in the present emergency. Why, then, should Congress authorize construction of a permanent building to house such an enormous number?

Most of the problems arising out of this proposed building would be solved in large measure by cutting down its dimensions. When that step has been taken the arguments for location of this important Government structure in the District will be greatly strengthened, for there is plenty of space here for buildings of moderate size. In any event, Congress ought to deliberate carefully before removing a department of the Government wholly outside the Capital. Certainly so grave a step should not be taken merely for want of adequate planning.

Protesting Too Much

The time has long since passed when the communiques of the German high command could be accepted at their face value. They did achieve a high degree of credibility in the fighting in the Low Countries and France last year and in the Balkans and Crete last spring, but in those blitz campaigns even the most fantastic claims had a way of coming true sooner or later. In the Russian war, however, the blitz has failed to follow the earlier pattern. In the seventh week of this battle, which is longer than any previous land campaign the Nazis have waged, the Russian army is still in the field, and not one of the major territorial objectives, namely Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow, has fallen into Hitler's hands. Yet the German public was told weeks ago that the Stalin Line had been smashed at all vital points, that Nazi troops were at the gates of Kiev and that the road to Moscow was open to them.

In these circumstances it is not difficult to believe that the Germans are bewildered and in a mood to disparage further Nazi claims. To offset this growing skepticism was the obvious purpose of the super-special communiques issued by the high command on Wednesday. Their reading over the radio was preceded by a fanfare of trumpets. That is no doubt why at the very outset emphasis is placed on the alleged fact that "Soviet leadership no longer possesses a reliable picture of the situation on their own front" and that the high command sticks "to the principle of unconditional truth."

Hitler appears to be protesting too much. Certainly it takes a large measure of credibility to accept the assertions that during the first six weeks 895,000 Russians were taken prisoners; that Russian dead and wounded are "many times" that number; 13,145 tanks and 10,388 pieces of artillery were captured and 9,082 Russian aircraft destroyed. The Germans are asked to accept these figures as gospel. Yet in the same breath they are informed that these staggering losses have not yet destroyed the Red army, but that what has happened up to now is only a stage leading up to "the beginning of new operations." In other words, the war in Russia goes on. And that for the German people is the unpleasant reality which overshadows all the claims of vast successes made by the high command of their army.

Waste Housing

The greater our involvement in the preparedness effort, the more difficult it becomes to distinguish between urgent and not so urgent defense requirements. This is particularly true of housing. How many of the new homes now going up all over the country are absolutely necessary? By one definition, all of them. For, according to many authorities, in the long run all housing is defense housing. Undoubtedly this view is socially admirable. It is based on the common acknowledgment that new or renovated homes for industrial workers, for farmers—in fact, for all the people—improve health, morale, efficiency, and so are a prime factor of defense. Logically, were this country operating on a peacetime economy, a housing boom would be not only socially desirable, but would be a potent stimulant of business activity.

Today we need no such stimulant. The obvious reason is that upon a peacetime economy we are having to superimpose the gigantic production requirements of a wartime economy. What this means in terms of public and private housing is partly shown by statistics of the United States Housing Authority and of the Federal Housing Administration. The USHA now has a public program calling for the construction of 101 projects to provide homes for 30,902 families engaged in defense work. Few will deny the urgency of most of such housing, though there have been and still are persistent stories of USHA houses completed long since and still waiting for occupants. Similarly the erection of privately financed FHA houses—125,000 of them since the beginning of the year—may be said to help solve the housing problem of many other defense workers. Whether all of the USHA and FHA housing is in fact absolutely necessary "defense" housing, as has been asserted, is something again. Certainly a considerable proportion of FHA houses and, indeed, other privately financed houses could be deferred without working undue hardship. And deferment would, of course, release for more urgent defense purposes construction materials, particularly metals, of which there is a serious shortage.

Advocacy of a cut in housing which would involve a clearer distinction between urgent and not so urgent requirements is bound to be a distinctly unpopular venture. Yet the National Committee on the Housing Emergency has courageously recommended a restriction of unessential housing during the emergency. Moreover, it has emphasized that deferred public housing and neighborhood rehabilitation projects should be a part of the reserve of construction which should be planned now to carry us through the period of postdefense adjustment. This standpoint seems eminently sound. It would take into account the prior needs of the moment and would provide an all-important cushion of building activity just when we shall need it—that is, during the reconstruction period. Intelligent planning of this sort is essential and ought to be most helpful in determining which housing is necessary now and which can be held off until there is less pressure on construction supplies.

Gravy In Defense

Even though the House sustained the President's veto of the defense highway bill by a margin of only two votes, its action is a refreshing contrast to the attitude of the Senate. In the Senate the debate was interspersed with wisecracks arising out of the fact that Republican Senator Vandenberg offered the only real defense of the President's veto message. The attempt of Mr. Vandenberg and a handful of colleagues to save 100 million dollars was treated as a joke. It was obvious, of course, that the majority of Senators were resorting to levity in order to minimize the pork-barrel smell of the legislation for which they intended to vote. That spectacle in the midst of a national emergency should give citizens all over the country something to think about.

It is a matter of good fortune that the House did not follow the Senate's lead. Slightly more than one-third of the Representatives present recognized that the formula under which Federal highway funds are usually allocated to the States is wholly inapplicable to the existing need for improvement of strategic roads. Confronted by a Presidential veto, the House agreed that this is no time to spend 125 million dollars to run gravy trails through all the States in place of the 25 million dollars' worth of strategic highway improvements requested by the President. In this instance, certainly, the House and the President have won an important victory over the spendthrift Senate.

We wish, however, that this victory for the policy of defense without gravy were far more sweeping than is the case. Today, moreover, the House Rivers and Harbors Committee will consider a suggestion by President Roosevelt that the St. Lawrence Seaway project be included in an omnibus rivers and harbors bill. Now there is very little difference between making a pork barrel out of a highway bill and coating the seaway bill with gravy in order to make it more palatable to legislators who are inclined to oppose it. The President is in a very weak position to resist the padding of appropriation bills by Congress when he encourages a very similar practice to secure favorable action on one of his pet measures. Having sustained the President's contention that strategic highways should be built only where they are urgently needed, the House would be well advised to cling to that principle by insisting that the St. Lawrence project stand or fall on its own merits.

Installment Credit

It is a pity that control of installment credit was eliminated, among other important things, from the price control bill. However, Price Administrator Leon Henderson in testifying before the House Banking and Currency Committee expressed his belief that the 1933 Emergency Banking Act gives the Federal Reserve Board power to curb installment buying. But he stated emphatically that if there were any doubt on that score, such authority ought to be written into the bill. The importance of such control has been emphasized for some time by Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Mr. Eccles' point is that it is essential as a curb upon inflationary spending and as a means of currently reducing nondefense consumption of defense materials while building up a backlog of orders for the post-emergency period. This should be obvious enough. An individual who pays $500 in taxes and buys $100 of defense bonds is not curtailing his consumption at all if he is able to obtain $600 of consumer credit.

Editorial Note—A cartoon appeared in the first run of this newspaper Tuesday entitled "A Hitler Hit," which bracketed Senator Wheeler and Col. Lindbergh with Hitler in an offensive manner. The cartoon arrived in this office in the form of a mat without an accompanying print. The mat was cast at a late hour and was inadvertently slipped into the first run. It was promptly withdrawn, however, and all the other editions, which represent by far the main bulk of our circulation, appeared with another cartoon in its place. This substitution is evidence of our good intent in the matter, but we would like to state our regret that the slip occurred.

Gallery Isolationists

"Isolationists held the floor during most of a recent debate on the draft extension bill in the Senate," reported The Post on August 5. And yet the ostriches complain of not having a fair deal in presenting their case.

The statement that "we haven't yet become a British colony" drew a wave of applause from the galleries; but there was no applause when the very proper retort was made that other Senators "do not wish to see us become a Nazi colony."

The shoutings of another isolationist Senator were "loudly applauded by the galleries" when he sought to make it appear that "more than 75 per cent of the people of this country" are opposed to the policies which the isolationists resist. It is rather strange, then, that the isolationist leaders lose every time the issue is brought to a vote in Congress.

Their fanatical supporters evidently pack the galleries, but they are not the people of the country, nor do they represent anything but a decided minority. On August 3 the American Institute of Public Opinion reported that a "survey begun in mid-July, just before Americans received the news of the Nipponese advance into Indo-China," showed that "62 per cent are willing to risk war with Japan to defend our Pacific interests, while 38 per cent would not go so far." Yet the assertion is made by an isolationist Senator that "75 per cent of the people of this country are united in their stand against any foreign war," and this is "loudly applauded by the galleries!"

The average, orderly citizen, wonders why so much indulgence is accorded this disorderly element especially in the matter of its demonstrations in the galleries of Congress. Perhaps in this the representatives of the majority opinion of the country show real wisdom, for they allow this minority to prove it is such by giving conspicuous exhibition of the sensational tactics that have always been the resort of those who have a consciousness that the predominant opinion is against them and who seek to compensate for certain defeat by preceding it with dramatic assertion and spectacular publicity. The formula "One with God is a majority," illustrates the extent to which this type of mind will go in order to claim that it and not the majority, no matter how large, should prevail.

Quality Losses

Much innocent merriment may be gotten from the literary contest between the G-rm-n censor in a place beginning with B, and the R-ss-n censor in a place beginning with M, located in countries bounded on the north by the North Pole and on the south by the South Pole. Their charming fairy tales are not only amusing, but give hope, since we may infer that many casualities must have resulted from fighting by millions of men over a two thousand mile front in the last six weeks. Especially sweet is the inference that most of the deaths must be amongst the blitz troops, the cream of the army. This quality element in the casualty list is not taken into account by the military theory that holds that an overwhelming attack is more economical of life than a long drawn out campaign. It may be true that fewer die; but only the bravest can form the spearhead of a blitz, and after the fanatics are liquidated, millions of draftees that don't want to fight are of little use. Thus, in the World War, by 1918, there was half-hearted resistance to the Allies because very few shock troops were left and, now, the same course of events is to be noted.

Fountain Swimming

After three years of earnest effort to stop the swimming in the fountain in Franklin Park by the Negroes and whites, I decided to write a letter to your paper on the subject. I have written to several United States Senators and as many members of the House regarding the violation of this law after having taken up the matter with the Park Commission several years, during which time no effort was made on their part to discontinue the practice. These Senators and members of the House have sent me copies of letters they wrote in my behalf but still the law is violated.

I have many letters from the acting superintendent of parks thanking me for my efforts to make this park a respectable place to go. Yet after three years the same conditions prevail every day.

We have no right to violate one law and at the same time enforce another which is not half as bad as the one violated. For instance, I have seen boys, who have fallen asleep on the benches, harshly treated by the park police. Boys perhaps hungry and out of employment, but yet these violations in the fountain are allowed year after year to go unnoticed.

It is a disgraceful state of affairs. I have petitioned residents residing on K Street regarding this. I have taken up the matter with the civic organizations in the community and signs were posted at the fountains: "No swimming, Police Dept." I have seen them pulled down and police go by leaving the violators unnoticed.

I now find my seat in Lafayette Park. It is further, but not so unsightly. JOHN P. WAGER.

Errors of Prophecy

It is too bad when our so-called "experts" let us down, but you were very gentle with Dorothy Thompson.

People who make predictions about love, politics, horse races, weather, ladies' hats, and war, are usually in line for a sudden letdown when and where they least expect it. The Literary Digest ran the following editorial gem, quoted in part from the issue of March 17, 1923: "Hitler's . . . aim in life is to parallel in Bavaria the Mussolini triumph in Italy by establishing a government of German Fascists, but the German republican press assure us that the Bavarian workers will have nothing to do with him or his followers."

We don't know whether it was because of St. Patrick's Day or because the Digest editor was influenced by an early Dorothy Thompson, but he made a wild swing and missed the ball completely. However, we shouldn't feel badly about such mistakes. We recall reading that the Germans would wipe up the Russians in a few days. We recall reading about Finnish democracy (we're still looking for it). We recall reading about the Bill of Rights, but 'Gene Talmadge showed us how a Cotton Belt Hitler could knock it for a loop and use it for a campaign doormat. We recall Carl Sandburg's unflattering opinion of the British government in an early poem, but pshaw! we carried a raincoat two days because the westherman said it was on the verge of pouring. Oil Shortage

Oil shortage, more oil shortage! The great hue and cry of today—the great exclamation point—and the great question mark!

How can we have a shortage in the face of the fact that it was just two years ago that the militia was called out in Texas to enforce on certain oil companies, by certain other oil companies, adherence to an agreement made among them to cut down oil production by an agreed percentage? And why was this done? Because too much oil was being dumped on the market—forcing the prices down. The oil barons' pockets were being squeezed. They could not buy yachts, they could not stage $5,000 parties, they could not pay off their henchmen, with the small pittance of only a few millions a year which flowed all too slowly into their pockets under such conditions. So the militia was called out. Oil prices must stay up at all costs.

And now, since we have developed a most alarming shortage just two years later (heaven knows where all that dreaded overflow of oil went in that time), though it costs no more to produce the oil than it did before the avowed shortage, the price of oil must go up still higher.

Well, I would like to ask a question just here, for to save me, I cannot find the answer alone.

How is the increase in price going to make more oil? I have spent hours turning this question upside down, inside out, and round about, and I cannot find an increase in the quantity of oil by the pouring of more dollars, dimes, nickels and quarters into the already overburdened pockets of the oil barons. And they would try to impress us with the fact that it is the shortage that matters!

It couldn't possibly be that men as "patriotic" as our oil barons—to whom nothing comes before their country's money, or any country's money—are finding a fatter and more lucrative market in their country's enemies!

One of these oil patriots told our representatives and guardians on Capitol Hill that "we have to see that Japan gets enough oil to fight us for two years at least if we go to war with her." And for that we must have an oil shortage at home!

Small-Loans Bill

Since the perennial small-loans bill again occupies the limelight, I believe it well to call attention to the fact that there are in this city 100 credit unions which serve the interests of their members by making small loans at interest rates of 1 per cent or less per month, including all charges. These organizations are incorporated under Federal or District law, are licensed, and are closely supervised and periodically examined.

Since the public seems interested in the provision of small-loan facilities at the lowest rates consistent with a fair return on the investment, it would appear that the services rendered by credit unions should be given proper recognition and that everything necessary to safeguard their existence should be done.

The proposed small-loans law has no proper application to credit unions, yet the bill now before the House excepts from its provisions only the 25 credit unions organized under District law and does not except the 75 credit unions organized under Federal law. The bill should be amended to exempt all credit unions from its provisions.

Jams What Am

Mrs. Roosevelt recently wrote in her column about being caught in a traffic jam, and no doubt in her frequent journeyings she has often been halted by various jams of the road. But I wonder if even Mrs. Roosevelt has ever been held up by a furniture jam? We were.

Rolling along a main highway in Vermont one night we came suddenly upon what appeared to be a kitchen and dinette in the middle of the concrete road! The principal items were a kitchen stove and a large table, arranged so that you could conveniently "dish up" from stove to table. We got out to investigate this domestic scene and presently a little roadster came backing up. From its open rumble-seat protruded a big, rolled up carpet.

A man and woman got out of the car, grabbed the table and heaved it in.

"Trouble with them rumble seats is they don't hold nothing," said the man in a bitter tone as he and his partner began lifting in the stove!

Once in southern France we were caught in a traffic jam most unusual for those comparatively carless roads. About 50 cars were lined up at a grade crossing, waiting for the "little train which wasn't there."

The gatekeeper was a middle-aged Frenchwoman who had wheeled the small gate across some time before the train was due. The train was, unhappily, long overdue. But that made no difference to the gatekeeper. Frenchmen swarmed out of their cars and argued frenziedly with her to let them across. But she shook her fist in their faces, pelted them with furious French, and clung to her gate. Never have we seen such gesturings. But all to no avail. Half an hour later the tiny train came tootling by, and in due time we got across the track.

"Of course the driving in Europe will be much easier than in this country," everyone told us, "because there are so few cars on the road." That was true, about the cars, but they didn't tell us about some of the other things found on the road: bicycles, four abreast, large bikes, small bikes, motor bikes, tandem bikes, tandems for pa and ma with tiny sidecar for baby! And the animals! The ducks and the chickens and the geese. We decided that if we ever went again we would have a sweeper attachment, on the front of the car to brush the animal life gently aside.

One of the most delightful delays we ever had was in a hilltop town in Italy. We had lingered long over our lunch at a small inn there because we'd been fascinated by the two schools of sphaghetti-eating that were being rather spectacularly illustrated at tables near ours. One was the aristocratic, or one-strand, tweak-and-twirl method; the other, the bend-over-your-plate-and-inhale-deeply method! When we finally tore ourselves away from this absorbing study and went out to our car we found one of the tires was flat.

It was the hour when the town was taking its siesta and we despaired of getting anyone to change the tire. But after some search we found someone. By this time the townspeople began coming awake and gathered round our car and chatted with us. Then they went back to their homes and brought out letters and photographs to show us from their kinfolk who had gone to America to seek their fortunes. We were delayed a long time, but never more pleasantly.

Worst delay we ever had was in Scotland. Our car had been quickly swung off the ship and placed on the tender to take us up the Firth of Clyde. Hardly had the wheels touched the deck of the tender than a Royal Auto Club representative stepped up and affixed the G. B. license plates, gave us our international driving licenses and the necessary foreign documents. As soon as we docked, we moved speedily through the customs, and then our luggage was brought out and deposited on the pier beside the car.

It was a choice collection: Bags that had seen better days, a small trunk, a camping stove, canned foods, four pairs of galoshes for Alpine wear, four raincoats, four umbrellas, extra coats, extra sweaters, extra blankets, old shoes for sightseeing wear, guidebooks, notebooks, novels, maps, papers, flashlights, thermos bottles, hotwater bottles, cameras, first-aid kits and even a compass!

A fascinated audience of well over a hundred people came to watch us load the car, so we packed very carefully, conscious that Americans were supposed to be models of efficiency. It was a nice-looking job, when all was done, considering the cargo, with just enough space left for the passengers to burrow into the car. We settled ourselves triumphantly and beamed at the populace.

"Now," said the driver, "Let me have the maps and driving papers here in front where we can study them."

The silence was overwhelming! Where were these important items? We began digging, frantically, pulling things out until the dock again became littered with luggage. Underneath the galoshes, at the very bottom, we finally found them. Meanwhile night had fallen and never was darkness more welcomed than by these efficient Americans as they hastily threw their impedimenta into the car and drove off in a flurry of gears!

An Inflation Check

By Ernest Lindley

Income Taxes at the Source

THE TREASURY'S tax anticipation notes, now on sale, are generally regarded in the Administration as a step in the right direction. The income tax payer, whether a corporation or an individual, can, in effect, start paying now taxes on this year's income. The reward is interest at a fair rate running until the tax payment is normally due next year and the tax anticipation note is turned in.

LINDLEY

The advantage to the Treasury is that the money comes in ahead of time and presumably at a more even pace than under the regular quarterly payment plan.

To a small degree this scheme may also serve as a brake on inflation. Families in the middle income groups especially are hit hard by the pending tax bill. The sooner they estimate the income taxes they will have to pay next year, the sooner they are likely to begin revising their family budgets. For many families this will mean spending less—as distinct from saving less. And, most economists agree, spending must be reduced, or at least restrained, from expanding too much if inflation is to be avoided.

OTHER EXPERTS, both in and out of the Administration, think, however, that the payment of income taxes in advance—or currently—should go much further. They favor compulsory collection at the source on a monthly basis. An employer would deduct the employe's income tax from his wage or salary check. The employe, of course, would have to inform the employer what exemption he is entitled to on account of dependents. It is argued that the bookkeeping would be relatively simple for employers who are already required to make deductions for social security taxes.

A similar arrangement is advocated for payments of dividends and interest, although here the bookkeeping might be complicated.

ON MARCH 15 the income tax payer would, as usual, make out his return, taking credit for the part of his personal income tax which already had been paid at the source. In some instances he might be entitled to a refund, but in most cases, especially of larger incomes, an additional tax would be due.

Such a plan was advocated before the House Ways and Means Committee by 178 economists who subscribed to the defense tax program out at Iowa State College.

Proponents of income tax deductions at the source believe the plan would be all the more desirable if the income tax is carried down to levels where it increasingly curtails carrying spending. In the upper income brackets the tax cuts chiefly into savings. Present or pending income taxes may compel a wealthy man to give up his yacht, to close an expensive summer home, or give up a few other expensive frills. But most of his tax probably will be paid out of what he otherwise would have saved and invested, rather than out of his standard of living.

IN FACT, most people who now pay income taxes also save money. And it is estimated that most of their increased taxes next year will be at the expense of their savings.

If exemptions are lowered substantially, however, the income tax will fall on large numbers of families whose incomes do not permit much saving. It will begin to cut more heavily into current spending. That is the main economic reason for lowering the exemptions. The alternative, as the President indicated, is a general sales tax or a flock of added "nuisance" taxes.

SALES and "nuisance" taxes have one important advantage: The money is taken away from the taxpayer and paid into the Treasury currently instead of next year. The temptation of the income tax payer is to pay his taxes out of next year's income. But the economists who are warning of inflation think we are now entering into the danger zone where consumer buying power must begin to be skimmed off.

Compulsory income tax deductions at the source, plus lowering of exemptions, would, they believe, go far toward heading off the danger.

The Once Over

Dear Nellie:

This is just to explain again that I am awfully sorry about getting mixed up and sending to President Roosevelt the love letter I meant for you, and sending you the protest witch I wrote for the President on account of a appeal from Senator Wheeler and witch I wish I had of ignored in the first place. Everybody has apolorized in this matter now, including the Secretary of War and me.

Do not worry about what Mr. Roosevelt will think about getting a letter from me addressed to "Darling Nellie" and signed with two rows of kisses as he will know it was a error, and even if he did not know this he wood be glad to get a letter from anybody these days that just expressed affeckshun and not a lot of complaining. You say I never should of wrote no letter in response to the Wheeler postcard and I admit it, but I was just in a writing mood that day.

Well I wish I could see you oftener Nellie dear and if I ever get out of here I will marry you like I said but you can forget all that stuff about a little house in the country becuz after all the walking I have done all I want after this is a flat right near a subway or a block from the office so I will never have to do much on foot again for the rest of my life. You here a lot of talk about this being a mechanical war but you can't tell this to me with my feet in the shape they are in. It is no more a mechanical war so far as I can see than the Revolutionary War and my part in it is done just the same as at Valley Forge, except at Valley Forge the grounds was harder and there was not so many potatus to peel.

What I wood give to be back in civilyun life where people still get a vacation in August! If you had of told me last summer I wood spend this summer without no vacation I wood of said you was crazy. In a army you get twice as much work in the vacation season as any other time and if you ain't come to a boil by noon you ain't rated as in perfect shape. If a jeep looks cool and dry all the officers get together and discuss whether to give him some new injections, change his diet, put him in the guardhouse or work him harder, and the last always wins.

There has been a lot of rain lately and I do not know witch is the worser, summer mud or spring and autumn mud, but I guess summer mud is more exciting as there are more turtles and snakes in it. Whoever said there was few snakes in America was nuts. I even found one in my bunk. In some of the mud I have been doing manoovers in lately I wood not be serprised to come up with a wild duck in my shoes. I got everything else in 'em, but my dogs is so numb they don't feel nothing no more.

Well, this is not much of a letter to you Nellie so I will close now just to say you are in my mind always even in the heat of mimic battle and that even at night when I am nursing my feet witch are so sore I ache all over I think of you dear.

With oceans of love,
Oscar.

Inflation Not Likely

By Mark Sullivan

People Are Not Over-Spending

A PRESENT REPORT of facts and appearances in the country's Capital City would say that there is no early likelihood of enactment of the price-control proposal in anything like its present form. Neither is there any present prospect of any other comprehensive and effective check to the price rise that is strongly under way. And a summary of the views of most experts would say that unless the price rise is checked, the country must experience inflation.

SULLIVAN

That adds up to a disquieting portent, it sounds like certainty of inflation. Yet the fact is, there is no prevailing serious expectation of inflation. Hardly anybody feels real dread of inflation. Certainly there is no such dread throughout the public.

This lack of serious expectation of inflation may not seem important. It may be argued that absence of fear does not prevent the fearsome thing from taking place—there are many examples of that in every area of life.

Yet in the field we are now talking about, the lack of apprehension is important, it is basic. So long as there is not apprehension of inflation, really violent inflation does not occur. Apprehension, fear, is the psychological factor in inflation, and it is an indispensable factor. Until fear exists, prices do not fly upward into the violent stage. The fear that comes is fear about the purchasing power of money. When that fear emerges, people hasten to get rid of money—it is called a "flight from money." People fear that the dollar in their pockets will not buy as much tomorrow as it will buy today. So they begin a headlong rush to get rid of money. They buy goods, and the aggregate of panicky buying of goods is the violent stage of inflation.

Nothing remotely suggesting that exists today. There is no widespread fear about the value of money, no unusual disposition to get rid of money. Of course the temperamental spenders are spending, as they commonly do when they have money. Just now, by reason of the war boom, they have more money than usual and their spending is conspicuous. This, however, is the normal thing that habitual spenders always do.

But the habitual savers are saying, as always: are putting their money into savings banks, life insurance policies, defense bonds.

At the present time, there is no real widespread fear of inflation. On the contrary there is a feeling that somehow the innate commonsense of the American people will prevent inflation from occurring. In the common talk that everyone hears about prices, there is found an instinctive and prevailing feeling that prices generally are too high, that they ought to be lower. Such a feeling, when widespread, commonly results in prices actually becoming lower. Such a feeling sometimes expresses itself in a "buyers' strike," and a buyers' strike usually stops the upward course of prices, turns it downward. Always there is a prudent section of the public who, when they think prices too high, refuse to buy. Sometimes these prudent ones save the country's economic structure.

During the Great War, the Vice President of the United States was Thomas R. Marshall. He is largely forgotten now—Vice Presidents do not ordinarily have much opportunity to make themselves remembered. But Marshall is remembered for an offhand sentence he once uttered, which soon was on practically every lip. Marshall said, "What this country needs is a good 5-cent cigar."

Just what was the year Marshall said that, I do not recall. I wish someone would identify it—the research would not be difficult, for the remark was printed over and over in newspapers and periodicals. It will turn out, I think, that the time of Marshall's dictum was the stage of the World War analogous to the present stage of the present war—the stage in which prices of everything soar upward.

Had Marshall's remark been a mere wisecrack, a "gag," it hardly would have attracted the attention it got. Said at that particular time, Marshall's brief sentence was a profound economic truth. It meant that the country needed a lower price level for everything. It was a symbolic condensation of a sound economic creed, good goods at reasonable prices. That the country applauded Marshall's adage and repeated it, seems proof that the country recognized economic truth. This instinctive popular recognition of what is economically sound may account for the feeling today that prices are too high, that they ought to go lower, that somehow they will go lower, that there will not be inflation. A lower price level came in due course after Marshall's remark. History may repeat itself.

What is said here is not intended as an assertion that inflation will not take place. Maybe a wiser use of the newspaper space in which this article is printed would be to give solemn warning of the danger of inflation. There was the boy who cried "wolf," and there were his cheerful contemporaries, pollyannas, who said, "Oh, that's just the same old cry." This column has no wish to start a counter-"wolf" propaganda.

On the contrary, if the some six or seven hundred words here printed were required to be condensed to 21, probably the most valuable use of the space would be to say:

"Practically all the conditions that compose a perfect setup for inflation (excepting the psychological factor) exist in the United States today."

Pick Up A Passenger

DRIVING to the office today, George Spelvin, American, felt a glow of patriotism as he thought of Harold Ickes' appeal to the people of the seaboard to use less gasoline and determined to do his bit for his country in this matter, regardless of his opinion of Mr. Ickes, which is not idolatrous. Accordingly, Mr. Spelvin decided that, for the moment, there was no more effective way open to him than to lift another patriot on the way to work, thus saving the fuel which a taxi or bus might consume in toting that particular passenger a problematical distance. He had read somewhere that Mr. Ickes had urged loyal citizens with cars to pick up others along the way and it seemed to him that this would be the most pleasant branch of the national defense.

Soon after turning the corner from home, Mr. Spelvin saw an attractive young woman waiting on a corner and he was just mentally fixing to pull up with a polite greeting when it suddenly occurred to him that his motives might not be understood. Therefore, feeling that he was a bit of a coward in the face of public opinion and had shirked a patriotic duty, Mr. Spelvin stepped on the gas just in time to catch out of the corner of his eye the fading radiance of something that plainly had been a very pleasant smile of acceptance from an unusually nice little number.

HOWEVER, he was now pretending that there had been no intent whatever in his little maneuver toward the curb and he drove on, mentally booting himself in the flask and speculating whether she was married and if so whether her husband was a big, dumb, jealous brute or some weedy little squirt who would just happen to be looking out a window and take the number of his car and raise a disgusting row.

Or, Mr. Spelvin thought, he might have fallen to talking and discovered that she was a friend of a friend of his ever-loving War Department and the talk might have got around that he was in the habit of picking up cuties for reasons of his own and using as a mere excuse the plea of patriotism, which, of course, has been called the last refuge of the scoundrel and undoubtedly is, although not in all cases. Or perhaps he would have said he was planning to do this every day now, going to and coming from work, both, and she might have volunteered to collaborate fully in this fine loyal program and the silly little thrip might lose control of herself and jump off some bridge or take gas or something, on realizing that it never could be, and cause an awful mess of publicity and a terrible misunderstanding at home. Things do happen that way.

AS Mr. Spelvin drove along, regretting his lack of patriotic courage, he saw a colored man in overalls who actually gave him the thumb, but he was really so deep in his thoughts that he slid right by without thinking. And, on the next corner, he saw an elderly woman whom he recognized as a gabby old bag who was always on committees and very unreserved in her discussion of her trips, which topic not only bored but actually displeased. So Mr. Spelvin passed her up, too, telling himself that not even Ickes himself would expect that sacrifice and that, if so, he would be glad to send Mr. Ickes her name and phone number and let him do the fetching.

He thought he could wish neither of them worse luck, and his conscience let him off because, after all, the actual crisis was still far overseas. If it ever came down to a real national emergency, why he, George Spelvin, would do his duty loyally. But for the moment things were not that urgent.

STILL Mr. Spelvin accused himself of sacrificing the national interest for his own reputation and peace of mind when a true citizen ought to brave the jeers of the rabble in a time of national peril and even go to his grave dishonored for his loyal convictions and wait for history somehow to vindicate him one distant day. Thereat his body would be moved to Arlington and his memory honored in death with a beautiful, terse quotation, cut in stone . . .

At this point, only a few blocks from the office, Mr. Spelvin, on the bold impulse of the brave man, suddenly whipped over to the curb and singled out a lady maybe 35 and neither chicken nor ostrich, and was just about to invite her aboard when the lady called him all kinds of a word ending in "ouse" and a silly looking ape and told him to be missing or she would slap him lopsided. Brother, she told him.

Arriving at the office five minutes later, Mr. Spelvin introduced the subject of Mr. Ickes and his fuel economies and said he thought it was all a lot of propaganda and, moreover, this pick-up-a-passenger business was absolutely immoral and going to cause a crime wave, including blackmail, sure as hell.

Vichy's Answer, Thailand's Plight

IN A SHARPLY worded statement issued on August 2, Sumner Welles, then Acting Secretary of State, took the Vichy government strongly to task for the policy it has pursued with respect to Indo-China and pointedly asked what Vichy proposed to do in the way of defending the remaining portions of the French Empire.

NOVER

"In its relations with the French government at Vichy," said Mr. Welles, "and with the local French authorities in French territories, the United States will be governed by the manifest effectiveness with which those authorities endeavor to protect these territories from domination and control by those powers which are seeking to extend their rule by force and conquest, or the threat thereof."

Back of that statement were the persistent reports that Germany has been putting pressure on Vichy to turn Dakar over to her and the strong possibility that Vichy might comply. It is to be noted that in stating the American position Mr. Welles made a distinction between "the French government at Vichy" and the "local French authorities in French territories." He was clearly suggesting that if these local authorities resisted Axis pressures, though Vichy itself was compliant to Hitler's wishes, we would support these local authorities even while, at the same time, breaking with Vichy.

VICHY'S REPLY has now arrived in Washington. The text has not yet been published. But it has been revealed that Vichy has informed the United States that France will defend her empire in her own way.

This is clearly equivocal. Vichy has sometimes "defended" the French Empire in very strange ways. It "defended" Indo-China by turning that rich colony over to the Japanese. It defended Syria, first by permitting a steady infiltration of Axis agents and then by forcibly opposing a British attempt to prevent the Nazis from using Syria as a base of operations against the Suez Canal. It may similarly "defend" Dakar by inviting the Germans.

As long as the bulk of the German army and air force are busy in Russia a Nazi attempt to seize Dakar would be premature. But Hitler is not letting any grass grow under his feet. The very fact that his timetable has gone awry in Russia makes it all the more necessary for him to move fast in establishing himself in North and West Africa when such action becomes possible. That is why Vichy must be lined up in advance.

THERE HAVE been reports from Vichy that Marshal Petain and his colleagues are resisting Nazi demands for a Franco-German arrangement with regard to Dakar similar to the Franco-Japanese arrangement that has been made regarding Indo-China. This may be so. The people of France are overwhelmingly on the side of the British in the present struggle and would not take kindly to a further betrayal of French interests by the men of Vichy. Furthermore, there is the possibility that Vichy must reckon with that the local authorities in French Africa may not be as compliant to Hitler's wishes as Vichy itself.

On the other hand it is an ominous circumstance that concurrently with the effort to reassure the United States regarding its determination to defend the French Empire, the Vichy government has increased the authority of Admiral Darlan, whose Quisling proclivities have long been manifest. He has now been made the superior of Gen. Weygand on all matters of policy affecting French Africa. Hitherto largely free to act on his own Weygand is being reduced to the status of a glorified bureaucrat. This is a truly ominous development.

IN THE MEANTIME the fruits of Vichy's surrender of Indo-China to Japan are now being garnered. Japanese pressure on Thailand is steadily increasing. There is a possibility that Thailand may surrender peacefully. Even should she decide to resist there is a question whether Great Britain could and the United States would provide her sufficient help to make an effective stand possible. And if Thailand is overrun by Japan the latter would be in possession of a strategic area of very real importance.

Japan may be frightened off from further aggressions by the threat of economic sanctions which the United States and Great Britain together with the Dutch East Indies are now in a position to put into effect. The chances are against it, although the application of these sanctions might, in the long run, ruin Japan. What would have more of an effect on Tokyo would be a real show of force. In that connection it is very significant, indeed, that two American cruisers are visiting Australia at this time and that the United States has agreed to lift all barriers on the purchase by Russia of essential supplies in this country. For the first time since she embarked on her aggressive course Japan faces a truly formidable coalition.

IT IS DOUBTFUL whether, under existing circumstances, our economic aid to Russia can be of a kind, in sufficient volume and be sent with sufficient dispatch to have any direct bearing on the outcome of the present battle in European Russia. That aid can, however, be immediately helpful in strengthening Russia's position in the Far East. Japan could hardly afford new aggressions in the south while (1) Russia is still undefeated in Europe, and (2) Russia's defenses in the Far East are strengthened. The threat to Japan from the direction of Vladivostok cannot be removed by the occupation of Bangkok.

The menace which we face is a menace that extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Our foreign policy must, perforce, be global in its scope. Those who, on ideological grounds, balk at the economic assistance we are planning to render Russia are ignoring the nature of the present crisis and its extent. They are dupes of their own ignorance.

Old-Age Pensions of $42 a Month for Single, $73 a Month for Married Persons Are Favored

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 7.—The perennial issue of Government old-age pensions may be thrown in Congressional laps shortly as the result of hearings now being conducted by a special Senate committee under Senator Downey, of California. Washington observers report that the committee is virtually certain to recommend a liberalization of the pension system, and predict that a bill supported by Dr. Townsend or some similar measure may reach a vote in the Senate.

In such circumstances no question is more timely than to ask: Where does the American public now stand on old-age pensions? Is the public satisfied with the amounts granted to needy citizens at the age of 65? What sums would be paid if the general public set the scales?

As the pension question boils to the top once more, a Nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates:

1. That the vast majority of citizens (more than 90 per cent) approve of the basic principle of Government - administered pensions. In the last decade the idea that old-age security is a Federal responsibility has apparently taken firm hold.

2. While the public shows dissatisfaction with the amounts now being paid to needy old people (present amounts average about $28 a month for the country as a whole) the typical American's idea of what his Government should pay is a moderate one.

Nor have the public's sums increased substantially over the past five years, despite rising costs of living, comparison with earlier Institute studies shows.

3. Far from indorsing schemes like California's recent drive for "Thirty Dollars Every Thursday," the average American sets a figure in the neighborhood of $42 a month for single persons and $73 for married couples.

4. Finally, the public believes that citizens should become eligible for old-age pensions at the age of 60 instead of 65, as now provided by the Social Security Act.

7 Per Cent Oppose Pensions

In the preliminary question the Institute asked: "Are you in favor of Government old-age pensions?" From a cross-section of men and women in the United States voting population came the replies:

Favor Government Pensions	91%
Oppose Government Pensions	7
Undecided	2

Asked at what age pensions should begin, most voters named 60 years of age:

Should begin before 60	17%
Should begin at 60	47
At 61 or later	36

The survey voters were then asked: "What do you think is the smallest income per month that a single person over 60 needs for a decent living in your community?" And a similar question was asked regarding married couples over 60.

Sectional Opinions

Here are the sectional medians for single persons and married couples on the basis of replies from the voting population—those who can make their opinions felt at the ballot boxes:

National average	$42	$73
New England	50	78
Mid-Atlantic	50	78
East Central	42	74
West Central	37	59
South	33	59
West	48	76

Broken down by age-levels, the medians are:

	Median Monthly Sum for Single Person	Median Monthly Sum for Married Couple
Voters aged 21-34	$48	$77
Voters aged 35-44	46	74
Voters aged 45-59	41	73
Voters aged 60 and over	40	62

Among other groups the highest medians for a single person were set in the upper income group ($49 a month) and among people living in cities of more than 100,000 population (52). Lowest medians for single persons came from the bottom income groups and from farmers in general.

TOMORROW—Does the public favor old-age pensions for all older people, or only for those in greatest need? Looking ahead of their own old age, how much would the public be willing to sacrifice now to insure themselves of a pension?

Today's News Sidelight

Brisbane, U. S. Sailors' Host, Looks, Acts Like American City

United States sailors given shore leave at Brisbane, Australia, while their two heavy cruisers refueled, might think they were in Miami, Fla., or some other southern American city, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Although its streets and buildings have British names," the bulletin adds, "Australia's easternmost port has an American appearance. Back of the picturesque Brisbane River, which the city straddles about 14 miles from the sea, are warehouses, neat packing plants, and factories. Beyond them, in an amphitheater formed by a half dozen hills, tall, modern business buildings rise where a century ago black men pitched their camps.

Carnival Day For U. S. Ships

"As capital of the State of Queensland, Brisbane is the site of a Parliament House, a Treasury and other imposing government structures. Dominating its skyline is the tower of the colonnaded City Hall. It is 320 feet high, nearly as tall as St. Marks campanile in Venice.

"When units of the United States Fleet made a good will visit to Brisbane last March, the City Hall was one of the most gaily decorated buildings. Red, white and blue bunting and American and British flags decked the entire business district. Crowds gave the white-clad sailors an enthusiastic welcome, throwing confetti and streamers as the men paraded. At a luncheon the Lord Mayor told the visitors:

"'Apparently it is not only a common language we possess, because I think we in Australia speak your "slanguage" just as much as you do.'

Port Serves Vast Ranch Area

"Florida's subtropical atmosphere is noted in Brisbane's rows of rustling palms, its flowering acacias, mangrove and poinciana trees. Roses bloom throughout the year in the extensive system of public parks, which attracts the city's 325,000 residents. In October blossoms of Jacaranda trees bathe the streets in purple.

"Nearest Australian port to the United States and the Panama Canal, Brisbane serves a vast inland region where great herds of cattle and sheep graze. Its factories process and refrigerate meat and other foodstuffs, make clothing and turn trees into lumber and hides into leather. Thousands of bales of wool are stored in the waterfront warehouses, and sacks of sugar are piled high on the piers. All these products are shipped from a huge horseshoe-shaped quay where normally ships of many nations are tied up."

Staples Gets Recipe For Potatoes Souffle

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor

A PLANE ride from New Orleans to Atlanta in quest of a recipe may seem unusual to some, but not for Clarence Staples. It is the three F's—Finance, Food and Fishing—not the usual three R's that "Stap" knows by heart.

The financial world claims "Stap's" attention by day, since he is identified with the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. But once the problems of finance are settled, fishing and food hold his attention as hobbies.

Martha Ellyn

New Orleans is a place celebrated for its distinctive food. In fact, it was because of the delicious potatoes souffle served at Arnaud's in New Orleans that "Stap" took off for Atlanta from New Orleans. Count Arnaud is known the country over for the delightful food he serves at his New Orleans restaurant. But the Count guards zealously some of the recipes of his cuisine and did not yield to Stap's entreaties for the way to make the potatoes souffle.

Undaunted by this denial, Mr. Staples began casting around in other directions for the recipe. He recalled that a fellow worker in the Securities and Exchange Commission, located at that time in Atlanta, knew how to make this food. So he hopped off for Atlanta to have a personal showing in making the lowly potato into something he thought superb. And the following were his findings:

Potatoes Souffle—Peel potatoes and slice crosswise thickness of ⅛ inch. Fry in deep, hot fat, but not smoking-hot, until blisters start appearing. Take from fat and place on absorbent paper. Do not pile slices on top of each other. Place in refrigerator on the paper for overnight. When ready to serve, place the potatoes in deep, hot fat and fry as for French fried potatoes. The potatoes will puff when placed in the hot fat.

It is not for potatoes souffle alone that "Stap" remembers Arnaud's, of New Orleans. "Shrimp Arnaud, a zestful appetizer, is also a food I remember with great pleasure," says this gourmet. "The secret of its success is the mustard used. It is known as Pa-poose and is prepared by E. A. Zatarian & Sons, New Orleans, from Trieste mustart seed, distilled vinegar, salt and mustard." Once you have obtained the mustard, Mr. Staples says, you can use the following recipe:

Shrimp Arnaud—Use 2 pounds of cleaned, fresh shrimp. Mix 1 cup French dressing with 3 tablespoons mustard and "slosh" the shrimp around in the mixture, allowing it to stand in it overnight. Add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 3 tablespoons chopped celery and 2 tablespoons chopped chives or onion tops. When ready to serve, place the shrimp on a bed of chilled, chopped lettuce and dip the shrimp onto the lettuce. "That is the real McCoy in the way to serve shrimps," says Mr. Staples.

"String beans prepared in the Creole way is also a dish that can be made now that the markets are offering excellent beans," was a suggestion of Mr. Staples. This is the recipe he uses in preparing this nutritious dish:

Creole String Beans—Brown 1 tablespoon minced onion and 1 tablespoon green pepper in 2 tablespoons butter; combine with 2½ cups cooked green beans, 1½ cups cooked tomatoes, ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper and place in a buttered baking dish. Top with 8 crumbled soda crackers and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons grated American cheese. Bake, covered, in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 15 to 20 minutes or until cheese is melted and lightly browned. Serves six.

But all the dishes in Mr. Staples' repertoire are not of Creole origin. California-born is Mr. Staples—from Fresno, in San Joaquin Valley—so in true California fashion he suggests dishes prepared from the native foods. California tongue is such a dish because it is prepared with California seedless raisins and stuffed olives. For those who like beef tongue the following recipe of Mr. Staples will be a find:

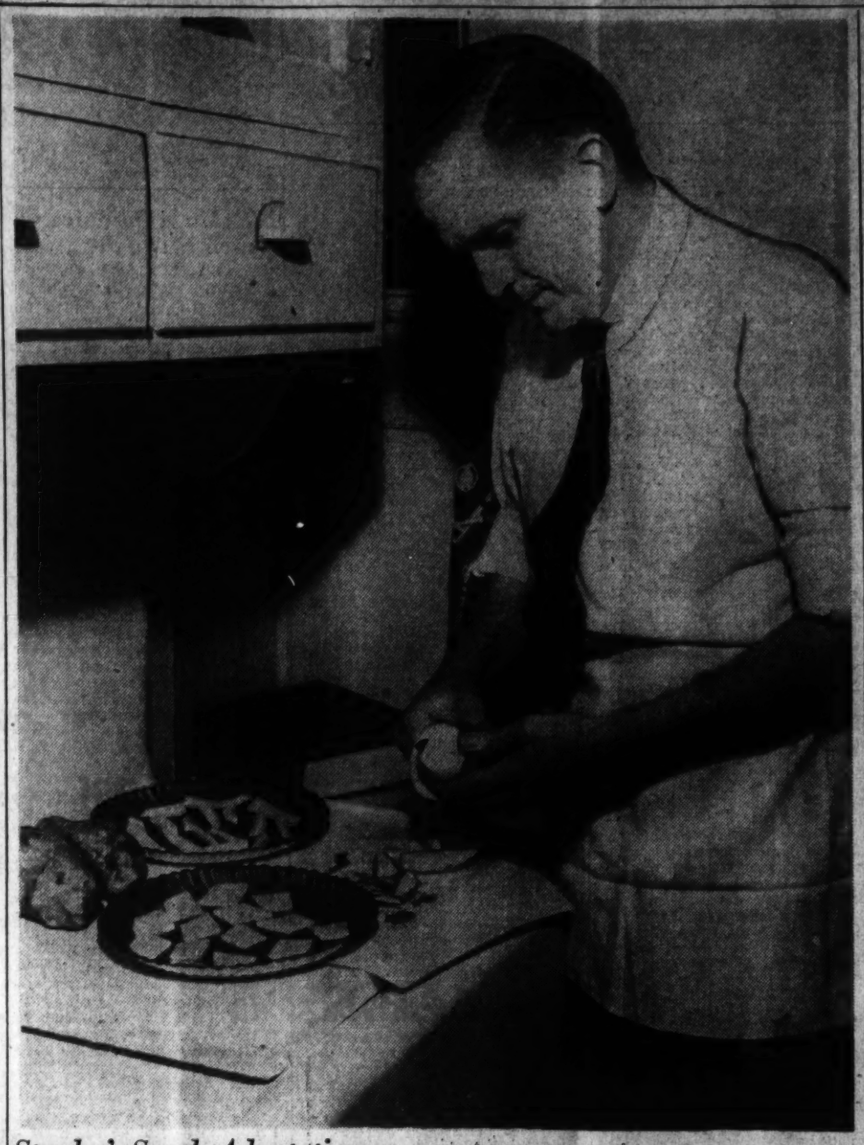
California Tongue—Wash one fresh beef tongue thoroughly. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Plunge into cold water and let stand about 5 minutes. Remove and skin. Cut off the root. Heat 1-3 cup salad oil in a skillet and cook 1½ cups chopped onions and 1 clove garlic until brown. Add 1 cup seedless raisins and cook for 5 minutes, stirring well to coat them with oil. Add 3 cups tomatoes, 1-3 cup chopped green chili pepper, ½ cup sliced stuffed olives and 1½ teaspoons salt and bring mixture to a boil. Cook for 5 minutes. Place tongue in a roasting pan and pour the sauce over it. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about an hour.

"McGinties" is a traditional pioneer Western recipe that Mr. Staples says is made with dried apples. The recipe follows:

McGinties—Wash 1 pound dried apples and soak overnight in water to cover. Cook until very tender in water in which they were soaked, adding water if needed. Press through a colander; add 1½ cups light brown sugar to make sweet and rich; also ⅛ teaspoon salt and 1½ tablespoons cinnamon; cook until thick, stirring constantly toward the last to prevent scorching. Line the bottom and half-way up the sides of a dripping pan with pastry, dot liberally with butter, cover with pastry into which a design has been cut to allow escape of steam. Press edges together and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, for 10 minutes; reduce heat to moderate, 350 degrees, and bake 20 to 25 minutes longer, or until crust is done. Cut in squares and serve warm or cold. Serves 12.

Mr. Staples doesn't go into the food subject by halves. Among his food books—in addition to a number of cookbooks—he has Bitting's "Gastronomic Bibliography," "Cooking and Dining in Imperial Rome"—originally written by Apicus and put into English by Joseph Domers Behling—and the Encyclopedia of Food. Mr. Staples is especially enthusiastic about this encyclopedia, for the great volume of 596 pages contains not only complete and authoritative information concerning food, but is generously illustrated with attractive color plates. This book was written by Artemus Ward. Mr. Staples relates that he was unable to secure this book for a number of years, although he searched in bookstores from the East to the West Coast. But recently the encyclopedia has been republished by Peter Smith, and "Stap" had his money on the dotted line so as to possess one.

Martha Ellyn will be glad to answer inquiries concerning food. Write her for advice.



Staples' Spud Adaptation

Clarence Staples (above) peels potatoes, making them ready for Potatoes Souffle. Next he will cook the slices in deep hot fat and then put them into the refrigerator for conditioning. Later he will fry the potatoes in deep fat for the second time, when they will emerge all puffed to the delicate crispness for which they are famous. When cooking is the thing, the Encyclopedia of Food, so revered by "Stap," is sure to be close, as is shown in his kitchen

Outdoor Meals Can Be Fun At Any Hour of the Day

Stay in your own backyard and cook a meal. That's the way that America is taking some of its meals. And now that we have a "curfew" on gasoline perhaps picnic activities miles from home may be a thing of the past. But with the interest in out-of-door fireplaces fun and outdoor cooking can go on just the same.

Some energetic persons have built their own fireplaces from a few bags of concrete, sand, some lengths of iron pipe for the grill, a couple of sections of flue lining and a bit of elbow grease.

But if you don't want to spend energy building a fireplace, there are many types of portable stoves, some priced as low as a few dollars. And if you want to pack them into your car for a picnic or camping trip, they can be folded compactly to take up little space.

Once you have the cooking equipment there is the food to be considered. Broiled steak is one food that is hard to beat, but there's monotony to any food that is repeated too often.

A thick slice of ham steak, well cured and properly grilled, will make mouths water in just as good fashion as a porterhouse or tenderloin steak. Try frying eggs in butter to eat with the ham. And home-fried potatoes, too, are a treat to fresh air appetites. They can be fried fresh or boiled and then browned in butter to a yummy crispness. Crisp fried bacon, too, is an ideal food for this type of cookery.

There's no reason why out-of-door meals should be indulged in only for the evening meal. Corn cakes, crumb griddle cakes, and other breakfast specials will be eaten with gusto out in the open spaces.

Sour-milk griddle cakes is one variety of breakfast cakes whose popularity seems to go on forever. Here is a recipe for making them:

Sour-Milk Griddle Cakes—Beat 2 eggs well and add 2 cups of buttermilk or sour milk and beat thoroughly. Sift 1 tablespoon sugar with 1¾ teaspoon soda, 3 cups floor and beat into the liquid. Lastly, add ⅛ cup melted butter. Cook on a hot griddle and serve immediately. Plenty of melted butter, maple sirup, and honey should be at hand, for these cakes are usually eaten by the "carload."

Corn cakes too lend themselves to easy making. Here is a recipe for making them:

Corn Cakes—To 1½ cups boiling water, add 1 cup corn meal. Boil for 5 to 6 minutes. Sift together 1½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons baking powder. Stir ½ cup brown sugar into 1½ cups milk. Add to corn meal mixture and then add the dry ingredients. Stir in 2 well beaten eggs and 1½ cups of melted butter. Beat well and cook on a hot griddle.

Medley in Fruit

Quick! Before the heat waves pass and the approaching fall sends you tearing up to the attic for that old Scotch sweater, try this fruit medley.

Fruit Dip—Mix 1 cup raspberries, 1 cup sliced peaches, 1 cup sliced apricots, ½ cup whipped cream, 2 tablespoons orange juice and ¼ cup strained honey together. Chill thoroughly and serve in chilled cups.

Summer Fruits For Cool Drinks Are Reasonable

This has been a summer when our thirsts have craved relief. It is a very simple matter to serve up a trayful of frosty-cool drinks, if you know your ingredients.

Summer fruits are both plentiful and reasonable in price, so with the fruit at hand all that is necessary is to let the imagination go unhampered and turn out some delicious "coolies."

Peaches combined with ice cream and ginger ale make a soothing, satisfying drink. Here is a recipe for making Peach Ginger Frost.

Peach Ginger Frost—Mash ¾-cup sliced peaches with a fork and add sugar to taste. Place in 6 glasses and add ½-pint peach or vanilla ice cream. Fill the glasses with ginger ale. Makes 6 servings.

With blueberries in such profusion, they can contribute to the summer's beverages. Teamed up with lemon ice, they make a distinctive drink. This is the recipe for making the drink:

Blueberry Lemon Freeze—Combine 1 cup blueberries, ½-cup water and ¼-cup sugar in a saucepan and cook for 3 to 5 minutes or until the blueberries are soft, stirring occasionally. Pour through a sieve and press out all of the juice. Chill. Put ½-pint lemon ice into 6 glasses and pour in the blueberry mixture. Fill glasses with carbonated water. Makes six servings.

Red raspberries, too, can contribute to the line-up of delicious-to-see, delicious-to-drink beverages. Here is the simple recipe:

Frosted Tea—Brew 5 cups hot tea. Add ¼ cup coarsely cut mint leaves to the hot tea and mix well. Let stand for 1 to 2 minutes and strain. Add sugar if desired. Chill. Put 1 pint orange ice into six glasses and add the tea. Garnish with orange slice, maraschino cherries and sprigs of mint. Makes six servings.

Lowly Peanut Gets Ranking As Delicacy

Even in a democracy it's a tough, hard climb to recognition for the lowly born—no matter what their merit. Take the peanut, as meritorious a bean as ever sprung from a seed, and yet because it is associated with carnivals and circus tents and gaping mouths in zoos, nobody takes it seriously. It is unjustly viewed largely as an appendix to a heavy meal—a nickel misspent in a moment of exhilaration that you realized later had nothing to do with hunger pangs.

In our fight against fascism we champion the humble, the wronged. We right injustice. We start with the peanut, from which nutritious peanut butter is made. Try the recipes that follow and you will understand why.

Peanut Butter Muffins—Combine and sift ½-cup corn meal, 1 cup flour, 3 teaspoon baking powder, 1 tablespoon sugar and ½-teaspoon salt. Add 3 tablespoons peanut butter and ¾-cup milk, stirring just enough to make a smooth batter. Fold in one well beaten egg. Bake in well greased muffin pans or in loaf pan, and top with small pieces of sliced bacon.

Peanut Butter, Fig and Raisin Sandwiches—Wash ¼-cup figs and ¼-cup raisins and put through a food-chopper. Add ½-teaspoon salt, ½-cup peanut butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons light corn sirup and mix well. Use between thin, buttered slices of bread.

Peanut Butter Cookies—Sift ½-cup brown sugar and ½-cup granulated sugar. Beat ½-cup butter until soft and add sugar gradually, blending ingredients until they are creamy. Beat in 1 egg, 1 cup peanut butter, ½-teaspoon salt and ½-teaspoon soda. Add 1½ cups bread flour (sifted before measuring) and ½-teaspoon vanilla. Roll the dough into small balls and place them on a greased tin. Press them flat with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees for about 15 minutes.

Refrigerator Cake Convenient, Easy

The refrigerator is a friend to the homemaker at any time. But especially during days such as Washington has experienced this summer is it an essential in the preservation and preparation of food.

To be able to prepare a dessert one day, tuck it in the refrigerator and serve it the next day, is a great convenience. Chocolate Milk Refrigerator Cake is such a dessert. If it is a rich dessert that will fit into the menu the following recipe will supply it:

Chocolate Milk Refrigerator Cake—Crumb 1 dozen graham crackers thoroughly. Cut or chop 1 cup nutmeats, 1 cup dates and 16 marshmallows. Mix thoroughly adding ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons vanilla and 2-3 cup chocolate flavored milk. When thoroughly moistened, pack into a pan, lined with wax paper or make into a roll. Wrap well and place in refrigerator over night. Slice and serve with whipped cream. Serves 10 to 12.

Breakfast Cake With Blueberries

Get 'em up in the morning with smells, not sounds. The alarm clock, old Rusty Bustle, is out of favor. Economize on the family disposition this season by using a more subtle goad—a couple of open doors, a slight draft and blueberry breakfast cake in the oven. Follow this recipe:

Blueberry breakfast cake: Mix lightly 1½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ cup sugar, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 well-beaten egg, 2-3 cup sour milk (or buttermilk), 1 cup washed and drained berries and 4 tablespoons melted fat. Pour into shallow greased pan, cover with topping and bake. Serve hot, cut in squares.

Topping: Mix 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-3 cup broken nuts (optional) and ¼ teaspoon baking powder. Spread over breakfast cake and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Belgians Describe Getaway Under Cover of R. A. F. Raid

This is the fifth of a series of exclusive interviews in which two Belgian fliers, using the pseudonyms of "Jean Gevers" and "Jacques Dubois" to protect their relatives still in Belgium, tell the thrilling inside story of their spectacular escape to England in a stolen plane.

By Merrill Mueller

International News Service Staff Writer

London, Aug. 7.—With one attempt to escape in their stolen airplane foiled by a broken carburetor, the two Belgian air force pilots persisted in their attempts to leave their homeland to join the R. A. F. and continue to fight against Hitler.

Determined, after three months' work of making necessary instruments and preparing their stolen plane almost under the eyes and guns of German sentries, that they would fight with the Free Belgian forces, the pilots went to work to repair the engine's defect.

They knew that they had to make their final effort quickly and that if it failed they would probably be imprisoned, or shot.

By some miracle, the night they chose for their final effort of escape was picked by the R. A. F. to attack German installations in Belgium near Antwerp!

"Many nights we cursed the silence and worked carefully with shielded tools and padded equipment, but this night we could have worked with a steam engine," Jacques said. "The R. A. F.'s bombs and the antiaircraft defenses made a terrible din. Through the racket it was easy to get back into the barn and push our plane out again. For the first time there were no sentries anywhere nearby. They had gone further up the road near an antiaircraft battery."

"I got the plane into position once more and quietly persuaded some cows to get out of the way while Jacques managed a temporary repair to the carburetor. Then he announced himself ready and climbed into the cockpit. We didn't care this time whether the motor backfired or not, as long as it kept running, for the chances of it not being heard were excellent. The R. A. F. was giving the Nazis hell—and believe me, if I know my countrymen, all Antwerp rejoiced."

Quickly the boys took their places: Jean at the propeller and Jacques in the cockpit, for he had won the toss to do the piloting. They pinned their maps to the instrument panel, just refitted to the plane, opened the gas lines, and Jean threw the propeller with all his weight (128 pounds)

It Worked!

"The yell of joy Jean let out when the motor broke into life scared the devil out of me," Jacques said. "And that motor! I thought it would wake the dead!

"But Jean climbed into the front cockpit and I had the plane rolling, fast and faster, toward the end of the field before he could even catch his breath.

"No time to wait for the engine to warm or to test its revolutions; it had to get us off the ground or kill us.

"We just missed two cows and then sluggishly lifted and we neared the trees. Somehow the engine held on with the strain of a cold take-off, swept us through the top branches of the trees and we were clear. The landing gear picked up several branches to take to England as souvenirs!"

Jacques laughed but from his gestures you could picture the strain of trying to lift an untried airplane off a strange small field in total darkness while bombs and gunfire echoed through the night.

"We immediately climbed southward to 12,000 feet," Jean said, "to get clear of the raid. Then we turned and headed for England on a compass course set by our simple maps (copied from wall maps they had seen) and checked against our two stolen compasses. The home-made instruments worked perfectly and our airspeed indicator showed well above its highest danger point. As we crossed Belgium heading for the east coast of England, the R. A. F. raid died out and we flew along in the darkness intently listening to our engine beat.

Through the Guns Safely

"Three Nazi searchlights darted near us as we approached the coast but they failed to find us and no guns opened fire. But just as we crossed the coastline and headed over the sea, our engine started to fail!

"We lost altitude rapidly!"

Jacques continues the story of the flight:

"I yelled to Jean for the rubber tire tube we had prepared for such a situation and learned to my horror it had left behind! So I told Jean to stay on the wing and jump when we hit the water. I was going to stall the plane in and hope he could reach me in time to pull me out of the cockpit.

"But luck was with us!

"At 400 feet the engine began to improve in performance and we climbed back to 6,000 again as Jean, with a big grin and thumbs up, fell happily back into the cockpit. It was not for long, however.

"Again the engine failed and again we started down. But by priming it and babying it, it kept us in the air until suddenly Jean yelled: 'Jacques! Jacques! Look, there's land. There's England. We've made it!' There were tears in his eyes when he pointed out to me the long rolling coastline of England and the beach below it. It was not the wind which made my own eyes wet!"

Just then an R. A. F. fighter patrol swept up at dawn for a look-see; found them and dove in to investigate this strange, ancient and faltering trainer over the white cliffs of England.

The Spitfires swept in close, took one look at the Belgian cockades on the plane's wings (which Jean had washed brightly before they took off and which the Germans had neglected to paint out) and then, with a wave from the squadron leader's cockpit, took up protective formation, forcing the trainer down to a safe landing, if somewhat bumpy, on a hill behind the coast.

"They were the most amazed home guardsmen in England," Jean said. "When they came up and Jacques announced who we were and where we had come from, they were skeptical. We were marched to an R. A. F. headquarters and later, when all suspicion was removed, heartily toasted and congratulated. But most of the credit goes to Jacques—he is a wonderful flight companion.

"No!" Jacques interrupted. "But for Jean I would have given up many times. He brought us through!"

I remarked that they both enjoyed all the credit in the world for their exploit and toasted them as well. Now they were ready for the R. A. F. "But before you go," I said, "tell me about Belgium!"

"Poor Belgium!" they said in unison.

McCarran Acts To Speed Crime, Vagrancy Laws

Swift Senate action on bills to tighten the District's habitual criminal and vagrancy laws was assured yesterday by Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the District Committee.

The bills are now on the House calendar and will be acted upon Monday. They were approved by the House District Committee with the understanding that the habitual criminal bill is subject to amendment in conformity with the views of some committeemen that penalties for second offenders are too severe.

As soon as the criminal bill has been modified, McCarran said, he would poll his committee on both measures to expedite action. The chairman introduced the vagrancy bill yesterday.

"These two blils are essential for the immediate relief of the crime situation in Washington," the Senator declared. "This city must be rid of those transient clements I believe are responsible in a large measure for the kind of crimes we are now witnessing here. We need to uphold the police force, to give it assistance in cleaning up this city."

Senator McCurran specifically mentioned the current series of assaults upon women and girls in Washington.

He said he favored the vagrancy bill because it would require "floaters" not only to show visible means of support but to demonstrate that their means were acquired from lawful sources. He agreed that mandatory maximum sentences for second offenders in some circumstances might be too "drastic."

Pleasure Craft Stage Severn River Parade

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 7 (AP).—More than a score of pleasure craft late today participated in the annual parade of Severn River power boats.

In single file, the boats left the Severn River railroad bridge and went to Indian Landing and then back to Round Bay.

IT WAS JUST A FRIENDLY PARTY—Young Mr. and Mrs. Albert Curry, jr., shown as they finished addressing invitations, staged a party last night at their Pittsburgh home for 2,500 men, women and children of their voting district to promote friendliness. Those invited appeared in droves. The strongest drink served was soda pop—1,200 bottles. After it was all over the couple said: "We had a wonderful time meeting people we never knew existed. If everybody could be friendly with each other like this all the time, the world would certainly be a better place for us all"

Rabindranath Tagore, Famed Indian Poet Who Gave Up British Title, Dies in Calcutta

By the Associated Press.

Calcutta, India, Aug. 7.—Rabindranath Tagore, 80, famed as India's greatest modern poet and winner of the Nobel Prize for literature in 1913, died here today after a protracted illness.

Tagore, who was seriously ill last October but made a remarkable recovery, underwent an operation recently for a kidney ailment.

Practically unknown to readers of the Western World before he was accorded the Nobel Prize, Tagore's writings were translated into many languages in recent years and achieved the rank of best sellers.

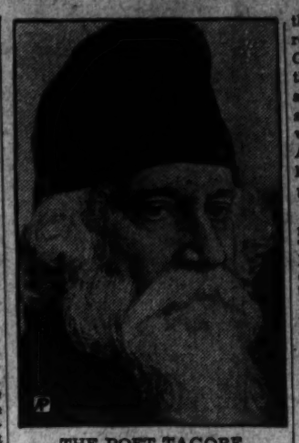
He himself regarded as one of his greatest achievements the school he established in 1901 near Calcutta, which grew into a world famous center of culture known as Visva-Bharati (International University).

In 1915 he was knighted by the British government in recognition of his work, but asked to be relieved of the title in 1919 in protest against the killings of Indians by British troops at Amritsar.

Traveled in United States

A great scholar, educator and social reformer as well as a poet, he had traveled widely throughout Europe and the Americas, lecturing and reciting.

Tagore made his first visit to the United Etates in 1916. His school, as usual, needed money. He traveled so far and so rapidly in the hands of a money-wise lecture agent that he often said afterward that his health never recovered from the strain. One engagement was canceled in San Francisco when police said they suspected a queer plot to harm him.



THE POET TAGORE

In 1918 the United States Government made public a mass of intercepted German diplomatic correspondence purported to involve the poet and 30 other Indians in a revolutionary conspiracy against Great Britain. Lord Chelmsford, then viceroy of India, wrote Tagore a letter exonerating him from any suspicion. The following year he was to write Chelmsford after the Amritsar killings to renounce his knighthood.

Unpleasant Incident

Long tours to the Far East, Europe and South America interrupted Tagore's teachings from 1924 to 1926. In 1920 he went to Canada to address the triennial conference of the National Council of Education. Ill fortune attended his projected visit into the United States in 1929, when an unpleasant incident with immigration authorities caused him to change his plans.

He felt he had been subjected to an unnecessarily vigorous questioning at the United States border at Vancouver, British Columbia. He later explained: "I have no bitterness toward the American people, but I must say that the immigration regulations against and the manner of the application toward Eastern and colored people are uncivilized and barbarous." Another American trip in 1930 was curtailed by an attack of heart disease.

His seventieth birthday was universally recognized and the distinguished literati of 30 countries dedicated to him in 1931 a volume entitled "The Golden Book of Tagore."

Mid-Air Plane Collision Fatal to Pilot, Student

St. Charles, Mo., Aug. 7 (AP).—A flying instructor and a student pilot were killed today when their plane crashed after a collision 400 feet in the air with another plane which was landed safely.

Harold V. Knapp, 22, the instructor, and Anthony Detomatis, 28, were killed.

Ellis W. Smith, 22, managed to land at an auxiliary field nearby although the lower left wing of his biplane was ripped, apparently by the propeller of the other plane.

Wise Purchasing Will Soften Blow of Rising Living Costs

This is the last of three articles by Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, noted writer on economics, outlining a blueprint for the average American family budget to meet the emergency of higher taxes and rising prices.

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
International News Service Economic Commentator.

New York, Aug. 7.—If you stand still amidst the whirlpool of rising prices and skyrocketing taxes, you will get hurt.

Through intelligent foresight, you can plan to rearrange your total personal receipts and expenditures in order to remain master of your own finances.

Back in 1927, when our economy was expanding, this writer pointed out in his book "Financial Advice to a Young Man:" "Your real income is not in dollars, but in the satisfactions which your dollars achieve through the purchase of goods and services. You can increase your real income by greater skill and discernment in buying."

Timing purchases judiciously makes for economy. You can, for example, save money by buying sleds at the tail end of the winter season. From this viewpoint, the best time to have alterations made on fur coats is the summer. The same counterseasonal reasoning can profitably be applied to repair work on a house. Ordinarily, the coming of spring makes the typical family desirous of having odd jobs done. The individual with foresight will, however, contract for the alterations in midwinter, when relatively few others are in the market.

The same economic principle is operative when you go to see movies in the morning, instead of waiting for higher afternoon and night admission charges.

Another opportunity for saving is to accumulate standard merchandise at special sales. Still another way is to pay cash wherever possible, eliminating the added expense of the installment plan.

When rising prices and taxes have decimated your budget, instead of buying a new car, you may find you can use the old one for another year, because, though it has little market value, it doubtless has considerable use value. In quest of recreation, you and your family will find enjoyable entertainment offered free of charge in the form of concerts, museums, zoos, public libraries, etc., offered primarily for that special group which is compelled to make both ends meet on inelastic incomes.

Of course, if you are blessed with a good income and a comfortable bank balance, you may consider this an advantageous time to lay in supplies and make various purchases now—not as a spending spree—but as an economy measure in anticipation of price boosts and increased labor costs.

Brooklyn Baby Born With Two Teeth in Front

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 7.—Thomas Dubrowski, of Brooklyn, started life at 2:15 a. m. today with a considerable advantage over most of his fellow infants. He was born with two sound lower front teeth.

Dr. J. Eugene Chaflin, who delivered the child at the Dubrowski home, said that the odds were 3,000 or 5,000 to 1 against a child's being born with teeth. The doctor said that he personally had seen only two or three others. According to medical books, the doctor said, the teeth should last as long as ordinary baby teeth.

Thomas weighed six pounds at birth and both he and his mother, Helen, 27 years old, are doing well, Dr. Chalin said. The father is a utility company clerk.

Fascists Arrest Magnate as Sugar, Coffee Hoarder

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rome, Aug. 7.—An illustration of Fascist action against hoarders was given today in the announced arrest of Giovanni Maccagno, described as a leading industrialist of Turin, who was charged with hoarding sugar and coffee.

Authorities said they had found 12 kilograms (26 pounds) of coffee and 16 kilograms (35 pounds) of sugar in his house. Maccagno was charged also with having sold some of the coffee for 220 lire a kilogram (2.2 pounds), or $12.38 at the present artificial rate of exchange.

Today the minister of corporations cut down the laundry soap ration from 200 grams (about seven ounces) to 150 grams (roughly five ounces).

Mary Haworth's Mail

Fearful Lest Her Married Happiness Be Spoiled if Neurasthenic Mother-in-Law Accomplishes Desire to Join Her Household, Long Island Wife Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a resident of Long Island, N. Y., but when I was last in Washington, I read your column in The Post every day, and was very impressed with your understanding, intelligent handling of problems. I have been happily married for six years to a fine, intelligent, sincere young man. We have a lovely son, almost three years of age, and are now expecting another baby.

My husband's mother has been a widow for 15 years and lives alone in a Middle Western town. She has a daughter in California whom she once thought of going to stay with; but decided not to, because they have never got on well. She is a very unhappy women. She spent last winter with us and I guess she found she cared more for my husband and his household than anything in life.

She is a sweet little woman, but pitiful because of her jealousies, fears and self pity; and she tells me so much about how she has always been mistreated by people (her friends and relatives). She is extremely nervous and excitable. In fact, it was hard for me to relax and sleep at night when she was here. Recently her daughter was married, so now the mother wants to come East to be with us. However, when she was here, she was continually misunderstanding me nad I hurt her feelings many times without even knowing how I had done so. I am a very mild mannered person and can't recall ever hurting anyone before.

She feels that my friends should be her friends and that she should be included in almost everything I do. Frankly, I could not be happy living with her. She has told my husband that she was always faithful to him and took good care of him, and now he should do the same for her. I would really love to see her happy, but I am afraid she never will be. My husband said he would always hate himself for not taking care of her, and that we should try to make her happy.

Is it necessary for us to give up our extreme happiness and maybe good health, too, in order to care for her? My idea was to let her live near us; but the apartment house in our small town is not very attractive and she has always had lovely surroundings and would not be content there. There are nearby towns affording better apartments, but I am afraid she would complain that they aren't near enough. I wish she would rent a small house nearby, but she would need financial help and she wouldn't want to accept that from us.

Am I selfish in wanting to continue living my life with peace of mind and happiness—so that I can bring my children up happily, without their thinking I am a fussy mother with a poor disposition? Sincerely, K. P. W.

Serve the Greatest Good Of the Greatest Number

DEAR K. P. W.: The desire to live in peace and know happiness is a natural aspiration of a healthy spirit; and it is healthy to be instinctively on guard against the onslaught of any forces or influences which might rob oneself and one's nearest and dearest of these indispensable attributes of "the good life." You are not demonstrating selfishness, but rather a constructive urge to promote the greatest good of the greatest number, in steadfastly preferring the course of action (in this instance) which would enable you to be the best possible wife and mother. You are displaying commendable foresight in recognizing how disastrous to domestic accord it would be to include your mother-in-law as a resident member of the family circle.

She is, obviously, one of those neurasthenic individuals who perversely relish the atmosphere of gloom in which they live and move and have their being; who derive morbid satisfaction from feeling ill used and whose chief intellectual exercise consists in making mental notes of the tortures they endure at the hands of Fate, Family and Friends. The trouble with such persons is that they have a frustrated yen to be somebody very special in life; and not having been able (perhaps because never having properly exerted themselves) to realize this ambition by positive accomplishment, they bid for attention after the manner of Job, by putting themselves forward as the most grievously afflicted person ever born.

Others can't make them happy because they don't want to be happy. Their wretchedness is their badge of distinction. And since the magnitude of a person's desire to be noticed usually is commensurate with his latent ability to do things on the grand scale—such persons often develop a diabolical aptitude for making themselves, and those around them, miserable. Since "there is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so," they finally become intrinsically as distressed as they had first represented themselves to be. Thereafter, they infect the very atmosphere (in their immediate vicinity) with the poisonous emanations of their melancholy "jealousies, fears and self pity," and their "nervous excitability," (to quote your descriptions of your mother-in-law's symptoms).

Wherever they go, they carry their own personal hell, of their own private concocting, along with them; and because misery loves company, they are indefatigable in their efforts to drag as many of their intimates as possible down with them. In instinctive resistance to such a fate, your sister-in-law has consistently held her mother at arm's length. And you show truly remarkable presentiment in asking, —"Is it necessary for us to give up our extreme happiness and maybe good health, in order to care for her?" For such is approximately the penalty you would pay, if you should admit her permanently to your home. By insidious degrees, she would have you and your husband at each other's throats, if she were constantly to the forefront of family councils. As it is, and at this distance, she is already muddying the waters of your married happiness, by putting you on opposite sides of the question of what to do about her.

In my opinion, the wise thing to do about her is to leave her exactly where she is. In so doing, you will be not only wisely safeguarding your married happiness from profitless destruction; but actually sparing her a whole new chapter of grievances. She may think she is miserable where she is, but she would be infinitely more despondent if transplanted into a situation where, for lack of acquaintances and accustomed activities, she would have nothing to do, 24 hours a day, except brood on her "alone" plight; and where, of course, she would feel herself not only entitled, but obliged, to fasten like a leech on her son's life and household, while sensing and resenting your wholesome distaste for the mutually chafing arrangement. M. H.

Mink Takes to Swirls

Mink, the luxury fur, is fast gaining a reputation as an investment in style and quality as sound as Government bonds. Above, it is shown in all its glory with a new look of elegance about the hem and sleeves. This natural Yukon ranch mink, in a rich, dark color, exemplifies the new softer trend in the fur silhouette. Notice the easy graceful swagger, the soft mannish shoulders and the ruffle cut with precision at the sleeves, repeated at the hemline. Washington Liked Windsor Chairs

The Windsor chair is an example of a piece that early American cabinet makers carried to its best form. For in its English versions the Windsor was a heavy sort of chair, more like those we used to see in the lobbies of country hotels. It had originated in the neighborhood of Windsor Castle in England around 1700, the work of wheelwrights, hence its spoke design. The Philadelphia cabinet makers developed the idea into the charmingly graceful chair we know, incredibly strong and comfortable yet light and simple to manufacture. It became the most familiar chair in American homes for many generations—Jefferson is said to have written the Declaration of Independence while sitting in a Windsor chair that had a shelf arm for writing. And legend has it that there were 14 Windsors on the front veranda at Mount Vernon in Washington's time.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Mrs. Forsythe Bleakhouse, known as Truthtown's most conservative dowager, received her guests heavily veiled at a recent soiree and supper she gave at her Clamport Villa, The Mausoleum. Mrs. Bleakhouse also wore heavy silk gloves as she shook hands with her visitors. The gloves, it is understood, were of a germ-treated fabric.

Mrs. Bleakhouse's parties are known as the most exclusive in Clamport. She keeps a complete genealogical file of her potential guests and sends out questionaires each season for them to fill out concerning their current marriages, divorces, operations, etc.

Mrs. Roswell Clymer scored over her social rival, Mrs. Parvenu Popinjay, last week when Mrs. Clymer's pet Pekingese, Mortimer, was made assistant corresponding secretary of the Doggies Do Good Club, which is active in war relief and local charity. Mrs. Popinjay's dachshund, Oscar, has not yet been put up for membership in the club.

The Barclay Putters 3d are having family trouble over choice of a name for their infant daughter, born last Friday. Mrs. Putter's mother, Mrs. Diogenes Dither, insists that the baby be named either Yvonne or Daphne; the other grandmother, Mrs. Putter 2d, holds out for either Fifi or Vivi; the mother insists upon Valerie, Gloria or Brenda; the nurse wants Diana or Joan, and the father prefers Tootsie or Bootsie.

The Summer Widows

"Don't you find it frightfully lonely with Bill gone on his fishing trip?"

"Oh, I should say! Still, of course, I really needed some rest."

"That's the way with me."

"Oh, is Claude gone?"

"Yes—on business—for a whole week!"

"How terrible!"

"Isn't it? Of course, though, it makes a lot less work— in this hot weather."

"I'll say it does! You just ought to see the bathroom after Bill's been in it."

"Say, listen! Claude can only walk through a room and it's a complete mess afterward."

"I guess they're all alike. Bill always leaves a rim in the tub."

"So does Claude. And wherever he sits there's always ashes on the floor."

"Yes, or junk in the window sill."

"I know all about that, too!"

"Another thing—there's this eternal cooking."

"Yes, Claude always has to have hot steaks and roasts and things, even when it's 100 degrees in the shade."

"Since Bill's been gone we've just been having light salads and ices."

"Another thing. When a man's not around you can really sit down and read the paper."

"Yes, without being called to find something."

"Or sew something."

"Bill's a perfect baby. He can't do a thing for himself."

"Well, the house has been so lovely and quiet the last few days. I don't mean, of course, that we haven't missed Claude terribly."

"I know. Our place has simply been heavenly. Not, of course, that I'm not perfectly crazy to see Bill."

Banish Old-Age Habits by Control Of Your Motions

YOU'RE GETTING OLD—a sitter by the fireside?

A wrong idea! Old age is just a habit—a habit that can be corrected, says the popular writer, Gelett Burgess, in his dynamo of a book, "Look Eleven Years Younger."

As the first flush of youth fades away we start letting those elderly habits get a grip on us, little habits that age our faces, our figures and our personalities.

An inner tempter says, "Go ahead, slump. Who cares?" So we do slump! We indulge in meaningless motions—face-feeling, nose-rubbing, ear-pulling. Our gaze wanders; idle grimaces start crows-feet around our eyes. Soon people think we're ten years older than we are.

Break those habits! With conscious control you can do it—and as Gelett Burgess says, "Controlled animation gives us a permanent youth-and-beauty treatment."

You'll be startled, learning about your "elderly tricks." You may, for instance, have the habit of hoisting yourself from your chair with your hands—a dead give-away! You may be a mugger, a past-dweller!

But life changes when you shed those habits: your fireside days are far behind you. Our 40-page booklet, a condensed version of Gelett Burgess' famous book, "Look Eleven Years Younger," tells you how it can be done, giving straight-from-the-shoulder advice on how to be young and stay young.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Look Eleven Years Younger," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

THERE ARE some exercise problems that cannot be handled by a correspondence course. If you have an undependable sacro-iliac or need correctives for a spinal curvature, a high shoulder or a prominent hip, your program should be supervised to make sure that it is helping, not harming.

In all such cases, the correction must be directed to the cause of the trouble and the remedial exercise must be carefully planned and executed. Your local Y. W. C. A. may offer such specialized instruction. If not, the person in charge of physical education there can advise you where to go. Those who live in or near a large city should inquire about a clinic with a physiotherapy department.

Watch Out for Strain

It is impossible to suggest through a column the specific exercises that may be needed to correct a deviation from the normal. Only general information along this line can be given. But if you have ever had anything wrong with your back, you should be careful to avoid any exercise which might involve strain. You should not try to do back bending exercises, or bend forward to touch the toes. Another exercise it is well to skip is the old favorite of lying on your back and slowly raising both legs, knees straight, from the floor. A good share of the work of that exercise is done by the muscles of the lower back.

A good position for you is the one of lying on your back on the floor, knees flexed and soles of feet on the floor. This position saves your back and makes exercise easier. It's effective exercise to simply pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles as you press the small of the back against the floor, or raise alternate knees to chest, or raise alternate legs to right angles from the starting position with knees flexed.

Lie Face Downward

Even when you take leg-swinging exercises to slim the hips, it may be best to keep the back out of the movement. Here is a good exercise of this type: Lie face downward with trunk resting on a table or flat top desk, with legs straight down and feet on floor. Now raise alternate legs backward from the hips, knees straight, until legs are parallel with floor. Hold, and lower.

You should save your back as much as possible in your routine work. This is a good rule for anyone, but it is extremely important to the person with back trouble. Don't work all bent over—have your sink and tables the correct height so that you neither have to bend over nor reach as you work. Whenever possible, sit down to do your housework. In picking up something from the floor or dusting, bend your knees and keep your back straight. And in lifting a heavy object, you should be very careful not to bend over with knees straight. Squat down and make your arms lift.

If there is the slightest question in your mind as to whether you should exercise, ask your doctor.

Fall Fashions Easy to Wear

First to follow the pattern of easy lines established by the fashionable silhouette for fall is the shoulder treatment, which is smooth and sloped, but never drooped or slouchy. In other words, the perfect shoulder line, at last! Sleeves are wider and easier, and the reign of the dolman has only just begun. Waistlines discover a new low, but go about it in a subtle fashion with setin yokes and belts.

And for that happy compromise, the skirt that looks straight and slim, but is actually comfortably full, this miracles of fashion is achieved by means of all-round straight pleats, unpressed pleats and panels of fullness.

The casual dress reaches a new place of importance, boasting fine detail, such as stitching and button trim, and smart manipulation without an unnecessary seam to mar its perfection.

Younger Set Celebrates Ann Swanson's Birthday

Some Thirty Gather at Gloria Goode's Home for Picnic Supper Despite Heat

By Patricia Grady

Though older Washington society welcomes the summer respite from the hectic winter whirl, the younger set refuses to rest on its social laurels. Ignoring the swelter or using it as an excuse for swimming parties, picnics and steak frys, Young Washington seems unaware of the hitherto indisputable fact that come July and August, come the social doldrums.

Among the fetes on yesterday's debutante calendar was the picnic supper by Gloria Goode to celebrate Ann Swanson's nineteenth birthday—which, by the way, is today. About 30 of the "summer set" gathered at the spacious Connecticut Avenue home of their hostess, Goode Place, to help celebrate blond Ann's natal day. Betty Ann Swagert and her brother, Harry, came down for the party from their summer home on Cape May. Gloria Goode, who has Betty Ann as her house-guest, is returning the hospitality of the Swagert family—she and Patsy Kelsey spent last week at Cape May. Patricia Hill was receiving congratulations on all sides to be relayed to her attractive mother, who will marry Dr. Jean Paul Pratt, of Detroit, Mich., August 20. And though many of her friends said goodby to Pat last night, for she will be living with her mother in Detroit, there was little dismay for she has promised to return to the Capital in the fall. Lila Morse, who with her mother is a house guest of the Goodes, came in from Union City, Tenn., yesterday to spend several weeks here. Her mother, Mrs. Cecil Morse and Mrs. L. L. Goode will leave for a week's sojourn in Atlantic City any day now.

Miss Kelsey To Entertain

Also at the party were Mary Ellen Brown, Mary Jane Moran, Dorothy Shelton Bradford—Mrs. Lowell Bradford since this June—Mollie Stonestreet and Janet Hartz with her fiance, Walter Galliger whom she will marry in October. On the masculine side of the ledger were Bill Shelton, George Seitz, Charles Camalier, Bobby Shelton, Buddy Moran, Frank O'Neill, George DeWitt, Jack Kelsey, Lowell Bradford, Bud Mathews and Bruce Quigley.

Patsy Kelsey will honor birthday-girl Ann with a luncheon at her home on Linnean Avenue tomorrow and an informal swimming party is scheduled for her today.

The Goodes are really summer residents of Washington and if they can lure daughter Gloria to their home in Miami, Fla., before the October weddings begin, they hope to have her enroll again this year in Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla.

Another of yesterday's "younger set" festivities was the luncheon given by Sybella Clayton in honor of Betty Forsling, a prep-school playmate of hers in Ogden, Utah. Others at the luncheon were Louise McNutt, daughter of the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, who will give a luncheon at the McNutt's Shoreham apartment tomorrow. Kathleen Norris—not the fiction writer—Mary Schonk, Anita Cajigas, who is terribly excited about the new home in Dumbarton into which she and her family moved last week—she will be hostess at a luncheon which will christen the new domicile on Monday—and sister Barbara Clayton.

Senora de Michels To Meet Student

CAPITALIZING: Cristina Michels, daughter of the Ambassador of Chile, will leave for New York with her mother tomorrow. Purpose of the trip is to meet the Santa Lucia, due in from Santiago on Monday, on which a friend of Cristina's is arriving in this country. The diplomat's lovely daughter will bring her friend, Margot Moreira, back to Washington with her next week for several days. Senorita Moreira, who is the only girl ever to receive a Chilean medical prize, attended medical school at the University of Santiago. She will spend this year in New York taking courses in optical surgery—a definite flaw in the theory that Latin women do not have careers. . . . Dr. Custis Lee Hall and his daughters, Betty and Mary Joe, are mixing business with pleasure on a trip to Mexico. Dr. Custis is on his way there to attend a convention of a medical society. . . . Betty Frost and Janet Clapper will leave today for Rehoboth, where they will spend two weeks. Also there vacationing are their friends, Mary Ann Ferrandou, Betty and Eleanor Burton and Cora Ann Berliner. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rannells will entertain at a dinner tonight in honor of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ira F. Peak, of Indianapolis, Ind., who are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Brock. . . . Now in Havana are Mr. and Mrs. Grant Boss and Robert Niepold.

Canning Jar Campaign To Be Opened Monday

The glass-jar-collecting campaign for the school lunch canning project will start Monday morning, with 29 schools opening as depositories for donations, it was announced yesterday.

The District Congress of Parents and Teachers is conducting the city-wide drive to obtain jars for the canning of surplus fruits and vegetables for use in the WPA lunches served in public schools.

P.-T. A. leaders obtained permission of school officials to use buildings in various sections of the city as collection centers from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily for the next two weeks, except on Saturdays, when they will be open from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m.

Quart and half-gallon screw-top glass jars are sought, since there is no appropriation for purchase of these containers by WPA. A citizen has made a contribution for the purchase of tops and rubbers.

Mrs. Lucian Jordan, fifth vice president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, who is in charge of its health department, heads the jar-collecting campaign and has been named treasurer for cash contributions of citizens who prefer to make their donations in that form.

P.-T. A. officials have installed a telephone service, as a clearing house for information, at REpublic 0934 and 0935, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily, it was announced by Mrs. Edward R. Seal, who is in charge of publicity for the campaign.

Motor Corps to Help With Transportation

Motor corps members of the Red Cross will transport the jars from the schools to the canning center. Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, jr., of the American Women's Volunteer Services, is chairman of the canning project.

Leaders in the jar-collecting campaign urged that donors wrap jars in newspapers and put them in pasteboard cartons, if possible, to reduce danger of breakage.

Women who will volunteer this summer to assist in the serving of the WPA lunches to children will thereby release WPA workers for the canning project, it was announced. Such volunteers will of course have to meet the public health requirements, it was added.

Depository Schools Listed

Twelve junior high schools will serve as depositories in Divisions 1-9, beginning Monday. They are Anacostia, Deal, Eliot, Gordon, Hine, Jefferson, Langley, Macfarland, Paul, Powell, Stuart, and Taft. At these schools the regular custodial service will handle the receiving of jars.

In Divisions 10-13, the following schools will be used: Morgan, Stevens, Harrison, Monroe, Briggs-Montgomery, Mott, John F. Cook, Logan, Young, Crummell, Deanwood, Birney, Bell, Bowen, Giddings, Garfield, Burrville. In those schools, Mrs. Alice Hunter, president of the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations, has arranged for women from the federation to be on duty to receive the jars.

To Visit Shore

Dr. and Mrs. James A. Cahill, of Washington, accompanied by their daughters, the Misses Florence, Julie, Louise and Mary Jane Cahill, and son, Raymond P. Cahill, are stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, for several days before motoring to Swampscott, Mass., where they will spend the remainder of the summer at the Ocean House.

Visiting Students See Capital

Underwood & Underwood

Florence Goon and John Pessolano, among a group of seven boys and girls from the Church of All Nations in New York City, climbed the steps of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church yesterday, led by Mrs. F. H. Gummel, member of the Board of the Washington Council of Church Women, which sponsored the three-day visit of the group in this city

Visiting Youth Marvel Over Capital Sights

Seven "first generation Americans" from New York City explored Washington yesterday, visited its patriotic shrines and frequently reminded each other exultantly: "Just look at the sky!"

The Chinese and Italian boys and girls from the Church of All Nations, in a congested Manhattan area, just off the Bowery, marveled at the wide expanse of Washington's tree-fringed sky as one of its premier wonders.

Under the wing of officials of the Washington Council of Church Women, the youngsters came on a double mission—to become better acquainted with America's history and traditions, and to take part in "an adventure in neighborhood friendliness", among church groups.

Mount Vernon Trip Set for Tomorrow

The Rev. Charles Austin, pastor of the Church of All Nations, brought the group by automobile on the pilgrimage which will continue through tomorrow with a visit to Mount Vernon.

The boys and girls, 14 to 18 years old, found shy but emphatic ways of expressing their reactions to the beauty of Washington scenes.

One of the Chinese girls, gazing at the interior of the Library of Congress, whispered something to the effect that: I've never fainted before, but this is so beautiful that I think I may collapse before I can take it all in."

The group is making its headquarters at the home of Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the Washington Council of Church Women, at 478 N Street Southwest. She and Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the council, with other officials, arranged the educational tour for the group.

Group Appears On Radio Program

The boys and girls, whose parents were foreign-born, included Florence Goon, Calvin Gum, Marion Long, John Pessolano, Joe Licata, Louise Cino and Rose Giglia.

The Rev. Mr. Austin said yesterday that he hoped to make the pilgrimage an annual event for a group from his church.

After visiting the Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument yesterday, the group appeared on Mary Mason's program at WRC, after which Miss Mason entertained them at luncheon.

The boys and girls will give further impressions of Washington at a broadcast on Meredith Smith's program at WDC about 9 a. m. today, after which they will visit Washington Cathedral. A trip to Arlington and the National Airport will climax today's schedule.

Eight et Forty Scholarship Goes To District Coed

Tharon Kiser, coed at George Washington University, will be awarded a scholarship at the Annual Marche of the District of Columbia Salon 14 Departmental of the Eight et Forty, next Friday evening at the Hotel Washington.

The scholarship, presented annually by the national organization to a son or daughter of a veteran, was also won by the District last year.

At the convention, which opens Thursday night, Chapeau Departmental Catherine C. Crompton will be in charge, assisted by Demis Chapeaux Virginia McCarthy and Mary Corwin. Mabel F. Staub will be chairman for the event, with Ethel Wilt as her assistant.

The following have been appointed convention officers: Dorothy B. Harper, auditing chairman, resolutions chairman and parliamentarian; Emily J. Carey, permanent organization chairman; Irene O'Connor, credentials chairman; Virginia McCarthy, registration chairman; Ada Riley, rules chairman, and Ellen Lou Warren, constitution and by-laws.

National Chaplain Gertrude McGrath, of the Eight et Forty, will be among the guests.

Officers of the salon and delegates to the National Marche at Milwaukee, Wis., September 15, will be chosen. National Pouvoir Member Edith P. Landvoigt will give her annual report.

The "Individual Initiative Industry" has been flourishing, with the girls who registered in the summer job preject under the wing of the Girl Reserve department of the Y. W. C. A.

The high school girls, who call the enterprise the "Three I's," signed up to do assorted jobs for which there were calls—minding children in the afternoon, tutoring, doing housework and errands.

Another girl, who was engaged to take care of small children, got a trip to a Maryland beach when the family went on vacation.

Approximately 20 girls were registered for the project. The department required recommendations for the girls and kept the number low enough to make careful placements.

AUXILIARY TROPHIES—During the District American Legion Auxiliary convention this weekend, the Margaret Franklin Trophy for the unit with the highest percentage over the past three years' average will be awarded to the Kenneth H. Nash Unit, which stacked up a 190 per cent membership figure, in comparison with the past totals. The same unit will receive the Hargrave trophy for being the first to reach the department quota.

Lincoln Unit will receive the department president's junior membership award for the largest percentage on December 31 and also the Dorothy B. Harper Eight and Forty junior membership trophy for the unit with the largest percentage on June 1.

The Southern division, under direction of Mrs. Nettie Peters, will receive the membership divisional silver tray.

Total membership in the District auxiliary has passed 1,800, and of 20 local units reporting, 17 have reached or surpassed last year's figures, said Mrs. Ellen Louise Warren, department membership chairman.

Pen Women Consider Location of Studio

Committees have been appointed by Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, president of the District branch, National League of American Pen Women, to deal with problems connected with the location of its studio. The Grafton Hotel, where its present studio is, has been leased to a British commission after September 1, but Pen Women officials are seeking permission to remain.

The decisions committee includes Mrs. E. Richard Gasch, Mrs. Theodore H. Tiller, Mrs. W. W. Badgeley, Mrs. Charles C. Tyler, Miss Marguerite Merigold, Mrs. W. W. Scott and Mrs. William C. Taylor; house-hunting committee, Mrs. Tiller, Mrs. Angela McHugh Barr, Mrs. Lon A. Hawkins and Mrs. Eva Grant Marshall; moving committee, Mrs. Victoria Faber Stevenson, Mrs. Lewis Bartlett and Miss Rose M. Richards.

Inez Gives Her All (to Science) To Show Why Men Like Blondes

Gray-Haired Writer Finds She Doesn't Scare as Easily

By Inez Robb

INEZ ROBB

New York, Aug. 7.—Well, there's life in the old girl yet.

Your prematurely gray correspondent, in competition with luscious young redheads, blondes and brunettes, to whom she gave away from 12 to 15 years, today tested out one of science's newest psychological gadgets, the variograph, which registers subconscious mental and emotional reactions to such varied stimuli as love, fear and hate.

What I did to that variograph is something that Dr. William Moulton Marston, eminent psychologist, inventor and perfector of a lie detector as well as the variograph, says shouldn't happen to a dog.

The good doctor, natty in white flannels and a Phi Beta Kappa key, kept eyeing me with respect and murmuring, "Extraordinary! Astounding! Splendid! Splendid!"

During this venture into the realm of pure science, which took place at the Astor Theater, all of us stooges were hooked up to the little machine by a rubber hose arrangement strapped around our chests and the type of wide, lethal black leather strap around the left Dietrich, always seen in pictures of gents just stepping into the electric chair.

Then we were all fed the same strong fare: Calm sequences followed by terrifying scenes from "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," with Spencer Tracy as both.

"Is she breathing?" I heard Dr. Marston whisper.

But about that time Mr. Hyde leered menacingly from the screen.

"Look at the register!" Dr. Marston cried excitedly to his assistants.

"Holy smoke!" one of them gasped in awe, "the indicator is hopping around like Bill Robinson on a hot stove!"

Then Mr. Hyde reached a horrible, deadly claw for Ivy's throat. As he did in the poor gal (Ingrid Bergman), Dr. Marston let out a shout:

"The indictator's jumped the track. What a woman! Get a glass of water for the lady. Get two glasses!"

The doctor did not mind the fact I had incapacitated that particular machine for further tests until repaired.

And what did it all prove? Well, it proves that I scare easy. I could have told the doc that in the beginning, if he had only asked!

The doc's general observations show that redheads scare least of all, although they are apt to be erratic. Brunettes are hard to intimidate, too. But blondes!

Dr. Marston's experiments make at least one thing clear: The reason gentlemen prefer blondes. They prefer blondes because they (the blondes) are most easily cowed by swaggering, aggressive, assertive, bossy guys, as what guy is not, please?

Gallinger Rated For Training Of Specialists

Gallinger Municipal Hospital has been accredited by the American College of Surgery as a training institution for surgical specialists, it was revealed through the District health office yesterday.

The recognition was made known in a letter from Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, hospital superintendent, to Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, informing him of the newly received honor.

Resident trainees at the hospital will now be qualified to take the surgical college's examination to admit them to practice in the five "specialist" branches, such as orthopedics and obstetrics, Dr. Bocock explained.

Senate-House Group Agrees on Compromise

A joint Senate-House Committee agreed yesterday on compromise legislation authorizing the President to requisition articles needed in the defense program.

The measure had passed both Houses in different form.

The committee eliminated a House-approved prohibition against removal of machinery or equipment from a manufacturing plant when its use was necessary to the operation of the plant.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

Efficiency Ratings Affect 400,000

The efficiency rating plan was extended upward and outward yesterday by the Civil Service Commission in an order that affects an estimated 400,000 Federal workers. Under the order, the bosses who are paid up to $9,000 will be given efficiency ratings the same as the lowest paid messenger. Heretofore, employes who were paid above $5,000 weren't given efficiency ratings and only those employes in the District—roughly 100,000—that had classified jobs under allocation of the Civil Service Commission were subject to the efficiency rating system.

However, the uniform promotion act requires that the employes affected by it must be under an efficiency rating system and to be eligible for a pay raise the employes must have a rating of "good" or better. The commission was compelled to extend its rating system to the 400,000 additional employes to protect their promotion privileges.

Employes who aren't graded under an efficiency rating plan that is acceptable to the commission must be rated as of August 15. Hereafter, they'll be graded on April 15 of each year. Now the question comes up: Who is going to grade the bosses? . . . Civil Service has announced a test for mimeograph operators. Applicants will be graded on experience. No written tests. . . . The under punch card exam will be closed on September 2 . . . Junior engineers also are needed by the commission.

Report Stirs Officials

The story that appeared in this column yesterday on the split within the HOLC board over the transfer of the agency to New York City apparently unnerved some officials of the agency. Several employes were called in on the carpet and were asked "who has been talking?" All of which tends to verify the report that the four board members revolted against Chairman John Fahey and refused to sign the New York lease until Fahey had produced an order to move from the President. Meantime, Acting Attorney General Biddle has ruled that the transfer is legal if the "principal office" of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is continued here.

Abe Feller, Yale law professor who is a former lawyer in the Anti-Trust Division, is working for the Lend-Lease Administration on aid to Russia . . . John Francis Costelloe, a lawyer in Justice's Claims Division, will be the law clerk for Justice Jackson. He is a graduate of Nebraska University and Harvard Law School . . . Justice James Byrnes also picked a Justice lawyer for his clerk, James Doyle of the Criminal Division. Doyle is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and Columbia Law School . . . Presidential Press Secretary Steve Early has ordered Federal departments to send only one person to the President's press conferences.

War Department is prepared to decentralize its force here somewhat. Col. E. R. Householder told the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds yesterday that the department is planning to move the Washington Quartermaster Depot out of the city. The depot has 400 employes and it is scattered in three buildings here. It's planned, Householder said, to move the depot in a new building in Arlington County, Va. It might be possible, someday the Army officer testified, to move out part of the finance office of the United States Army. It's now planned, he said, to move the finance office into the proposed $35,000,000 War Department Building.

Treasury Department plans no further decentralization. This fact should relieve Internal Revenue employes who have been jittery for weeks that they would be ordered out of the city. L. J. Bernard, Treasury assistant general counsel, told the committee that the department was "sympathetic" to decentralization but nothing further could be done now without impairing efficiency. Treasury already has 81 per cent of its employes in the field and committee members appeared satisfied with the department's voluntary decentralization plan. The committee suspended hearings yesterday.

Baby Show Snapshots

Radio—Please Note

An irate Jerseyite called up last night to say she didn't mind radio announcers mispronouncing tongue-twisting Russian points of battle, but thought they should know the pronunciation of the scene of the ship yard strike, Kearny, N. J. It is KAR-ny, not KER-ny—named for New Jersey's Civil War hero—killed at Chantilly Va. in 1862.

Everything Complete

Three autos collided yesterday afternoon at Connecticut Avenue and R Streets. In one was Senor Don Justo Sierra, of the Mexican Embassy; in another Dr. A. F. Kreglow, 1801 I Street, and in the other, a photographer. The photographer took a picture, the physician attended Sierro, whose head was hurt. A crowd ran up.. "It is all here'" said Sierro, "a physician, a crowd, the press."

Swimmers Rehearse for Red Cross Aquafete

Speedy Justice Is Promised In Sex Crimes

Washington's prosecutors yesterday raised the weapon of speedy justice against the crime wave, which has brought 17 rape cases and two sex murders in the city since January 1.

Seeking prompt trials, Acting District Attorney John W. Fihelly set his staff to work on 13 indictments involving sex crimes which now are awaiting trial.

Fihelly, who is in charge in the absence of District Attorney Edward M. Curran, gave his personal attention to the case against Roland J. Lindsey, 19, Negro, accused of beating a soldier unconscious and ravishing his sweetheart in the Patterson Woods.

"This situation demands vigorous action by all law enforcement agencies," said Fihelly. "If the criminals and the degenerates have gotten the idea that the prosecutors and the courts have suspended operations for the summer they are headed for a bitter awakening.

Thirteen on Docket

"There appear to be 13 sex crimes on our dockets at present. This office is undertaking a review of those cases, with a view to setting them down for early hearings.

"Just a few days ago, a rapist was sentenced to the electric chair. He was caught, indicted, given a fair trial and condemned five weeks to the day after his crime. That kind of criminal can always expect the same kind of speedy justice. And in making this statement, I know I am stating the policy of District Attorney Curran. That policy, as he declared in open court in a recent trial, is simply this, 'The streets of Washington must be made safe for women.'"

The attack cases are part of a docket which reflects the "speedy justice" policy. Although about 200 cases have piled up, only 21 of them originated before January 1 this year.

Special Attention

Fihelly said that he would give special attention to the Lindsey rape case, making every effort to dispose of all preliminary motions and clearing the way for trial by September 2, at the latest.

Presiding over a special term is Justice James W. Morris, who received the pleas of a score of prisoners yesterday and will pronounce sentence next week on those who pleaded guilty. Later in the month, Justice Morris will be replaced by Justice David A. Pine, himself a former district attorney and ardent exponent of the "speedy justice" method of dealing with crime.

Qualified for service and available upon short notice are 31 men and women jurors. Officials of the jury commission said scores or hundreds more could be obtained within a few days.

Legion Officials Praise Work Of Auxiliary at D. C. Session

Nine men and women prominent in the District Department of the American Legion and its auxiliary last night spoke extemporaneously praising the women's organization for an outstanding year, at the Mayflower Hotel.

On the eve of the opening session tonight of the annual convention of the auxiliary, speakers at the dinner pointed to the boost in membership to more than 1800 with a corresponding expansion of rehabilitation, child welfare, Americanism and other activities.

Those speaking included: Heywood Saunders, newly elected department commander; Mrs. Helen M. McCabe, auxiliary president; Mrs. Mary B. McMillin, national executive committeewoman; Capt. Watson B. Miller and William Hargrave, past department commanders; C. Francis McCarthy, senior vice commander; Fred Frazier, past Chef de Chemin de Gare; Mrs. Florence V. Taylor, past national executive committeewoman, and Mrs. Rae R. Zaontz, auxiliary publicity and radio chairman.

T. Semmes Walmsley, mayor of New Orleans, principal speaker at tonight's opening session at 7:30 o'clock, will deliver an address on civilian defense activities.

Bill to Revamp D. C. Welfare Setup Drafted

A tentative draft of a bill to reorganize the District welfare system, which would transfer authority from the Board of Public Welfare to the Commissioners, has been drawn up by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, District officials said yesterday.

The draft will be sent to the Budget Bureau for a routine check and is expected to be submitted to Congress shortly.

Under the proposed legislation, the Welfare Board would be reduced to an advisory body, and its powers given to the Commissioners, who would then have the right to delegate authority as they saw fit to officials of the Welfare Board.

Impetus for the suggested change came from the disclosure last month that the legal basis of the Welfare Board had been questioned by the Federal Social Security Board. It was held at that time that the District system did not comply with certain specifications of the Social Security Act.

No comment on the proposed change was forthcoming from welfare officials last night.

FWA Officials Collate Data In Lease Fight

Federal Works Agency officials yesterday were assembling documents and other data for submission to the Attorney General, together with a request for his opinion on whether or not the Government has a binding commitment to lease the Dupont Circle Hotel.

The request for an opinion on the deal that aroused some 700 tenants of the Connecticut Avenue residential hotel and stirred a Congressional inquiry will be submitted directly to President Roosevelt. The President will be asked to pass it on to the Department of Justice in keeping with customary departmental practice.

Officials said the formal request may be ready to go forward today, less than 48 hours after the House Building and Grounds Committee called upon the Public Buildings Administration to withdraw from its agreement to lease the hotel and attacked as "reprehensible" the conduct of new owners of the property.

PBA officials yesterday declared that they have no intention of moving additional Federal agencies into the building until the Attorney General hands down an opinion.

Ousted Employe To Tell Version

Mrs. Helen Miller, recently discharged from the Department of Labor on charges of communism, will give her version of her suspension and eventual discharge by Secretary Perkins at a meeting of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action in the Hotel Burlington tonight at 8:30.

Other speakers at the meeting will be Henry Rhine, national representative of the United Federal Workers of America (C. I. O.), and Cecil Owen, head of the Washington Industrial Union Council and chairman of the local C. I. O. Committee for the Reinstatement of Helen Miller.

Mrs. Miller is asking investigation of her case by an "impartial board," charging that her firing was part of a campaign against local 12 of the U. F. W. A., of which she was a leader.

The District of Columbia Defense Council's Women's Battalion of "dancettes" will entertain soldiers, sailors and marines at three dances today and tomorrow.

The regular dance at the Bureau of Engraving will be held at 8 p. m. today. Dance hostesses also will participate in tomorrow's block dance at Treasury House. Two hundred members of the battalion will go to Fort Belvoir, Va., tomorrow night for a dance there.

Funds for Aged Victim of Theft Rises to $168

Contributions are still pouring into The Post for Mrs. Rose Fones, 74, whose life savings were stolen last Sunday from beneath a mattress in her room at 416 Third Street Northwest.

"I certainly appreciate what these people are doing for me," she told The Post yesterday. "I prayed to the Lord for help and it looks as though my prayers are being answered."

Yesterday's contributions amounted to $67.25, bringing to $168.25 the total receipts from sympathizers since last Sunday. One contributor wrote that "it is indeed too bad that such unkind people exist in this world."

Another letter, signed, "the old-time religion is good enough for me" contained one dollar and the sender's approval of "neighborly love."

A 25-year-old former District man and his wife, who were brought here from Bristol, Tenn., as suspects, denied any association with the crime.

Simon Data Sent to District Attorney Aides

The Metropolitan Police file on the murder of Dr. Heinrich Simon early on May 6 was submitted to the District Attorney's office yesterday, but Assistant District Attorney John W. Fihelly said no statement could be announced until later.

"There may be three persons involved," Fihelly said. "There may be more. Or our review may show that as yet nobody is definitely indicated."

Statements taken by Detective Sergt. Jeremiah Flaherty, acting chief of the homicide squad, from a number of youthful members of a gang were among the data sent to Fihelly.

An inmate of the Industrial Home for Boys told police recently that Dr. Simon had been beaten to death by one of the gang. One suspected member of the gang is now an inmate of the National Training School here, another is said to be in Georgia and a third is reported in California.

Dr. Simon, once editor of the German newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung, was beaten in the vicinity of Seventeenth and Church Streets Northwest. He died later in the day at Garfield Hospital.

McKellar Votes On Draft, Despite Fainting Spell

Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, suffered a fainting spell on the floor of the Senate yesterday, but a few hours later was back at his desk after a brief rest in his apartment at the Mayflower Hotel.

Colleagues helped the 72-year-old veteran into the cloak room when he was seized with a sudden illness. He was attended by Dr. George Calver, Capitol physician, before returning to the floor to vote on the draft extension bill. Later he went to his hotel, but returned a second time as the measure moved to a final vote.

McKellar recently underwent a major operation in Memphis. Colleagues said he lately had been subject to fainting spells, but that the attacks were not considered serious

U. S. Navy Keeps 6,000 Recruits Constantly In Training at Its Great Lakes Station

By John O'Reilly

Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Ill., Aug. 7.—Thirty-five per cent of the enlisted men of the United States Navy come from the Midwest, the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. Most of them have never seen an ocean or a battleship before they enlist. They get their recruit training here at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, on the shores of Lake Michigan, 1,000 miles from the nearest salt water.

The reasons which these Midwestern youths have for launching upon a six-year enlistment in the Navy are surprisingly few. Of the dozens questioned by this correspondent, the greatest number said they joined up because they wanted to go to school and learn a trade. Most of them came from farms and small communities, and they felt that the schooling was not preparing them for anything definite in life. They wanted to be aviation metalsmiths or welders or machinists or electricians, and they wanted to get started on it as soon as they could.

Act After Careful Thought

With most, joining the Navy was not something done on the spur of the moment. A majority said they had wanted to do so for a number of years and had just waited until they were old enough. A lot of them evidently had studied Navy recruiting information carefully. Some said they got to be 17 years old and didn't have anything else to do, so they joined the Navy. Others said they got sick and tired of farm work.

Occasionally a boy would say that the possibility of adventure had caused him to take the step, but most of them took a serious view and were anxious to get into a Navy school. Sixty-five per cent of the men who leave the Great Lakes station after their training go to one of the Navy schools. The rest, including those whose background makes them unfit for technical schooling, are assigned to the fleet and go directly to a ship at sea.

Of all those questioned about why they joined the Navy, not one said it had anything to do with national defense or that he had been aroused to do his bit in the present critical international situation. A few said they had enlisted to avoid Selective Service in the Army because they thought they would prefer the Navy.

Resembles College Campus

Whatever their reasons, when they arrived at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station they find a place that is more like a college campus than a military training establishment. Covering 495 acres, the station occupies a promontory which rises almost 100 feet above Lake Michigan, which is a considerable height in this flat country along the lake. About a large, grassy quadrangle are the original brick buildings of the station, the administration building, armory and barracks.

There are new wooden barracks and others which have been converted from aviation hangars.

Unlike many of the Army training camps which have been erected in remote sections, this naval training station is in a rather exclusive setting. It is 33 miles north of Chicago and is in the heart of Chicago's most beautiful suburbs.

Into this setting comes a stream of recruits from the Ninth Naval District, the largest in the country. There are between 6,000 and 7,000 recruits constantly in training and they go out of here to the fleet and the Navy schools at the rate of 550 to 600 a week. In normal times the recruit training period is three months. This was cut to eight weeks, and now it is being cut again to six weeks under the expansion program.

Now the station, which has been a quiet, peaceful school since the World War, is taking on the feverish activity of the expansion program. The recruit finds his training intensive and condensed into a short period. At the end of it he marches with the other graduates to review, listens to a brief talk by the commandant, Rear Admiral John Downes, and marches away for his ten-day recruit leave. Upon his return he either goes to school for more training or joins the fleet to continue his training aboard ship.

France Cites Henry, Late Envoy Here

Vichy, France, Aug. 7.—Jules Henry, French ambassador to Turkey who died recently at Ankara, was posthumously honored in a citation today to the Order of the Nation.

"After having played an eminent role in the United States," says the citation, "he represented France at Ankara in delicate circumstances. Sacrificing his health to his office, he met death while accomplishing his duties, giving thus an example of devotion to the marshal and of professional conscience."

D.C. Heads Balk Again at Liquor Price Fixing

The District Commissioners yesterday rejected renewed requests for price fixing in the liquor industry here advanced by the District of Columbia Retail Liquor Dealers Association and the beverage industry committee.

The requests were made in letters to Commissioner Young from the two organizations. With the letters, the organizations sent a copy of the special grand jury investigation into local liquor sales, which scored price-cutting practices.

Commissioner Guy Mason, in charge of the Alcoholic Control Board for the Commissioners, indicated his willingness to discuss the matter with the organizations, but at the same time said he disapproved of the plan.

Mason said that there was no more reason to fix prices on alcoholic beverages than on groceries or other commodities.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, also expressed opposition to the proposal.

The grand jury report asserted that "the retail liquor business in this city is in an extremely chaotic condition, due principally to ruinous price-cutting."

"The grand jury feels that vigorous, forceful and fearless administration by those charged with this responsibility is essential to the well-being of the entire liquor industry," it concluded.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"V IS FOR VICTORY" is the name of the thrilling new song just launched and composed by Don Baker of the Neptune Room. Strictly speaking, the music is not exactly new, for it's a part of the "American Life Symphony" on which Don has been working for 10 years. But the lyrics were written in only 20 minutes by Dolores Baker, who's Mrs. Don B. in private life . . . Neptune "Impersonators' Nights" wound up in a blaze of glory with Dick Leslie's clever impressions of stage stars winning him the triple first prize of Neptune-Capitol Theater-WINX engagements. But it was touch-and-go for him to win over Bernie Millstein and Dick Coleman, who tied for second honors . . . Among the prominent ringsiders were Comedian Eddie White, Leonard Schlesenger and Harry Lohmayer, execs of Warner Brothers; E. J. Ewing, president of the Standard Engineering Co.; Paul Young, night club owner; Charles M. Boteler, insurance executive . . . Neptune's publicity director, Frank Romer, has another sharp diversion idea coming up. It'll break in about a week.

Durward Bowersox, one of Washington's most brilliant and diverting violinists, will open at the Plymouth on Sunday evening. Durward played with Vincent Lopez for four years, two of them in Ezri Carroll's "Vanities." For the last couple of seasons he's been featured violinist with the Rainbow Room Orchestra.

. MAYFLOWER LOUNGE BOOMS. This booming summer is bringing unprecedented business to the Mayflower Lounge. Acting head waiter Johnny seated 250 people in 45 minutes on one recent evening. This is about six people a minute—even taxed the agile Johnny, is a former life guard. The summer Congressional session has a much to do with Mayflower crowds, which always include scores of Senators and Representatives and their friends.

HI HAT COMINGS AND GOINGS. Carmela Lazari is back at the Hi Hat, tanned as a gypsy queen, and in beautiful voice . . . . . Manager Oscar, plumb worn out from acting as a juryman, has gone on vacation. He's not really going anywhere, plans to park in his garden and rest 24 hours a day.

THE CUSTOMERS PREFER—Eddie Chase's smooth and ingratiating piano playing and accordioning at Burt's Trans-Lux. We hear that some exciting stage and radio prospects are at hand for both Eddie and singer Eileen O'Neill . . . The light comedy touch that Anchor Room's "We Two" give to "Everything Happens to Me" . . . The way that the Rainbow Room's Parley Eaton shouts "Smorgasbord! Yah!" when he does "Hut-Sut" . . . The high lighting of dance music with vocal trios as done by Dick Wilson's band on the Starlight Roof . . . The impressive bass salos of Bob Roberts, guitarist with Mayfair's new Senators.

Newcomers to Washington are thronging to the Saturday night dances sponsored by the All-States Club in the Hotel Washington's Hall of Nations. Bright dance music is by Washie Bratcher's orchestra. It's a fine opportunity for new Government girls and boys to get acquainted.

GLEN ECHO PERSONALITIES. Band Leader Paul Kain reads himself to sleep every evening with new and old copies of the National Geographic . . . Singer Adele Van is a bit homesick for her family, who've recently moved out of town, confides that she doesn't like living in an apartment . . . Trombonist Dick Leith comes from trouping stock. His father did a blackface comedy act in the old vaudeville days, and his mother was the piano accompanist.

TOWN'S BEST TANS. Some of the finest of saddle-colored tans are being displayed on the sun terrace adjoining the Shoreham Terrace. Dancer Maurice who appears on the Terrace nightly, has the darkest tan to date. But it's only a shade deeper than those sported by Bob Simpson of the Mayflower Lounge band and publicity man Joe Dupree of the Shoreham.

DURWARD BOWERSOX, star violinist, who opens at the Plymouth Sunday evening

STARTLING STUNTS. The chain tumbling stunt of the Casino Royal's "Dance Cocktails." In its wind-up they look like a huge python formed of girls . . . The staggering program of playing a new overture every day that's been set for themselves by the Heintze Brothers of Restaurant "823." They were doing "Orpheus" on the evening we were around . . . The amazing stunt of one collie walking under another one while both are working on the tight wire at Lotus. It's part of the act of "Betty and her Playmates" . . . The way that Artie (Artful) Humes, trumpeter-arranger of Pete Macias' Lounge Riviera orchestra, manages to impart a fresh and graceful touch to every tune thot he takes in hand.

Singer Valentina, of the Madrillon, owns the original score of the "Love of Three Kings," produced at the Metropolitan last season for the first time in 20 years. Her father, Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, sang in the opera's first production at the La Scala in Milan.

ALL'S TOP-NOTCH at Kavakos Grill. High pressure ventilation keeps the spot so breezy and comfortable that capacity crowds turn out right along for Kavakos fun. Zippy dance music and loads of amusing impromptu entertainment keep the folks happy as kittens in a catnip bed . . . And the Kavakos staff is very happy about being up at the top of the soft ball league.

REASON FOR PERFECTION. Recordings are made of rehearsals of Rodd Raffell's Nightingale orchestra . . . Then the boys play them back and have a session of self-criticism. Not until Maestro Raffell is satisfied with a rehearsal recording is a new number played for the Gale clientele.

VERSATILE BOULEVARD FARMS. Not only can you have a grand time dancing to Frank Young's band at Boulevard Farms in the evenings. If you traipse down there in the afternoon you can go horseback riding on one of the Farm's 15 spirited steeds. Boulevard Farms is open for Sunday dining, too, beginning at 4 p. m.

Dancing "under the wide and starry sky" is a great treat at the Log Tavern. But there's lots of room under the roof, too. If a shower starts everybody moves under shelter and continues stepping to Mert Oliver's mirthful rhythms.

Nazis Threaten Break With Iran Over Expulsions

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Turkey, Aug. 7.—Germany has threatened to break off diplomatic relations with the Iranian government over the expulsion of German nationals from Iran, it was learned from high diplomatic sources today at Ankara.

The threat was contained in a note presented by the German minister to the Iranian premier, warning against expulsion of German travelers and residents, as strongly and repeatedly suggested by the British and Soviet governments.

The Iranian government has not replied to the German note, according to information here.

The crisis was precipitated by strong representations by Sir Reader Bullard, the British minister to Teheran, who, in conjunction with the Soviet minister to Iran, had suggested the large number of Germans now on Iranian territory constitutes a threat to Iranian neutrality.

Officers' Club at Monroe

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 7.—Under the massive ramparts of old Fort Monroe are quarters of a club unique among American clubs.

Its rooms once were the casemates of the fortress which guards Hampton Roads. Its windows are the embrasures through which great guns once frowned across Chesapeake Bay. Its walls are the solid masonry thrown up more than a century ago to stop the shot from hostile warcraft.

It is cool down there in the casemates of Fort Monroe. The fine old walls are 10 feet thick. A shallow moat surrounds the fort entirely and ripples quietly under the dance floor, begun 45 years ago by approval of the Secretary of War.

The club which occupies these premises is as remarkable as its quarters. The Fort Monroe Club had its genesis in 1852 as the officers' mess of the post, when bachelor officers supported a common table for esprit de corps and economy.

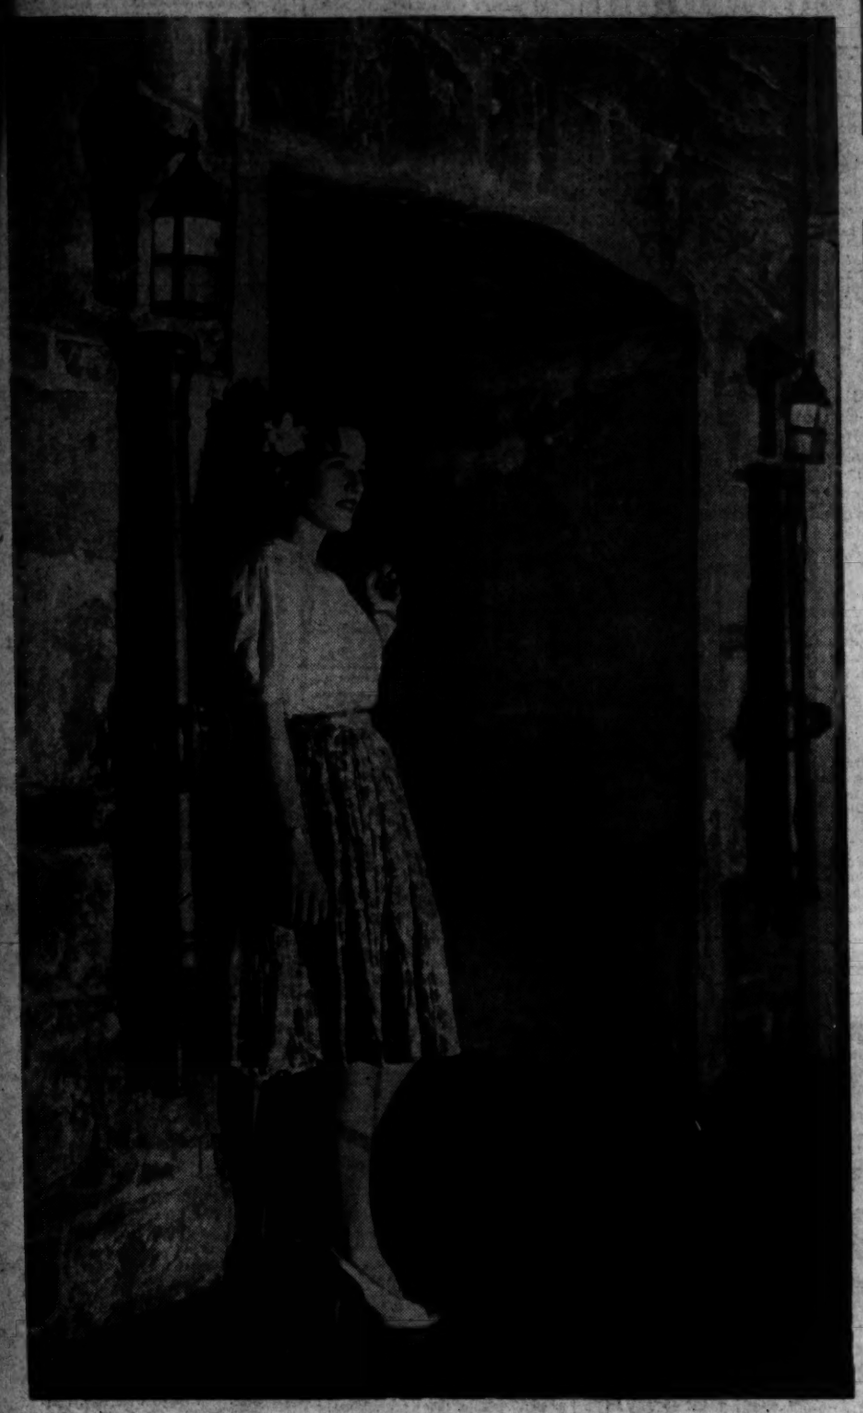
In those days the mess did not occupy rooms in the fort proper. Four years after the Civil War, in 1869, officers of the post organized a Billiard Club whose quarters burned down on Christmas Eve, 1870. Then the officers' mess and the Billiard Club were combined and, in 1871, moved into the present quarters in the southwest, or flagstaff, bastion of the fort.

In those days a small boat called "The Maid of the Moat," probably by some returning honeymooner, provided ferryage between the club and shore. It is related that many a bewhiskered young sabreur, after an evening of wassail, pulled himself out of the boat and was fished from the moat by a couple of enlisted men detailed there with boathooks for the purpose.

Finally, in 1915, a footbridge was built from shore to the little porch and the "Maid" disappeared. Since then the porch has been enlarged into an inclosed dance floor along the west face of the wall.

Inside the club is a fine collection of autographed photographs of general officers of the Army and historical prints to warm a collector's heart. Old weapons form part of the decorative motif and a ceramic panorama of the Monitor-Merrimac battle relieves the mantelpiece of the main fireplace. The battle was fought in Hampton Roads.

Fort Monroe, oldest Army post now active, occupies land first fortified in 1609 when Algernourne Fort was established there by John Smith's Englishmen.



Next Dance?—On the dance floor beside one of the old sallyports, which forms a doorway into the Fort Monroe Club, stands Dinnie Ricker. Eighteenth century swivel guns decorate the doorway

Main Fireplace of the club was designed to heat shot to be fired at wooden ships to set them ablaze. Elinor Young (left) and Jeanne Reese

Arches between casemates were designed for strength, not for comfort, as Patsy Elliott and Lieut. J. F. Van Pelt demonstrate. Casemate arches indicate the beauty of the Fort club

Bridge Game in front of window which was once an embrasure for a big gun. Players are Lieut. J. F. Van Pelt, Mrs. Franklin W. Reese, Maj. Reese and Elizabeth De Merritt; kibitzer, Patsy Elliott

Relic enshrined in the Fort Monroe Club is this curious old percussion lock musket, of outrageous caliber and 10 feet long. Elizabeth De Merritt tries to see if it's real, Elinor Young and Lieut. F. R. Vredenburgh lend support

Norma Gilham, 21, of Butte, Mont., and Irmgard Koehler, 22, of Milwaukee, Wis., are typical of the thousands of young women from all parts of the United States who have come to Washington in the last few months to work for the Government.

The girls have been in Washington about a year and are both employed in the Navy Department, each at a salary of $1,440 a year, or $120 monthly. For board and room, they pay $45 each per month.

'Whistling in the Dark' Bowls 'Em Over at Capitol

Red Skelton Nails Down His Stardom By Hilarious Comedy Performance in Original Truex Role; Pastor on Stage

RED SKELTON is very definitely "in".

Conceding something to the enthusiasm of Washington audiences over their "adopted son" in any of his merry manifestations, the rambunctious Red would be a hit in any man's theater in "Whistling in the Dark," disclosed for the first time—in its present picturization, that is—on a local screen at Loew's Capitol Theater yesterday. Here in the National Capital, where he launched his "big time" career, a crowd that overflowed the most capacious picture theater in town almost tore down the house.

His previous film assignments have given rich promise of a spectacular Skelton future on the screen. "Whistling in the Dark" clinches it. Red, in a remarkably short space of time, as such things go in the cinema, is given his first stellar opportunity by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in this remake of the popular stage mystery-comedy and shines like a whole constellation. His antic comedy is not concentrated in any one continuous half-hour, as it is when he is out there alone doing a "single," but that is an advantage. It gives him the opportunity to prove that he can sustain a real characterization between the bursts of his zany humor. There will be no stopping the fellow now.

The formula of chills-fever-romance-action-suspense-hysterics followed by the piece, so closely identified with the name of Ernest Truex on both stage and screen, is pretty thoroughly known to the initiate of the theater by now. It is the story of the radio star who, as "The Fox," broadcasts a nightly hair-curler of the sleuth who can riddle any crime and therefore probably create the perfect one, minus the flaw that always traps the culprit. So he is kidnaped by a gang of racketeers for that express purpose. All he has to do overnight is devise a murder that nobody will ever be able to solve. To complicate matters a bit, the two rivals for his affection are abducted along with him. He manages to fill the order to his captors' satisfaction—and then rigs up the loophole for the law. It would be a mighty scarey business, were it not played with all of the hoop-de-doo of hilarious farce, what with its sliding doors, mysterious passages, secret panels, airplane sequences and all. But that is the way it is played.

Right Down Red's Roadway

This is a happy circumstance, with Skelton the star. No glamour boy or tragedian, Red still is one of the theater's most gifted funny men. He has the knack of pointing a wise crack or a lunatic piece of business until it will puncture even the dullest consciousness and let loose a blast of spontaneous laughter. He is as competent a comedian here as it is possible to be within the limitations of the script—and even those he makes ridiculously flexible.

But, able as he proves himself to be, Red is not by any means the whole show in "Whistling in the Dark." Ann Rutherford and Virginia Grey pucker up some neat whistles on their own accounts as his cocaptives, and Conrad Veidt is his usual suave and sinister self as the master-mind (bar one) of the predatory mob. Then there are "Rags" Ragland, Eve Arden, Henry O'Neill, Paul Stanton, Don Costello and numerous others to keep the thing popping like a bunch of firecrackers. They all turn in high-speed performances.

The stage bill at the Capitol this week is provided by Tony Pastor and his orchestra and specialists, plus Virginia Austin and her inspired puppets and Bobby Pine and Ruth Foster, a knockabout comedy act that is principally the nimble Mr. Pine. The Pastor band is one of the better exponents of modern rhythms, that features the solo trumpeting of Stuffy Pastor, a baryione, girl vocalist and a one-man band that is considerably better than most. Dick Leslie, local contest winner, also chips in with his clever impersonations and character impressions. Except for the lyrics of some of the songs—notably "Let's Do It," probably expurgated by now—the Pastor should continue to preside over a consistently large flock. Art Brown's singing-bee and the Fox Movietone News complete a bill that bids fair to pack the Capitol to the chandeliers all week.

Such a Dear, Sweet, Old Lady!

as he appears in his vastly impudent and ridiculous masquerade in the title role of Brandon Thomas' imperishable farce of "Charley's Aunt," which opened yesterday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater in its new Twentieth Century-Fox manifestation. Mr. Benny is surrounded by an uproarious supporting cast

Jack Benny, 'Charley's Aunt,' Moves Oxford to Hollywood

By Richard L. Coe

Everyone from the Lord Bishop of Upper Kumquot-on-the-Rillerah to convict 999,999 having had his turn at playing "Charley's Aunt," the role now has been assigned to jello-jowled Jack Benny. The result is on view at the Palace—something of a "Jack Benny Goes to Oxford."

This is a trifle late in a 50-year-old game to remark that "Charley's Aunt" is both clean and hilarious farce, even if each humorous contretemps is foretold with the certainty that would belittle M. Nostradamus' over-vaunted prowess. Its third film version—Syd Chaplin and Charlie Ruggles were the stars of the earlier two—is carefully, even lavishly produced; the casting, with one exception, is neatly suited to the demands of the piece and altogether, though you won't laugh with unfeigned joy, you'll chuckle like a fool at the situations in which Lord Fancourt Babberly finds himself.

In case the fundamentals of the Brandon Thomas comedy escape you, picture Oxford of 1890. Charley Wykeham and Jack Chesney are expecting Charley's Aunt from Brazil—yes this is where that line about the nuts originates—to chaperone a luncheon for their pert, anxious girl-friends. A telegram from Auntie announces postponement of her arrival. What to do? Lord Fancourt, who's been trying to graduate for ten years, is in their debt and leading lady of the varsity play as well. Popped into his costume "Babby" will pass as a female from distant parts. Remember?

Picture, then, the harassed student hugging the girls with grandmotherly devotion; warding off aged suitors, then leading them a merry chase through the garden; shaving, lighting up a cigar and doing all manner of things aged ladies were not supposed to do in the '90's.

Those weird sisters whom an orderly world catalogues as Fate have had a strange quirk up their sleeves when they cast radio's top comic of our early 1940's in the role that has been so innocently amusing for fifty years. One might have thought such a comic would have been perfect for the part. But the glib Benny is a leering, fatuous caricature of that grey-wigged dame whose actions, while not those of a "lady," are never so gross. While his age is explained away by a mental dullness which keeps him at the university twice as long as most men, he simply isn't one of the Oxford boys. After a kidding try in the beginning at Oxonian English, he lapses mercifully into Hollywoodese.

Generally the adaptation holds closely to the original. Played on a lower level, the wall scene is not so funny as Syd Chaplin made it, nor does the film have the light wit that made the Day Tuttle-Richard Skinner production of last season so beguiling.

Arleen Whelan and Anne Baxter are charming as the girls in question. James Ellison and Richard Haydn (Beatrice Lillie's "Mr. Carp") are likable as the two students and Edmund Gwenn and Laird Cregar properly bumptious as money-mad suitors. Kay Francis is the real Donna Lucia.

"Sucker List," a "Crime Does Not Pay" release devoted to the tricks of the "Bookie" racket; "What Happens At Night?" a Terry Toon in color and M-G-M's News of the Day complete the bill.

LEONARD LYONS, whose Broadway column appears regularly on this page, is on vacation until September 1. His pithy paragraphs will be resumed here on that date.

HEDDA HOPPER

Suspended Animation

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 7.—Scarcely a week rolls by that Warner Brothers don't put someone on the suspended list. They must consider it some sort of a game. The latest is George Raft. He doesn't like his part "In All Through the Night," and prefers suspension to letting his public down.

GEORGE RAFT

Claude Rains will no doubt play the late James Stephenson's role in "King's Row." . . . When I asked Ann Sheridan if she ever thought of what would have happened if she'd stuck to school teaching instead of hitting the movies, she said: "When I get that far, I stop thinking."

With Paramount testing everyone from Norma Talmadge to Pola Negri for Pilar, in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," I'd suggest, after seeing "Charley's Aunt," they give Jack Benny a crack at it. You know, somebody's bound to write a piece about what a skirt did for Jack Benny!

You don't often hear players admit they get little fan mail, but Charles Laughton actually chuckles over that fact. He says, "Can you imagine anybody writing a fan letter to Captain Bly, the Hunchback, or any of the other diabolical characters I've played?" But now that he's doing rather a kindly old man with Deanna Durbin, he's hoping to get at least one. "Of course," he adds, "I might have to write it myself."

At March Field the other night when Charles Ruggles did his air show, Benny Rubin and Verna Felton, of my air show, put on an impromptu dance with a skidding fall at the finish that had the boys applauding for four minutes—and Benny Rubin saying under his breath to Verna, "Stay down as long as they clap, I'm winded!"

Our Hollywood beauties are gloating. For two successive nights they dressed up like plush horses, looked as stars should, and attended first the opening of "Anna Christie" in Santa Barbara, and then "Charley's Aunt" at the Chinese.

Speaking of "Anna Christie," it was a foregone conclusion Ingrid Bergman and J. Edward Bromberg would give superb performances. But I'm so happy that Jessie Busley got theers at last, and that my friend Kate Lawson, who did the settings, came into her own.

Old friends could take a tip from Mary Pickford and Lillian Gish, whose political views are diametrically opposed to each other. Yet Lillian moved into Mary's guest house for a two-month stay . . . I never thought I'd live to hear Irene Dunne say she's having so much fun playing with the baby that she doesn't care when or if she makes another picture. If all top stars felt the same, Uncle Sam would be crying for that income tax.

When Marjorie Main goes shopping, she likes quiet. "Listen," she says to saleswomen, "You don't want to sell me a dress one-tenth as badly as I want to buy one—otherwise I wouldn't be here. So please don't say a word—just let me pick out my own rags."

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Commuter-Correspondent

Hollywood, Aug. 7 (INS).—If you've read "Berlin Diary"—and it seems as if the whole world has read William Shirer's day-to-day account of the events that led up to the present war, you will be interested to hear that he is coming to Hollywood. He will fly here weekends, starting the last week in October, to confer with Erich Pommer and Oliver H. P. Garrett on "Passage to Bordeaux," the RKO thriller that is being prepared for production. I admit I am one who wants to meet Shirer, who was a foreign correspondent at the historic Munich meeting of Hitler, Chamberlain and Daladier.

LUCILLE BALL

This movie is apparently giving Lucille Ball the opportunity for which she has been crying. She is to have the lead in "Passage to Bordeaux" with Robert Stevenson handling the megaphone. Shirer will not actually do any writing—merely suggesting scenes and situations to Garrett, the script writer.

With all this talk about good neighbor feeling, Carmen Miranda will revense the situation and travel 10,000 miles in the United States meeting the folks in the country. She bought a new car and with her mother, sister and business manager she'll stop at a number of little towns before she reports to the Shuberts in New York for "Crazy House." After the run of this play she'll go to her native Brazil and tell them something about the United States of America and what the people in the villages are like. With that personality of hers, Carmen ought to make the countryside 100 per cent Miranda-conscious.

There is talk on the Warner lot that Richard Whorf, Warner's private genius, will be tested for the role of George Gershwin in "The Life of George Gershwin." He's now playing a part in "New Orleans Blues" and according to the Warnerites he's fulfilling all expectations. Remember—he's the boy who designed the sets, helped direct the show for Lunt and Fontanne and did the same for Tyrone Power and Aannabella in "Liliom"? In other words, he not only acts, but designs, writes and directs and does well in all four.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 8, 1941

Early, Archie Star as Nats Beat A's, 5 to 4

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

"Dear Jughead," writes an admirer of this department, "don't you know there is a National League. There are thousands of newcomers to Washington who are National League fans and when are you going to get hep that this is almost a two-league town? Let's have some National League news.—BROOKLYN."

POVICH

Sure, we knew all the time that there is a National League. That's the league that usually gets knocked off four straight by the Yankees in the World Series, and drops all those All-Star games. But we ain't narrow-minded. We'll talk about the National League.

We were just getting a little bit excited, ourselves, about the Pittsburgh Pirates. There's a club that could win the National League pennant and not make anybody mad, because they'd be doing it the hard way. Less than a month ago, Frankie Frisch's lads were buried in sixth place, 15½ games out of the lead and apparently not such a hot second-division club. Look at 'em today. They might take it all.

Pirates Get Different Sort of Ride

Frisch has been doing a job on the Pirates, apparently. As of today they're only eight games out of the league and they are, in fact, the hottest article in it. They've won 18 of their last 21 games. You can go back a bit and say they've won 32 out of their last 42. If the Dodgers and Cardinals don't know enough to be scared of the Pirates, they're wandering around in a pair of fools' paradises.

Frisch is giving the Pirates a different sort of a ride than they used to get under Pie Traynor before Fearless Frankie took the job. Under Traynor it was the habit of the Pirates to show early foot, take a long lead and then blow it horribly. Frisch is making his move with the club in midseason. Last year he saved his job by making a stirring finish in the last two months. He's getting 'em under way sooner this season and it may be well-timed.

The chances are that if you took a vote at this time, Frisch would have to be credited with the No. 1 managerial job of the majors this season. It wasn't any stylish club that he entered in the race. Beyond Shortstop Arky Vaughan and Catcher Al Lopez, Frisch didn't have much to start with. A lot of guys named Elliott, Van Robays, Handley, Martin, Vince DiMaggio and Elbie Fletcher were not supposed to be the type to take a club far, but they are doing it.

Vince DiMaggio Lends Power

The Reds gave up on Vince DiMaggio because he struck out more times than anybody in the league, but Frisch found a place for him because even a hint of power was welcome to the Pirates. The eldest of the DiMags has been breaking up ball games for him, and Frisch forgives his frequent strikeouts. Elbie Fletcher was traded by the Braves to the Pirates because he couldn't hit as first basemen are supposed to hit, but that .311 average of Fletcher's is now very revealing.

The Pirates are second only to the Cardinals in team batting, and without benefit of the Waner brothers, who for 15 years were synonymous with Pittsburgh power. Frisch this spring called for a new deal, traded off both the Waners, and has had no reason to regret it. Frisch hasn't made many mistakes. When he lured Al Lopez from the Braves, he came up with the smartest catcher in the league. Lopez has done that Pittsburgh pitching no harm.

There hasn't been a pennant in Pittsburgh since 1927, and a Pirate victory would be popular what with both the Cardinals and the Dodgers having shown an inclination to chuck it at various times. As they faded, the Pirates came on and made up seven and a half games in less than three weeks. And they have one big edge, a manager, in Frisch, who knows how to win pennants.

Dodgers Succor Giants

But the best sideshow in the National League is being provided by the Dodgers and the Giants, and it's regular prince-and-pauper stuff. Remember 1932 when Manager Bill Terry of the Giants, then in the thick of the pennant race, haughtily dismissed the Dodgers by inquiring if they were still in the league? And remember that the Dodgers a few days later knocked the Giants out of the pennant race? Well, they're still answering Terry's question.

The Dodgers are very much in the league these days, but the Giants seem to be in it only by grace of the Dodgers. The Giants would be starving at the gate if it weren't for the Brooklyn club. If the Giants break even at the box office at the end of the season, it will be only because of the popularity of the Dodgers and the 22 games they play with the Giants. The Dodgers have been drawing the Giants' crowds.

Last season, the Dodgers attracted 290,000 customers to the Polo Grounds in their 11 games there with the Giants, and this year they have already drawn more than 210,000 to the Polo Grounds. The Giants, in fact, are making a living off the team that Bill Terry once despised.

Cards Nose Reds, 3 to 2, Regain Lead

Red Birds Battle 11 Innings to Beat Walters; Cooper Records Victory

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 7.—The ever-battling St. Louis Cardinals grabbed the National League lead from the idle Brooklyn Dodgers by breaking loose in the eleventh inning to rout the Cincinnati Reds and Bucky Walters, 3 to 2.

The Reds themselves came within an ace of snatching the game back in their half, scoring one run on Jimmy Gleeson's pinch single, but with the tying run on third and the winning run on first, Eddie Joost fouled out to Gus Mancuso.

Up to the eleventh, Morton Cooper, who is still recovering from the effects of an elbow operation, and Walters fought each other on almost even terms. The Cards scored one run in the second on Johnny Mize's double and Jimmy Brown's single and the Reds got it back in the seventh on singles by Frank McCormick, Chuck Aleno and Lonnie Frey.

Reds Blow Chance

The Reds blew a chance to win in the tenth when Frey opened with a double and went to third on Walters' sacrifice. The Cards then pulled some successful strategy, intentionally walking Joost and Mike McCormick, and Cooper forced Pinch Hitter Lloyd Waner and Frank McCormick to foul out.

Mize opened the eleventh with a single and Enos Slaughter sent him to third with a double. Brown went out on an infield play, but Estel Crabtree batted for Martin Marion and singled Mize in. Mike McCormick's perfect throw cut down Slaughter on his attempt to score. Cooper then singled in Crabtree with what turned out to be the winning run.

The Reds' late uprising chased Cooper, but Sam Nahem stopped the Reds short of the game.

Hubsher, Mullins Take Decisions

Alexandria, Aug. 7.—Roy Hubsher, of the Apollo Club, earned a split decision over Red Baldwin, of the St. Mary's Club, in the feature bout of an amateur card held at the Municipal Stadium here tonight. Both weighed 155 pounds.

In a 114-pound bout which stole the show, Dickie Mullins, of the National Training School, scored a unanimous decision over Joe Petro, of Apollo. Mullins floored Petro for a one-count in the first heat.

St. Mary's fighters won four of the seven bouts they engaged in on the ten-event card.

Columbia Girls Win Softball Title

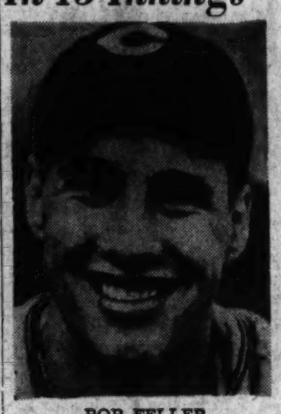
Kenilworth, although losing to Columbia, outhit the victors, 11 to 2. A five-run rally in the fifth inning cinched the game for Columbia, which was coached by Anna Honabach.

Tigers Beat Bob Feller, 4-3, In 13 Innings



BOB FELLER

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—The Tigers trimmed Bob Feller today, 4 to 3, but it took them 13 innings and three hours and 40 minutes. Singles by Barney McCosky, Mike Higgins and Bruce Campbell accounted for the deciding run.

Soup Campbell's pinch-hit homer scored two other pinch hitters, Larry Rosenthal and Hal Trosky, ahead of him in the ninth to tie the score and signal the appearance of Schoolboy Rowe as a replacement for Johnny Gorsica.

Gorsica had scored one of the Tigers' runs in the fifth. One of Feller's 11 bases on balls came in the eighth with the bases full and forced in another. The Tigers added their third in the ninth on a single by McCosky and an error by Ray Mack.

'Unknown' Takes Lead At Toronto

Draper, Amateur, Posts 67; Trailing Are Smith, Bulla And Lloyd Mangrum

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Aug. 7.—Tom Draper, jr., a big, amiable St. Louis amateur who "just happened to drop into Toronto on a holiday," fired a par-smashing 67 over the Lambton Club course today to take the first-round lead in the Canadian Open golf championship.

Only five others in the field of 120 Canadian and United States stars managed to beat par as a stiff southerly wind swept the upper reaches of the course and most of the players found the greens tricky. Scores of from 71 to 74 were commonest and some of the prominent pros went even higher.

Three United States professional aces wound up one stroke behind Draper. They were Horton Smith, of Pinehurst, N. C.; Big Johnny Bulla, of Chicago, and Lloyd Mangrum, of Monterey Park, Calif.

The other par beaters were Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Richmond, Va., pro, and Archie Skinner, of St. Andrews, N. B., the first Canadian among those seeking the title which has gone across the border for 26 years.

Snead Cards 71

Defending champion Sam Snead, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., was one of seven players tied at 71, a stroke behind Gene Sarazen, colorful veteran from Tuckahoe, N. Y.; W. A. (Red) Francis, of Altoona, Pa.; Bob Gray, of Toronto; Vic Corbett, of Owen Sound, Ontario, and Gerald Proulx, of Montreal.

The only prominent United States players who actually shot themselves out of the picture were Ray Mangrum, of Oakmont, Pa., and Willie Goggin, of New York, who shot 76's. On the ragged edge, however, were Ky Laffoon, of Miami, Okla., and Amateurs Jim Black, of St. Louis, and Skee Riegel,

Heber Newsome Wins Over Lefty Gomez; DiMaggio Hitless as Williams Gets Three

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 7.—The midsummer siesta of the New York Yankees assumed the proportions of a slump today as the American League leaders dropped their fifth game in seven starts—a 9-to-5 decision to the Boston Red Sox—and lost their first series since June 18.

Heber (Dick) Newsome, the rookie right-hander who has become the Red Sox ace with 13 victories, limited the Bombers to eight hits and gave Joe DiMaggio his fifteenth blanking of the year, although Joe got credit for driving in three of New York's runs.

Johnny Sturm and Rob Rolfe divided six of the Yankee safeties between them. They hit successive doubles in the first inning for a run

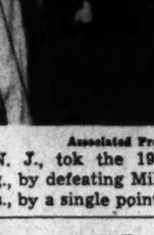
Red Cochrane, Welter Champ, Enlists in Navy

New York, Aug. 7.—Freddie (Red) Cochrane, of Elizabeth, N. J., the newly crowned welterweight champion, enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve here today. Cochrane, who recently won the title from Fritzie Zivic, signed up for a four-year term.



COCHRANE

Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, was at the recruiting station and it appeared likely that Cochrane would be assigned to the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla., where Tunney is athletic director.

Cochrane already is signed for a return bout with Zivic October 3, and there was no indication whether his enlistment would interfere. Other boxers who have signed up as instructors under Tunney have obtained leaves for fights.

Jake Early Pounds 4 Hits, Archie Two; Masterson Winner In Relief Role

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Nats came up with a new 1-2 punch yesterday, George Archie and Jake Early, and the upshot was a 5-4 victory over the Athletics. The outcome was very much in doubt, however, going into the last half of the ninth inning.

Big Sam Chapman and the A's were doing nicely at that point, boasting a 4-3 lead by virtue of a tremendous Chapman homerun with one on in the first inning and an equally tremendous triple in the eighth with two on base.

But came the ninth and with Archie and Early first up the result was obvious, although it took a piece of master-minding by Manager Harris and eight men to provide the tying and winning runs to the delight of several thousand Ladies Day fans, a thousand paid spectators and 600 Washington Post carriers.

Archie, who had doubled, singled and scored twice, was the first man to face Tom Ferrick, the league's leading relief hurler, and he drew a walk. Early, with a double and two singles to his credit in three previous trips was next and he promptly spanked his fourth hit, a double into right field which Wally Moses touched but could not hold, putting men on second and third.

Cramer Hits Fence

Wayne Sabin Upsets Bobby Riggs In Rye Tennis; Parker Beaten

'Bitsy' Grant Reaches Eastern Round of 4 In Straight Sets

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 7.—A pair of major upsets—one a startling surprise and one that might have been forseen, but wasn't—sent Wayne Sabin, of Reno, Nev., and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, into the semifinals of the Eastern grass court tennis championships today.

Sabin defeated top-seeded Bobby Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., in straight sets, 8—6, 6—3, and Grant won even more decisively from Frank Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., the fifth-seeded player, 6—4, 6—2. Neither Sabin nor Grant was seeded for this tournament.

Although Sabin has been making a fine comeback this year after having been suspended from tournament play last season, he hardly figured to beat Riggs. He did it, however, apparently by following an attack planned before the match.

Grant In Comeback

Grant, a former Davis Cup star, hasn't played much tournament tennis for the last year or two, but he still is a steady, canny player and probably knows Parker's game almost as well as his own. They have met frequently in the past, with Bitsy often getting the decision.

BOBBY RIGGS

Only the two men's singles matches were played today. The bracket will be completed tomorrow when National Champion Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, faces William Talbert, of Cincinnati, and Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., plays Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif.

The semifinal brackets in women's singles were filled almost according to form by Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Sarah Palfred Cooke, of New York; Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., and Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles. The nearest thing to an upset came when Miss Arnold, seeded fifth, turned in a 6—2, 6—2 decision over fourth-seeded Mrs. Frank Kovacs, the former Virginia Wolfenden.

Misses Set Point

Riggs, whose record is studded with amazing comebacks in matches, couldn't hold the lead against Sabin today. Leading 5—3 in the first set, he failed to make set point three times as Sabin made the shots that counted.

Sabin kept his drives deep and Riggs' drop shots, which had worked well against earlier opponents, didn't score. He tried 16 and scored only one point.

Grant, evidently in perfect condition, out-steadied and out-generalled Parker when Frankie tried to beat him down in a baseline duel. He was shifting steadily and covered the court with his old-time agility to make seemingly impossible returns.

Pittsburgh Has Won 18 Out of 21; Ken Heintzelman Knocked From Box

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The Pittsburgh Pirates climbed another step toward a contending position in the National League today when Al Lopez homered in the ninth inning to beat the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3, for the Pirates sixth straight victory and their eighteenth in 21 games.

The Cubs knocked Ken Heintzelman out of the box in the second inning with a three-run assault, but Lloyd Dietz took up with one out and held the Cubs runless the remainder of the game, yielding six of the Chicago teams' ten hits.

Chisox Beat Browns, 11-1, Under Lights

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 7.—Held scoreless for five innings, the Chicago White Sox tallied in every stanza thereafter to wallop the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 1, tonight as Buck Ross set the tailenders down with seven hits.

Taft Wright, who got four hits in five trips to te plate, led the Chicago attack with rousing help from Don Kolloway and Joey Kuhel who had three safeties apiece. Kuhel hit his eleventh homer of the season in the seventh with the bases empty.

A ninth-inning homer by Walter Judnich, his eighth of the year, spoiled a shutout for Ross, who had stopped the Browns on five singles until that stage.

Carriers of Washington Post See Nats Beat A's

Shown above are some of the 600 carriers of The Washington Post who saw the Nats beat the Athletics, 5-4, as guests of the Washington Baseball Club at Griffith Stadium yesterday. The Nats' victory made the day complete for the members of The Post's circulation department passed, filling the bases. Rookie Morris Aderholt then went in to run for Early and Johnny Welaj went in to pinch run for Sammy West. Buddy Myer batted for Relief Pitcher Walter Masterson and lofted a long fly to center, scoring Archie with the tying run.

George Case was next up and Connie Mack ordered another intentional pass, filling the bases again and hoping for a double play. But Cramer, hitless in four previous trips, did not oblige. He smacked Ferrick's first pitch high off the right field wall, just a few feet short of a home run, and Aderholt trotted home with the winning run. Cramer received credit for an automatic single under the circumstances but the winning blow was a potential triple.

Jake Early, who is developing into somewhat of a slugger, figured in all of the Nats' run-scoring innings. In the second the hefty backstop cracked a double off the fence in right field to score Vernon, who had walked.

He came back in the fifth to follow George Archie's double with a single to advance Archie to third and the latter scored on Bloodworth's infield out.

Archie Singles Again

Again in the seventh Archie singled and moved to third on Early's single with one out. Bloodworth was a pop-up victim, but Sid Hudson tried to win his own game at this point with a hit through Suder's glove. George Case followed with another single off Suder's glove which Brancato finally grabbed with his bare hand to prevent Early from scoring. Then came the ninth and that man Early again shone.

Both starting pitchers were in the showers before the game was over. Hudson was doing fairly well except when Chapman was at bat. The latter's triple in the eighth forced Manager Harris to lift Hudson and Masterson pitched the ninth and received credit for the victory, escaping damage although touched for a walk and Brancato's double. Hudson allowed five hits in his stay.

Les McCrabb went the first seven innings for the A's and was stingy with base hits to all but Archie and Early. He was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth and Tom Ferrick was a ball-of-fire in the eighth but no puzzle in the fatal ninth.

Chapman's round-tripper in the first inning with Moses on base was his fifteenth of the year and it carried half-way up the left-field stands. The next time at bat he nearly knocked Archie down with a scorching liner but it was ruled an error for the third sacker and Chapman didn't connect again until the eighth. After Moses doubled and McCoy walked for the third time he hit the 422-foot lettering on the left-field stands for a long triple.

The Nats, who beat the A's for the second time this season Wednesday night with three double plays in the last three innings, made it four straight as Bob Johnson bounded into a twin killing yesterday in the first after Hudson walked the first two men to face him.

Cecil Travis lost ground in the batting race by going hitless in four attempts, getting only one ball out of the infield. His first time at bat Travis broke his bat while grounding to Suder, half his bat flying to Brancato at shortstop and the other half to McCrabb on the mound.

The Nats, proud possessors of a three-game winning streak, left last night for a week's tour of the Eastern clubs, opening today with a single game in Boston with Steve Sundra on the mound. They return next Friday as hosts to the Red Sox, after visiting Philadelphia and New York for two double-headers.

On the Line

CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 7.—The Yanks would prefer to play the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series, rather than the Cards, because it would mean less traveling and more money—particularly if Larry MacPhail's heart begins bleeding so much for the Brooklyn fans that he yields the Dodgers' home games and puts them in the Yankee Stadium.

But the Yanks are inclined to believe that the Cardinals would give them more of a run for their dough. Being sluggers, the Yanks respect the slugging prowess of Billy Southworth's ball club. Being fanciers of fast ball pitching rivals, they believe that Higbe and Wyatt, especially the former, would be pretty delectable.

Whether it will be a Yankee-Cardinal or Yankee-Dodger series, it is almost certain to be the sluggiest one in some time. The Yanks haven't much to brag about in the pitching line. They can very well go through this season without a 20-game winner, which is a slightly screwy state of affairs for a team that is almost certain to win more than 100 games. The 1941 classic should be strictly a hitters' series, with enough loose pitching to prolong it to near the maximum number of games.

The Yanks Will Be Favored

The Cards would make a slightly tougher foe for the Yanks for several reasons. They can almost hit with the Yanks, where the Dodgers cannot. Their best pitcher, Ernie White, is a left hander and one durable enough to take the kind of box work that Del Baker put on Buck Newsom in the last series. The Cards have a couple more lefthanders, Lanier and Shoun, not that either is first rate. But, on the average, a southpaw will do better against the predominantly lefthanded hitting Yanks (Rolfe, Keller, Henrich and Dickey) than will a right-hander. The Dodgers have no left hander. The Cards are a fast ball club, with more ginger and base running verve than either the Brooks or Yanks.

But no matter whether it's the Brooks or the Cards, the Yanks will be heavy favorites to win. The betting man, who decides all odds, won't be betting with much vim against a club that can throw Rolfe, Henrich, DiMaggio, Keller, Dickey and Gordon against a so-so pitcher in that order. But since the bettor decides the odds we suspect that the Yanks will be a shorter-priced favorite over the Brooks than over the Cards, because the citizens of Brooklyn can run a much higher fever over the Dodgers than the citizens of St. Louis can run over the Cards. Not that odds can exert an ounce of influence on the destined outcome of an event.

Pirates Are New Nightmares

The National League race is going to be another Smolensk. Its winner will enter the 1941 series tight-nerved and footsore. The Dodgers, who showed sorry symptoms of folding a week ago, are right back in the race. They should improve their standing in the next 10 days, while feeding on a sucker diet of Phillies, Braves and Giants. The Cards at the same time will be battling the occasionally brilliant Reds and Cubs and that new nightmare of both the Cards and Brooks—the Pirates.

However, we doubt that the schedule is going to be the deciding factor in the National League race. After all, the Cards get the same 22 whacks at the Phils and Braves that the Dodgers (and Pirates) do. The National League pennant is going to be won by the best all-around club. At present it would seem to be a contest between Brooklyn's solid, seasoned veterans and a young, nervy Gas House gang that can be very, very good and very, very bad. We suspect that the decision won't be reached until the last week—and that the victor will be severely frazzled around the edges when he limps into the Yankee Stadium for the first game of a World Series against a Yankee club which should clinch the pennant by September 15.

Teams have come out of hectic league races and swept right through their rested and relaxed World Series rivals, as for example the 1934 Cards. But over the years, a gruelling league race has proved a handicap to its winner, in the series, more often than not. We think 1941 will be no exception. The psychological let-down of the Dodgers especially would be serious. However:

Cards or Dodgers, Dodgers or Cards—either should be the Yankees' oyster. And October has an "R" in it.

Brewers Beat Little Tavern; Cameo Leads

By its 2-1 defeat at the hands of Heurich Brewers, the Little Tavern nine dropped into second place in the Washington Post Industrial League race by a one-half game margin behind Cameo Furniture yesterday.

After three scoreless innings, Heurich scored one run in the fourth on successive hits by Dick Knight and Miller that scored Huck Stall, who had walked. Little Tavern's lone tally came when Burnie Good singled to center and then stole second. Catcher "Fee" Collier was charged with an error on the play as he threw the ball into centerfield. Miller, playing centerfield, succeeded Collier in throwing the ball over third base for the second error in succession, and Good romped home for the tying run.

In the fifth, Willie Kaufman walked to start Heurich's half. Cable sacrificed Kaufman to second, and on Posnak's single, Kaufman scored for the deciding run.

"Dummy" Downes, victors' hurler, allowed the Tavernmen only two hits while Heurich collected six.

Cameo Furniture will meet O'Donnell Sea Grill this afternoon on the East Ellipse at 5 p. m. Otis Printz will pitch for Cameo, and Bill Helmer will be on the mound for O'Donnell.

Mamakos Off Tonight for Colan Fight

Washington's Steve Mamakos, seventh ranking middleweight of the world, will leave tonight with his manager, Matt Twomey, for Chicago, where Wednesday night he faces Johnny Colan, rugged New Yorker, in a 10-round bout at the Chicago Stadium. The winner of the fight has been offered a shot at Tony Zale, National Boxing Association titleholder.

This will be Mamakos' fifth fight in the Windy City. He fought a draw and scored a decision over Milt Aron. In the other two matches he was beaten by Zale.

Colan, a blond young middleweight from New York's West Side, made a big hit in Chicago on the Barlund-Conn card by scoring a sensational knockout. He is managed by Paul Damski, one-time Tex Rickard of Germany. Colan packs a wallop in either hand and boasts a string of 23 kayoes.

In Mamakos' last fight, against Tami Mauriello at Ebbets Field last month, the Golden Greek was stopped in the ninth round of a scheduled ten-round bout. Since then Mauriello has been signed to meet Gus Lesnevich for the light-heavyweight championship.

Steve went through a brisk drill yesterday at the National Guard Armory. He stepped three fast rounds with Bill Nowlin, former Golden Glover, and later tapered off on the heavy and light punching bags. He expects to scale close to 160 pounds for his Wednesday night fight.

Steve's injured finger, hurt earlier in the week, has been healing very well, and Manager Twomey doesn't expect it to bother Mamakos against Colan. Twomey stated the Greek boy is in superb condition, and he looks for the Washington boy to beat Colan and get another chance at the middleweight title.

The ten-round encounter is expected to draw $15,000. Both boys are favorites in Chicago, and Promoter Bill Rand was elated in landing the match. Rand has secured the services of Zale for a title fight, and Wednesday's match should serve as an appetizer to the Windy City fans for the championship bout which will be held sometime in September.

Redskins Sign Wilbur Moore

The signed contract of Wilbur Moore, former Minnesota star, has been received by the Washington Redskins, making a total of 42 men signed for the coming campaign.

Moore is the nineteenth veteran to agree to terms and will report for first drills at San Diego on August 17.

A good reverse runner, Moore shines on the defense. He is probably the best pass defense back on the Redskins squad. Last season he scored three touchdowns on deep reverses which had him carrying the ball to the side of the line.

This will be Moore's third season with the Redskins.

West Lanham Lists Pro Football Team

American League Franchise Virtually Taken; Yankees May Be First Opponents

That a new American League football franchise will be taken out by Edward L. Mahoney for his new West Lanham, Md., Stadium in the event the New York Yankees agree to play their opening game there on either Friday night, September 19, or Sunday afternoon, September 21, was admitted by Mahoney at a luncheon tendered sportswriters and sportscasters at his home yesterday.

Douglas Hertz, owner of the New York Yankees, will arrive here on Monday or Tuesday of next week to discuss the matter.

The New York Yankees are featuring John Kimbrough, the All-America fullback from Texas A. & M. College, who reportedly has signed a contract with Hertz calling for the highest salary ever paid a professional football player this season, somewhere around $35,000.

President William Griffith, of the American League, yesterday had recommended that the New York Yankees play their opening American League game at West Lanham and has assured a good representative on the field.

In the event the Yankees approve one of the suggested dates, Mahoney stated yesterday, Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, former head football coach and athletic director at Catholic University, and Forrest G. Cotton, his assistant and line coach, will be placed in direct charge of the team. Cotton, formerly an outstanding tackle with hte Rock Island, Ill., professional eleven, will direct the team and Bergman will serve as president and general manager.

The American League is expected to start with seven and possibly eight teams this season. The definite entries, in the event Washington is granted the opening date with the Yankees, will be Washington, New York, Baltimore, Buffalo, Columbus, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and possibly South Bend, which would play out of Indianapolis.

The new team would be named the Washington Rebels and the signing of players and other details will be inaugurated following Bergman's return from a business trip here Saturday.

and Rolfe later scored on a long fly by DiMaggio.

The veteran Lefty Gomez wasn't able to hold the margin, however. Ted Williams, who had three hits for the day, smacked his twenty-second homer in the second inning and in the fourth the Red Sockers scored twice on three singles and an error before Gomez got anybody out.

They added three more in the sixth after two were out. Two singles and an error loaded the bases, Pitcher Newsome beat out a slow roller for a run and Dominic DiMaggio singled sharply for two.

Finally in the seventh Boston blasted Gomez off the hill with four hits, including a double by Jim Tabor.

The Yanks dribbled a run across in the fifth on two hits and a forceout, another in the seventh on two singles and a fly by DiMaggio and a final tally in the ninth on Rolfe's triple and DiMaggio's forceout. His three today gave DiMaggio an even 100 runs batted in for the season.

Welsh Moves to Semifinals With Victory Over Breese

Champion Wins, 6-2, In Third Set

Breese Slips Below Wednesday's Form; Favorites Score In Three Doubles

By Jack Munhall

Slipping just a little below his surprising form of Wednesday, Bill Breese was no match for Barney Welsh yesterday at Edgemoor as their postponed and much-discussed match ended with Welsh advancing into the semifinals of the District tennis championships.

Welsh, covering the court with relentless strides and hitting his forehands with speed and power to spare, won the deciding set from the fifth-seeded Breese, 6—2. On Wednesday Breese had astounded the gallery with his brilliant playing as he narrowly dropped a 7—5 first set to the champion and then came back to take the second set easily, 6—4, before darkness interrupted.

Welsh's victory completed the semifinal bracket, which already included second-ranked Don Leavens, fourth-ranked Hugh Lynch and seventh-ranked Charley Channing.

The doubles semifinals round also was completed yesterday as Walsh and Lynch, Leavens and Dick Murphy, and Breese and Charley Channing swept to victories. Already in the round of four were Dick Bennion and Bob Underwood.

New Team

Leavens and Murphy, playing as a team for the first time because Davie Johnsen, Leavens' regular partner, was not entered in the tournament, disposed of Herb Shankin and A. Rosenbaum, 6—0, 6—2. Top-seeded Welsh and Lynch wiped up Lyman and Dole, 6—1, 6—1, and the towering combination of 6-foot 3-inch Channing and 6-foot 4-inch Breese routed Buddy Adair and Eddie Miller.

Though Breese yesterday was unable to continue the fight he carried to Welsh on Wednesday, he nevertheless was in good enough form to make the final set interesting. Welsh, grimmer and more determined looking than usual, sprang off to a 3—0 lead, but just when he seemed headed for a runaway victory, Breese braced. The big fellow held his services in the fourth game with aid of two scorching forehand placements and also took the fifth after two deuces to bring the score to 2—3.

Easy Victory

Thereafter Welsh was stingy with points and, though he was aided by several breaks on which well-aimed shots by Breese barely missed fair territory, the champion won in a fashion that left no doubt that he was deserving of the victory. Breese, picking up from Wednesday's successful second-set strategy, was storming the net whenever possible, but unlike Wednesday when he often caught Welsh out of position with overheads, he yesterday lost many points at the net. Welsh had his passing shots clicking with machine-like style.

There will be only one singles match today, and in that Welsh will seek to gain the finals in a meeting with seventh-seeded Channing at 4. Also on the schedule will be semifinal doubles matches at 5:30 between Leavens and Murphy and Bennion and Underwood, and Welsh and Lynch and Channing and Breese.

Both doubles matches shape up as close and exciting and an upset is highly likely when Lynch and Welsh tangle with Bennion and Underwood, who have impressed so far with their aggressive and flashy play.

Pro-Amateur Play Listed For Monday

The next Middle Atlantic P. G. A. Pro-Amateur Tournament, Monday at the Woodholme Club in Pikesville, will be played under the same system of handicapping which was used last week at Kenwood, amateurs with handicaps of five and under playing from scratch. Those with six and over will receive half allowance.

Pros will be allowed the usual three partners. Nothing definite has been decided about the Washington Open as Tournament Chairman Al Houghton is still looking for a course and sponsor. The tournament was scheduled to be played last Monday.

Next week's feature tournament attraction will be the sectional qualifying rounds for the national amateur championship, at the Country Club of Maryland on Thursday when 16 amateurs from two States and the District will battle for four places to the tournament in Omaha.

Identity of the players, pairings and starting times will be announced the first part of the week. The course will be open Wednesday for practice rounds. The qualifying tests will be over the usual 36-hole route.

The women have the British War Relief tournament on a week from today at Army and Navy, with $1 entry fee for both Class A and B players. Entries close Tuesday at noon with Mrs. Ed Widmayer.

Washington's delegation to the eighteenth annual Union Printcraft International Golf Association championship next Monday through Thursday in St. Louis will leave today and tomorrow.

On Your Smooth Tires

LOOK at that tire above. See those sharp, biting angles — thousands of them — built into a tough, rugged, wear-resistant non-skid tread! We can put this tread design on your smooth, worn tires by the Firestone New-Tread process. Here's the way it's done:

First, we inspect the tire carefully and make sure the body is safe and sound. The old tread is buffed so that the New-Tread will adhere to it inseparably. A Firestone New-Tread, made of the famous Vitamic rubber compound, is applied. Then it is cured on and becomes an integral part of the tire. The finished product looks like new, and is ready to deliver thousands of extra miles of safe service. That's economy! Butterman Beaten Out By Whisker

Johnston's Mare Pays $6.80; Palumbo Has Second Winner; Allen Entry Also Scores

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 7.—Capt. Ewart Johnston's Royal Business and Mrs. N. E. Stanton's Butterman, the former coming and the latter stopping, reached the wire seemingly together in today's Lazy Hour Ranch Handicap, the feature race. The judges called for the picture and the camera gave the verdict by a lip margin to Royal Business. There was no argument about J. B. Royston's Glitter Girl being the third horse in the field of seven.

It took one of the best rides of Jockey Sammy Palumbo to get Royal Business home. The 6-year-old mare was burdened with 122 pounds, 9 more than Butterman's assignment. She was last for half the 6½ furlongs while Butterman was setting the pace. Jockey Danny Scocca put up a whale of an effort to keep the pacemaker going, but Royal Business was along in the final jump.

Because of the heavy weight, Royal Business had only a lukewarm backing in the crowd of 9,000 and paid a $6.80 mutuel. She was clocked in the excellent time of 1:21 3-5. The victory was the second of the program for Palumbo, whto rode Brainchild home ahead of Beacon Queen and Saranite in the third event.

Jockey A. F. Martinez put up a fine ride in the first race to win with L. M. Allen's Clifton Dawn. The Cuban saved ground at the first turn to get to the front and then held the filly there to the end. Nassau's Beau was second and Abbots Chant was third. The winner paid $6.90 and started a $59.10 daily double.

Trainer George Cook saddled the winner of the second race, Caunora, owned by Eddie Samaha, of Washington, D. C. The 5-year-old mare raced Whatofit into defeat and sailed to the wire under good handling by Jockey Will Kelly. Counora paid $15.10.

The day's secondary feature, The City of Uniontown Purse, went to H. H. Wilson's Sky Hostess, ridden by Jockey Skeets Holland.

Little Tavern Beats Scholl's Ten, 6 to 3

The Little Tavern girls' ten defeated Scholl's, 6-3, at Sherwood yesterday as Louise Battigia and Thelma Northrup led the winners' batting attack. Dot Travis, niece of the Nats' Cecil Travis, starred for Scholl's with a triple.

Broad Changes Asked In Securities Laws

SEC and Investment Industry Submit 1,000 Pages of Proposals to Congress

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission and the investment industry sent to Congress yesterday proposals to overhaul and simplify the Federal securities laws.

The proposed changes, mostly of a technical character, were embodied in about 1,000 pages of documents which officials said represented the first important attempt to revise the 1933 and 1934 securities laws. They touched nearly every phase of the business of corporations issuing securities, bankers selling securities to the public, and public trading in securities on stock exchanges.

In many cases, the commission and the industry representatives agreed; in others they differed sharply.

Aimed at Red Tape

The commission said that certain industry proposals were regarded as "serious threats to the protection of the investigating public and as a retrogression toward evils which impelled the enactment of these statutes in 1933 and 1934."

The industry representatives replied that their proposals were designed to "fully safeguard investors without unnecessarily impeding the conduct of honest business. It is the view of the representatives of the industry that proper recognition has not been given by the commission to the fact that the efficient as well as the honest conduct of business is essential in the public interest and should be an important factor governing the formulation of all proposals as to statutory provisions and the establishment of regulations thereunder.

"The representatives of the industry believe that the proposals . . . would in no sense weaken the basic provisions of either the Securities Act of 1933 or of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 nor deprive investors of adequate protection. But they will do much to aid business."

Opinions Still Vary

The SEC approved 55 of 86 suggestions made by the investment industry. Some differences of opinion between the commission and the industry remained after a year of conferences and persons close to the negotiations said these would have to be settled in Congress.

Chief negotiators with the SEC were the Investment Bankers Association of America, the National Association of Securities Dealers, the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Exchange.

Conferees during the long discussions of the bills also included representatives of 13 regional stock exchanges, life insurance executives and officials in some corporations which have issued securities.

Copies of the reports were sent to Chairman Wagner, Democrat, New York, of the Senate Banking Committee and Chairman Lea, Democrat, California, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Industry's Aims Listed

The major suggestions of the investing industry for revision of the 1933 Securities Act include:

1. Simplification of procedure for registering new securities. Jointly recommended by the SEC and the industry.

2. Opening of the period between the filing of a registration statement and its effective date to solicitation of customers. Opposed by the SEC unless certain suggested safeguards are included.

3. Use of a "short form" or abbreviated prospectus for soliciting customers, with general prospectus still necessary before actual sales. Concurred in by the SEC.

4. Exemption of employe pension plans from registration. SEC opposes blanket exemption, but would agree to modified form giving it authority to control exemptions.

5. Exemption of issues up to $500,000 from registration. The SEC now may exempt issues up to $100,000 and opposed industry's proposal, but expressed willingness to try exemptions up to $300,000 with certain restrictions.

6. Require registration of securities sold privately, such as sales made directly to insurance companies or other institutional investors. The industry strongly supports this proposal, and the SEC concurs, provided institutional investors be permitted to carry on preliminary negotiations prior to effective date of registration.

7. Exempt securities coming under the Public Utility Holding Co. from registration under the Securities Act. Opposed by the SEC.

Changes in Act

Major changes suggested for the 1934 Securities Exchange Act include:

1. Extension of the registration of broker-dealers to partners of firms and officers and directors of corporations with provisions so that the SEC could proceed against individuals accused of violating the law without being required to act against the entire firm or corporation as at present. Supported by both the industry and the SEC.

2. Prohibit the withdrawal of a broker-dealer registration while a revocation proceeding is in progress thus avoiding full disclosure of the facts. Proposed by the commission and concurred in by the industry.

3. Authorize the Federal Reserve Board to permit extensions of credit without collateral or on unregistered securities. Proposed by the board and accepted by the industry and the SEC.

4. Exempt brokers from margin requirements on dealings between members of a securities exchange. Opposed by the SEC.

5. Segregation of funds deposited as collateral on customer-owned securities loaned by a broker. Opposed by the industry.

6. Require security issuers to solicit proxies prior to meetings of corporations. Proposal sponsored by SEC. New York exchanges proposed also that proxy section be extended to cover securities traded interstate on over-the-counter markets.

7. Repeal the provision requiring "insiders"—officers, directors or principal owners of corporations—to turn over to the corporation any profits on dealings in its securities made within six months. Opposed by the SEC.

8. Give SEC authority to require security exchanges to enforce their rules and to assure "fair representation" of all members in the management of such exchanges. Both suggestions opposed by the industry.

9. Increase the SEC membership from 5 to 9. SEC "vigorously" opposed.

In a supplement asked by Lea, the SEC analyzed a bill for revising the 1933 and 1934 acts introduced April 14 by Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, and expressed opposition to virtually every provision.

Benefits Are Cited

Robert McLean Stewart of the Investment Bankers Association Investment Bankers Association said at a joint SEC industry press conference that "the impressive thing about the two reports was that the area of agreement was so wide that the agreements overshadow the disagreements."

He explained that the agreements would facilitate the securities business in such ways as enabling brokers to send out a four-page instead of 50-page documents in soliciting the sale of securities; enabling dealers to write ordinary business letters without fear of incurring civil liberties for failure to state some remote fact about a security; simplifying and reducing the business of registering new securities issues.

Compromise Ends A. G. E. Tax Suit

By the Associated Press

The Treasury announced yesterday it had agreed to settle back tax claims for $6,887,897. Officials declined to say what the Treasury claimed originally.

The plan, which is subject to approval of the Federal Court in New York, provides for the payment of $5,700,000 by the trustees, and the remaining $1,187,897 by Howard C. Hopson, former head of the system, his three sisters, and certain investment and service companies organized by Hopson.

Technically, the agreement was for a larger amount, but it included $2,069,223 which was paid by the system over a year ago.

Detroit Leads Nation In Bank Clearings Rise

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Bank clearings in 23 leading cities totaled $6,477,139,000 in the week ended Wednesday, an increase of 17.9 per cent over $5,492,814,000 in the comparable week a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The amount was also $578,328,000, or 9.7 per cent above the preceding week.

Detroit recaptured the lead in percentage gain after losing it to Louisville last week. Transactions at the motor capital were 48.7 per cent better than a year ago. New Orleans was second with 47.8 and Louisville dropped to third with 46.8. Other important gainers were: St. Louis, 40; Cleveland, 38.9; Buffalo, 37.5; Kansas City, 37, and Atlanta, 36.7.

Fewer Defense Metals Used in 1942 Willys

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 7 (AP).—The 1942 Willys American, which President Joseph W. Frazer said will use one-third less vital defense materials—steel, iron, rubber, zinc and aluminum—than the average of four favorite-selling cars on the market, was shown to dealers yesterday.

Frazer said the model will save nearly a million pounds of vital defense materials for every 1,000 units and is presented in answer to the Government's request for conservation of essential preparedness materials.

Sugar Prices Continue Up For 4th Day

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug 7.—Sugar for future delivery advanced for the fourth consecutive session today as the trade heard the staple was being purchased in larger quantities for shipment to Great Britain.

Strength also appeared in the cash market where raw sugar advanced .05 of a cent to 3.75 cents a pound, the highest since 1939.

After the close of the market, it was announced in Washington that Federal sugar price officials estimated a quotation of 3.75 cents a pound for raw sugar would be over the 110 per cent of parity ceiling which could be imposed under pending price control legislation.

A price of 3.70 cents would be "close to" 110 per cent of parity, it was added.

The British government was reported to have purchased around 100,000 tons or better of Cuban sugar at a price of around 1.75 cents, f. o. b. Cuba, for September-October delivery. This was the first big-scale purchase of the commodity to come to light in some time.

Moreover, in the past fortnight, between 5,000 and 10,000 tons of United States granulated sugar has been sold to Europe, with naviceris obtained. This sugar is reported destined for the neutral countries of Spain, Switzerland and Egypt. Prices paid ranged from 2.50 cents to 2.60 a pound, f. a. s. Atlantic ports, compared with previous business in the price range of 2.40 to 2.50 cents.

The latest sales are significant in that export refined business to date, including the above transactions, aggregates only around 35,000 tons.

The movement of sugar values was watched closely today, for huge quantities of the staple will be purchased in retail stores throughout the Nation for fruit and vegetable canning during the next 60 days.

Wholesale Commodity Index Gains Further

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday an increase of 0.5 per cent in the general level of wholesale commodity prices for the week ended August 2. It was attributed principally to price advances of foodstuffs and industrial materials.

The bureau's wholesale commodity price index now stands at 89.2 per cent of the 1926 average, as compared with 87.7 a month ago and 77.0 a year ago.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Cotton futures fluctuated over fairly wide territory today, closing 2 to 4 points down.

At times the market was under active pressure of hedge selling and commission house liquidation, the latter prompted by the forthcoming Government crop estimate. At the end prices were up as much as 75 cents a bale from extreme lows, reached after an early advance of 20 to 45 cents a bale.

The erratic swings reflected unsettled sentiment in the trade in connection with conflicting reports regarding chances for success of the Congressional farm bloc's move to freeze Government holdings of cotton and wheat.

Sales in the first seven months aggreated $15,005,001 as compared with $13,092,888 in the corresponding period last year, or a 14.6 per cent gain.

P.-C. A. Traffic Up 61 Per Cent

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines yesterday reported that passengers carried out of Washington in July totaled 6,434 as compared with 3,989 in the same month last year, or an increase of 61 per cent. The rate of increase here was higher than that for the airline system as a whole.

P.-C. A. passenger traffic in July over all stations set a new all-time high of 36,926 which was 58.8 per cent better than in the same month last year. Revenue passenger miles operated during the month were 7,151,809 against 4,115,946 last year, or an increase of 73.7 per cent.

Defense Awards Swell Building To 233 Million

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Engineering construction awards, "with defense contracts, particularly public buildings, showing the way," totalled $233,581,000, third largest weekly figure ever reported, Engineering News Record said today.

The latest figure is 206 per cent higher than in the corresponding period a year ago, and 35 per cent above the previous week. It brings the award total for the year to date to $4,033,647,000. This 32-week total exceeds the entire 52 weeks of 1940 when $3,987,243,000 of awards made the largest annual figure on record.

Public building awards this week were $155,656,000, second highest ever chalked up. They were mostly accounted for by four defense plants, at Texarkana, Tex.; St. Paul, Minn.; Huntsville, Ala., and Sterlington, La., and an Army cantonment at Neosha, Mo.

Household Appliance Sales Gain 9.5%

Total sales of 129 representative credit-granting household appliance stores were 9.5 per cent higher in 1940 than in 1939, the Commerce Department says.

These stores said that of their 1940 business, 72.9 was done on the instalment credit basis, 17.7 per cent on open credit accounts and 9.4 per cent for cash.

Losses on instalment credit declined from 1.66 to 1.4 per cent, and losses on open credit accounts declined from .6 to .43 per cent.

Rayon Output For Hose Sets New Record

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 7.—The country's rayon industry in the second quarter of this year achieved record production of filament yarn, which is used as stocking material, it was revealed today, while the head of an important chain of rayon mills assured American women the stoppage in silk will not deprive them "for long" of fine woven goods and hosiery.

Figures for rayon production were from Rayon Organon, published by Textile Economics Bureau, Inc., and showed filament yarn production in the three months to June 30 was 112,000,000 pounds, 5 per cent over the previous quarterly record of 106,200,000 pounds made in the first three months of 1941. Filament is also used for dress goods, knitted under and outer garments, tapestries and upholstery.

J. Spencer Love, president of Burlington Mills Corporation, which operates 36 plants in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee, said:

Silk on Way Out

"The present silk embargo situation will undoubtedly shorten by a year or two the time during which man-made yarns will almost completely replace silk for all uses. The public does not recognize what all yarn processors have known for some time, namely that silk has been on the way out for several years.

"Various rayon producers," Love said, "have in recent years been developing especially strong yarns which have proved satisfactory for the manufacture of hosiery. Certain fine cotton mercerized yarns can also be substituted for silk, but unfortunately these types of yarns are completely sold at the present time, and there are no available supplies.

"Within a reasonable time, however, various rayon and other yarns should become more available, and it is expected that the nylon supply will be doubled within the next year.

Adjustment Era Seen

"This does not mean, however, that there will not be considerable temporary dislocation, because many adjustments will have to be made."

The most serious danger in the current situation, Love said, is the possibility inexperienced manufacturers may use the wrong types of fibres or construct their fibres improperly.

"Should this happen," he said, "the interim period might produce inferior merchandise that would unjustly give legitimate fabrics a black eye."

Living Costs Reported 3.7% Up in Year

New York, Aug 7 (AP).—An increase of one-half of 1 per cent in the cost of living during July, making the rise in 12 months 3.7 per cent was reported today by the National Industrial Conference Board.

Living costs for wage earners' families, said the research organization, now stand 24 per cent above the depression low of April, 1933, but are 11.4 per cent below the boom month of July, 1929.

The purchasing value of the dollar, based on 1923 as 100 cents, was calculated as 112.5 cents in July, compared with 113 in June, 116.7 in July, 1940, and 99.7 cents in July, 1929.

Week's Power Output Sets New High Mark

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—The amount of electrical energy distributed by the electric light and power industry for the week ended August 2 reached a new high record for the fourth consecutive time, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Hesitant Buying Keeps List On Even Keel; American Woolen Issues Surge to New Tops

New York, Aug. 7.—Quiet strength of assorted specialties gave the stock market a fairly stabilized appearance today although many leaders continued to falter.

Earnings, actual and prospective, brought bids for individual issues notwithstanding the fact many company statements disclosed the heavy inroads mounting taxes were making on profits.

The same recent buying handicaps persisted, brokers said. Among these were fears of Far Eastern eventualities, conflicting German-Russian war communiques, doubts regarding the tax program and the thought proposed price-control legislation might take most of the coloring out of inflation. An outbreak of strikes accentuated conservatism.

The list was hesitant from the start, so far as pivotal stocks were concerned, and closing gains and losses were about an even split. Dealings waned appreciably after a moderately active opening.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues again was unchanged at 43.9. It was the ninth consecutive session in which this composite failed to post even a minor advance. Transfers totaled 497,120 shares against 581,170 the day before. It was the smallest turnover for a full stretch since July 18.

Rails just about kept their balance despite a contra-seasonal drop in last week's freight loadings and some apprehension over the stalemate in the carriers' wage dispute.

Steels had to contend with threats to production due to scrap shortage and motors once more were clouded by the idea of possible drastic output restrictions.

American woolen preferred jumped 4½ points and the common was up ⅞, both at new 1941 tops. Further bidding here was attributed to the concern's pleasing six-months' showing. Uonited Merchants & Manufacturers also made a new year's high, along with J. I. Case.

Modest improvement was retained by Fajardo Sugar, Sears Roebuck, Goodrich, Goodyear, Pan American Airways, du Pont, Santa Fe, J. C. Penney and Allied Chemical.

On the losing end were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil (N. J.), American Smelting, U. S. Rubber and Consolidated Edison.

Tilting forward in the Curb were Aluminum Ltd., Columbia Oil & Gas, Niagara Hudson Power, American Gas and Pantepec. On the offside were Glen Alden Coal, American Cyanamid "B," Humble Oil and Brewster Aero.

Selected railway loans tilted fractions to 1 or more higher in the bond market today as heavier freight movement in connection with national defense activity brought predictions of robust autumn loadings.

Out in front in the loan market, too, were the bonds of Alleghany Corporation, the 5s of '50 closed 3⅛ higher at 61¾, the 5s of '49 up 1½ at 79 and the 5s of '44 at 92, up 1¾. Financial circles heard a plan to change the indenture provisions behind the three issues was meeting favorable support from holders, and that assents were rising near the required percentages.

Trading Begins In New Issues of Wabash Railway

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—"When-issued" trading began today in the new securities of the Wabash Railway, a plan for whose reorganization was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington.

Financial quarters said that following the commission's action papers were being drawn up to submit for approval to the United States District Court at St. Louis. It was thought here the court would give quick approval to the plan, which provides for acquisition of the road by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

If the court approves, foreclosure proceedings will be instituted and the properties transferred to a new company. It was believed here that the reorganization might be complete by the first of next year.

Home Mortgage Loans Reported Heavier

The Federal Reserve Board reports that outstanding home mortgage loans of Federal savings and loan associations rose from $1,546,270,000 to $1,688,207,000 in the first half of the year.

Loans of Federal Home Loan Banks to member associations declined, during the period, from $201,492,000 to $169,897,000.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Corn took over leadership of the grain price advance today with gains ranging up to as much as 2⅜ cents at one time, that put May, 1942, contracts at a new four-year peak of 86¼.

Wheat, oats and rye followed with gains of about a cent, deferred wheat and oats reaching new highs since 1937 of $1.19⅞ and 48⅛, respectively.

Prices in all pits reacted before the close, however, due principally to profit-taking and evening up of accounts, but corn finished 5@ 7⅛ cents higher than Thursday; September, 78⅝@78¼; December, 81¼; May, 85⅝. Wheat was unchanged to ½ up; September, 1.12⅛@1.12⅜; December, 1.15⅝@1.15½; May, 1.18⅛@1.18¾; oats, ¼@⅜ higher; rye, ⅛@¼ up; soybeans, 2¼@3⅜ higher, and lard, 3@5 higher.

Most buying of corn, which centered in May futures, was based on reports of crop deterioration as a result of hot weather and lack of rain in many sections. Trade also noted the advancing cash price level, with the prospect that the new corn loan rate will be more than a dime above that for 1940-41.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Anglers Special Week-End Weather Report

Scattered to broken cloudiness with moderate northeast and east winds today. Outlook for tomorrow—Broken clouds and gentle to moderate east and southeast winds with likelihood of thundershowers south of the Virginia capes in the afternoon.

Washington Anglers Raid Fish in Chesapeake

If you've seen many wild-eyed, ill-kempt fellows, who might have looked like fishermen, at noon yesterday, you're right, they were.

Yesterday some 200 anglers drove down to Solomons Island. It was the second annual Izaak Walton League fishing rodeo.

Confusion prevailed, with all the fellows rushing away from their desks to a central meeting place there to join the caravan. A number of cars looked like moving pin cushions, with all the rods and tackle.

JACK BELL

George Quinn, the official bait carrier, had his headache, for it was not until the last minute that he'd heard the fish changed their diet. George had 100 pounds of very select shrimp in storage for the past ten days. At the crucial hour he learns that bloodworms are all the fish want. If you've never tried to buy 2,000 wiggling bloodworms at one time in a hurry, don't try it.

Late last night more confusion prevailed when the boys gathered at dinner to award fishing prizes and festivities continued far into the night.

The partying was the climax to a full day's sport that began at 3:15 in the afternoon, when fishing boats leaving Solomons looked like the evacuation of Dunkirk, except that one could not have found a more happy and cheerful group. Of the 17 boats, all found fish plentiful but small.

The prize winners, all Washingtonians unless otherwise noted were, in order: Rockfish—Don Harris, 1 pound; Linder Shank, Leo Sherman. Trout—N. Happy, 1 pound, 11 ounces; Mr. Rowsher, J. Frank Hardhead—A. M. Jordan, 1 pound, 12 ounces; Harry Leahr, Everett, Pa.; Jay Mangan.

Norfolk Spot—Chastleton Walsh, 11 ounces; E. B. Coxon, Arlington, Va.; Mr. MacDonald.

Perch—Mrs. J. Grimes, Everett, Pa. 6½ ounces; Dr. Porter; J. Biff. Greatest Variety of Fish—Leo Sherman.

We have received word that the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries favor the passage of the Buck-Clark bill.

Virginia is satisfied with the way the provisions of the Pittman-Robertson Act have been carried out, and that if similarly administered funds were made available for game fish restoration, all State fish conservation programs could be made more effective.

The Pittman-Robertson Act, passed in 1937, earmarks the funds derived from an excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition for distribution among the States to aid in financing their wildlife restoration programs. The Buck-Clark bill provides for a similar tax on all sporting fish equipment, the funds to be used by the States in the conservation and restoration of their game fish.

It will be with such funds as are made available that States shall be able to carry out a more wide-ranged restoration of their streams and waters by acquisition or lease of land or adjoining watershed.

We have wondered how many anglers have been back to see their favorite mountain streams in July and August. Do it some time and you shall see why your favorite stream does not carry over the fish you know were left at the end of the season.

Fish culturists and game management men know, and all agree, that not until a good growth of woodlands on the adjoining watershed is provided shall any improvement of waters be noticed. This is not possible to the States at this time, due to limited funds provided only through license fees. Funds at the present are sufficient only for law enforcement, propagation of fish and restocking.

Continued restocking of waters alone cannot be expected to restore good fishing conditions unless accompanied by scientifically directed efforts to improve environmental conditions.

Pat Fraley Wins Over Lou Plummer

Pat Fraley, the California Irishman, installed himself as a local favorite last night when he bested Lou Plummer, probably the most reliable villain on Fourteenth Street, in the feature wrestling bout at Turner's Arena. This was Fraley's third win in as many starts here, and he turned the trick by clamping a lethal leg lock on Lou which forced the villain to give up after 25 minutes of struggle.

Lou could hardly wait for the whistle to start his foul tactics, and as he threw his first illegal punch, almost 30 seconds after the signal, some 1,500 fans took up their hymn of hate.

Pat resorted to his famed donkey kick once to stop Plummer's assaults, and after that Lou was distinctly shy about letting Fraley get set for it again. Both lads were tossed among the paying guests upon several occasions, and Casey Berger, the arbiter, was busier than a blind dog in a meat market trying to keep order in his bailiwick.

In the semiwindup, Maurice LaChappelle and Ace Freeman teamed for their fifth consecutive win to trounce Legs Grobmier and Eddie Cook in a two-man team affair. The circus was fine while it lasted, but Cook was eliminated by a series of dropkicks in 12 minutes, and Grobby suffered a double leg stretch a minute later to end it.

Tommy Rae and big Abe Yourist drew in a scientific affair, and something called Toby Tobinski won over Young Monday, a veteran of 30 years, in a special 20-minute exhibition. Angelo Leone retired Mike Heller with a body press after 22½ minutes of the opener.

No Gas After 7 o'Clock; No Stockings, Such Is War

A Family's Gas Supply Was Siphoned; Riot At the Stocking Counter Are Early Happenings

New York—The first two American war casualties your correspondent has seen were really eight. The first, who can be lumped as an integer, was a man, his wife and five kids who ran out of gas last Sunday night more than three-quarter of a hundred miles from home and who couldn't find one of those pump operators who was enough of a rugged individualist to say all he knew about any 7 o'clock curfew was what he read in the newspapers and that that wasn't official in his book.

Cunningham

The harried pater familias, whose chariot had coughed thrice and died, came up to the door around midnight madder'n hops, and said that the goldlasted happenstance was really none of his fault. He had duly loaded on a full cargo of juice at midafternoon so as to be thoroughly provisioned. Then he'd parked in a place where they charged 50 cents, and he, his everlovin' weal and woe and the five offsprings forgot thereafter the cares of their world in a most enjoyable picnic supper on the beach.

They packed up and started back along in the shank of the evening. He didn't bother to look at his gas tank because he knew it was full. He'd got this far by around 10 o'clock and figured to get home by midnight, or some reasonable moment thereafter, when, all at once, the faithful family roller skate backfired nobly two or three times, coughed consciously thrice, and expired without further ado half way up a long two-lane hill, tangling up traffic for at least 5 miles.

A Siphon Job

Under the circumstances, the gasoline gauge was the last thing he examined. When he did get back that far, traveling like a shirt-sleeved inch worm from the fan belt through the spark plugs and on past the ignition, he read the solemn legend, E Minus. All he could figure was that somebody had siphoned his load on him, a neat and not unheard-of trick even in normal times.

But it was what happened then that had the gentleman paying his fervent respects to the British Empire. No passing motorist would stop for him. He'd walked 5 miles to reach the village. Every public pump was shut and had been shut since 7. It being near the Sabbath midnight, every store was closed. He couldn't find anybody who'd lend, give or sell him a requisite jorum of read-rabbit fuel.

Thus he was at length desperately ringing door bells and telling his story. This place was the fourth. Here was a brother American obviously in such a bad way from the war that he was around making lodge distress signals on strangers' front porches. A rescue expedition was rapidly organized, and the family, plus the equipage, was hauled as far as the nearest State police barracks. They'll probably get home about Thursday.

A Lady Casualty

The second victim, a large fat lady, was viewed this morning in a temporary sitting position upon the floor of the aisle of a large New York department store where she had either been shoved or knocked, by some other lady, or a combination of the same, in a regular Donnybrook around the stocking counter. This lady was really a sad sight. Although a paid up member of the Boxing Writers' Association, I am not very expert in reporting what one lady bops another one with and what happens after that, but this one had either been whanged with an elbow or a handbag, which apparently caught her on one nostril and a piece of the upper lip.

I don't know what they hit her over the head with, but she had a hat that looked like a white phonograph record with two fried eggs parked in a sprig of spinach on the front of it, and the lower edge of this creation was resting upon her right soulder, the upper rim leaning against her ear. She was a very large lady and she had sat down so hard that it had shaken some boxes and things off a showcase behind her, and everything in the vicinity was considerable of a mess, including the lady.

The scene just in front of her was approximately a riot. Women of all shapes and sizes, with visages so grim that it made a man shudder just to learn that they could look that way, were tearing into that mob to get at where the stockings were, being thrown back as if they were pneumatic and had struck something solid, only to pull their hats on harder, take a firmer clamp upon their pocketbooks with the elbows, and go plowing in again.

The war has officially come to America.

The gas ban to many seems unfair and ridiculous, but the stocking stoppage comes under the head of cruel and unusual punishment. Never mind the gals. How about us?

Another Washington author makes her debut before a WJSV microphone at 3 this afternoon, thanks to the indefatigable effort of WJSV's literary lady, Vesta Eales, never to let you down when there's literarily something up around town.

That author is Mrs. Warren Pierson, or Eleanor Pierson, who's just written the book called provocatively "The Good Neighbor Murder."

It's Mrs. Pierson's first novel, although she's done much writing before, mostly in Hollywood, where she collaborated on "Peter Pan" and "The Little French Girl" among other pictures. Mrs. Pierson was in South America when she started "The Good Neighbor Murder" and it should be known that she had no intention of writing a murder mystery when she began. But when she got to about page 30 she found that she'd killed off her main character and there was nothing else she could do about it.

No doubt she'll tell you all about it when she's interviewed by Mrs. Eales.

Mrs. Pierson's versatility isn't confined only to the written word, however. She has a pretty fine reputation as a violinist and has played before all sorts of august musical gatherings.

It may be that Vesta will be able to produce her first musical show since her series began over WJSV.

Contract Bridge

♠AJ75
♡Q4
◇AQ3
♣KQ62

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	?

What call do you make?

Answer

There is a chance for a large penalty score if the opponents can be coaxed into trying to "save" the rubber. South's best bid is one spade, as his partner certainly will not drop him short of game. If the adversaries overcall in either of the minor suits, a double should be very profitable.

SALE! MEN'S 50c, 65c and 75c QUILTED-FRONT, FRENCH BACK SHORTS

You might wonder how The Hecht Co. MAN'S Store can offer you 50c, 65c and 75c shorts for only 39c. Well, here's the story behind the scenes. We purchased a mill's bolt ends and odd pieces of their better grade shirtings. These woven fabrics were too small for shirts but just the right size for men's shorts. Because of this we were able to purchase these woven shirtings way off price.

Men's Combed Cotton Lisle ATHLETIC SHIRTS in Swiss ribs. Sizes 34 to 46..... 39c

THE FRENCH BACKS—Most men find French Back shorts to be more comfortable than any other style. The six buttons and buttonholes at the back may be adjusted to six different sizes, giving you comfort at the waist at all times. Comfort, too, in the full trouser seat, wide legs and deep crotch. No riding up, no binding, no cutting.

THE QUILTED-STITCH FRONT—The three rows of stitching (see drawing at left) on the front of every short give more abdominal support with the same coolness and comfort as regular front shorts.

THE NEW COMPOSITION, CHIP-FRONT BUTTONS—Amazing what scientists are doing nowadays. Here's a new composition button that is guaranteed not to chip, discolor or cut the threads, meaning, of course, buttons that stay put.

THE FABRICS AND SIZES—Your choice of woven broadcloths, madrases, chambrays, oxfords and end-to-ends. Plenty of whites, plain shades, stripes and all-over figures. Waist sizes 30 to 44.
